Rubber Data Hidden From Our Navy, Oil Chief Admits

Farish Refuses To Deny Charges By O'Mahoney Of Blocking Plant

700,000 Tons a Year

JESSE JONES announces contracts have been signed for 700,000 tons of synthetic rubber annually. Page 7.

Bald, perspiring W. S. Farish, president of the Standard Oil Co. (N. J.), admitted yesterday to the Truman Defense Investigating Committee that his company concealed from the Navy its processes for making synthetic rubber.

Nor did Farish deny charges by Senator O'Mahoney (Democrat), of Wyoming, that Standard Oil of New Jersey declined to help its sister company—Standard of Indiana—set up a synthetic rubber plant in O'Mahoney's own city of Casper, Wyo. O'Mahoney said Standard of Indiana had all the facilities for making synthetic rubber in Casper, but lacked the "know how"—processes controlled by Standard of New Jersey.

The hearing was marked by sharp clashes between Farish and committee members, Farish and the committee's counsel, Hugh Fulton, and between senatorial members themselves. Farish appeared fatigued after two gruelling days of testimony, but he answered every question in his soft Mississippi drawl.

Willing to Stay on Stand

He complained there had not been sufficient time to prepare adequate answers to some of the questions asked him. He volunteered to stay on the stand until the committee was convinced:

1. That Standard of New Jersey has not retarded the synthetic rubber industry but has advanced it through research.

2. That his company has not formed an international cartel to control petroleum products vital to the war effort.

3. That the company has entered into no compromising agreements with the Germans and the Japanese.

Farish and F. A. Howard, vice president of Standard of New Jersey, when confronted with memoranda, from the company's own files, admitted they withheld full information from the Navy on the butyl rubber process, although they were exchanging details with I. G. Farbenindustrie, the German chemical trust, until as late as January, 1940.

Butyl Process Concealed

Howard, after a heated cross-examination by Committee Counsel Hugh Fulton, agreed that I. G. Farben gave Standard no important

Girl Denies Union Suspended Her For Working Hard

By the Associated Press

Detroit, April 1.—Genevieve Samp, 25-year-old defense worker, formally denied today that she was suspended from her job for working too hard.

She denied she ever had said that fellow workers objected to increasing production, and admitted responsibility for disturbances in the plant.

The union, Local 270 of the United Mine Workers (C. I. O.), from which she had been suspended on charges of conduct unbecoming a union member, immediately reinstated her.

Her statement was made public today shortly before a special union trial board was to meet to consider her case, which had gained national attention. William Clayton, president of the local, replied with an acknowledgement of her "frank and honest statement," and announced charges would be dropped.

As a result, she may return to the job she left March 12 with the National Stamping Co.

The union had maintained that the grounds for her suspension, and consequent loss of her job, was conduct unbecoming a union member, specifically quarreling with a fellow employe.

Senate Orders Showdown on Labor, Profits

Will Vote April 20 On Motion to Consider Connally Measure

SENATE VOTES 81 to 0 to "mobilize" thousands of small business concerns into essential production. Page 6.

Connally Bill Issue

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

A Senate showdown indirectly involving the whole question of labor and war profits legislation yesterday was definitely set for April 20.

By unanimous consent, the Senate fixed that day for a decision on whether to call up the Connally plant-seizure bill. The vote will follow an informal Easter recess, commencing Monday.

The Connally bill is restricted to freezing of labor conditions in war plants taken over because of labor or management interruptions, but opens the field to broadening amendments.

"A vote against it is a vote against doing anything," Senator Connally (Democrat), of Texas, told reporters.

Asked if he will offer amendments lengthening the work week and freezing the closed shop, he said:

"I don't think that will be necessary, because plenty of others will be offered."

Barkley Offers Motion

Senate Majority Leader Barkley, who with the Administration opposes any labor legislation at this time, himself offered the unanimous consent request making Connally's motion the pending business after the recess.

Barkley obtained the postponement after Connally moved to call up his bill.

The war profits issue meanwhile may come to a head before the Senate starts its holidays. The Senate Appropriations Committee was rushing work on the 18-billion dollar supplemental defense bill, to which the House has affixed a flat 6 per cent of cost profits limit.

The House profits limit was regarded as "unworkable" by ranking members of the Appropriations Committee, but Senator McKellar (Democrat), of Tennessee, said several alternative plans are being considered "to stop these unconscionable profits."

Of What Strange Architecture Is Mellett's Madhouse Built?

SIDEWALK superintendents watching the progress of Mellett's Madhouse at Fourteenth Street and Pennsylvania Avenue are in heated controversy over the style of architecture embodied in this quaint and costly venture.

One school of thought concludes that it is the early Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer period of architecture. They say it is strongly reminiscent of the sets built by the movie pioneers for the Keystone Kops comedies. They point to the central hall where 80 (count 'em) uniformed lady information clerks with hold forth. These lovelies could swing out the big doors on a moment's notice and parade down Pennsylvania Avenue, thus solving the great Washington parade problem. The two wings, they insist, are perfect for Keystone chases after information for small businessmen with wilted collars and run down heels.

Maybe Late Coney Island

The Madhouse is a true specimen of late Coney Island period of architecture, they insist.

The central hall is a perfect example of Cave of the Winds technique, they point out. The small businessman goes in here and comes out there. And the two wings are ideal for a House of Fun and a House of Horrors.

They suggest the Office of Government Reports, Etc. (Ogre) install trick mirrors in the central chamber so the small businessman with the wilted collar will see himself twice as big as he is, thus giving him confidence. And installation of a shoe repairing shop at the far end would make it possible for him to continue on to the department he should have visited in the first place. Taxis are going to be scarce.

How About a Roller Coaster?

There is imaginative power in the suggestions of the sidewalk superintendents. One is particularly intriguing, visioning, for a mere two million dollars additional, a roller coaster on top of the Madhouse. Such an innovation would give Glen Echo a terrific run and, with the money saved on shoe leather, it would quickly be self-liquidating.

On second thought maybe this fellow was trying to be cute. He might be a sixth, or even seventh, columnist.

U. S. Chamber of Commerce Puts Out Directory of War Agencies and Officials

A directory of war agencies designed to give the American businessman names, addresses, and telephone numbers of everybody he would need to see about contracts, priorities, and new regulations in all Government fields was issued yesterday by the United States Chamber of Commerce.

The information covers not only the Washington field, but also field offices both in this country and possessions.

More than one million individuals, firms and organizations will have immediate access to the directory by receiving their own copies. In addition, it becomes accessible to all groups who have been told their local Chamber of Commerce is the best clearing house for business information out of Washington.

"Audience Now Very Large"

"We believe that audience is now a very large one," Ben H. Lambs, manager of the organization's publicity department, said yesterday. "We know that national defense committees are attached to our groups and functioning in about 1000 cities."

Also any Washington hotel or agency interested in utilizing the directory would be given a copy for use of its guests. If Lowell Mellett's Office of Government Reports wants a copy it can have it.

The OGR is preparing to move into a $600,000 information temple now under construction at Pennsylvania Avenue and Fourteenth Street Northwest, with a major purpose of supplying information across the counter to businessmen who trek to Washington for answers to their war problems.

On both sides of 62 pages the Chamber of Commerce has mimeographed its directory information. Several months of collecting and checking went into the preparation. It has a four-page index for quick perusal.

These are some of the almost 100 agencies listed in the index: Combined Raw Materials Board (United Kingdom and United States), Building Trades Stabilization Board of Review (Labor Division, WPB), Army and Navy Munitions Board, Maritime War Emergency Board, Committee on Con-

10 Norse Ships Flee Sweden for Britain; U-Boats Sink 2

Stockholm (Thursday), April 2 (AP).—Ten Norwegian ships berthed in Sweden since the German invasion of Norway made a dash for England early yesterday and at least two were torpedoed and sunk just outside the three-mile limit.

A third ship was damaged and two others turned back into Goteborg, the Swedish west coast port where they had been tied up.

Presumably the remaining five reached the open sea.

The sunken ships were identified as the 12,358-ton Skytteren, a floating whale oil factory, and the 6222-ton tanker Buccaneer. The former, built in 1901, was registered at Oslo, as was the Buccaneer.

Draft Boards Told to Speed Classification

Latest Registrants May Expect Call About June 1

In a move to speed formation of a possible eight-million-man army, Selective Service officials yesterday ordered all local boards to hasten classification of men who registered February 16.

First Washington men from the third registration, including those aged 21, previously unregistered, and those 35 to 44 inclusive, can expect a call to service about June 1, District Selective Service officials said yesterday.

Local boards were advised that the classification of the third registration group should be carried out as speedily as possible in order to insure sufficient men for the May 1 and June 1 calls. The May 1 call is not likely to affect Washington, officials said.

The men registered on October 16, 1940 and July 1, 1941 have been referred to as the first age group and those who received their order numbers in the latest lottery are listed as the second age group in the order issued yesterday. In the event any local board has not sufficient men classified as 1-A of the first age group at the May 1 or June 1 calls they have been instructed to draw all 1-A's necessary to meet their quotas from the second age group.

The War Department said that men called for after June 1 will come from both age groups in those cases where men of the first age group have not been classified. The precise method of apportioning the inductees taken from each group will be announced later.

Meanwhile, District Selective Service officials said that the occu-

Jap Arms Ship Blows Up Like '500 Fourth-of-Julys'

Honolulu, April 1 (U.P.).—The sinking of a large Japanese freighter laden with munitions was described tonight by Lieut. Comdr. Willis A. Lent, captain of an American submarine, who said the ship blew up with a sound like "500 Fourth-of-Julys all happening at once."

Lent's submarine recently returned from an expedition into Japanese waters, and he said that "we chalked up some nice hits" including the attack on the Nipponese supply vessel which apparently was en route to a Japanese base in the southwest Pacific.

The commander described submarine patrol duty as a lot of hard work, much time coming and going to the hunting grounds, and weeks of labor spent in return for occasional moments of excitement. He said his men stood the stiff duty like American sailors should and were not even much excited when they downed the munitions ship. The men just cheered a little and then started hunting for more Japanese ships, he said.

Doctors, Nurses Ready for Duty

Fifteen hundred Washington physicians and nurses have been organized into volunteer emergency service units, the District Medical Society was told at its civilian defense meeting last night.

The Emergency Medical Service, it was announced, has selected sites for 83 casualty stations, and is planned to set up a blood-plasma bank with funds donated by the American Federation of Labor.

Slums Will Remain

Agreement Near on Amount Of Funds for D. C. Housing

Determined to speed action on the bill authorizing Federal war housing for the District area, House and Senate conferees will meet again today at 10:30 a. m. with a settlement expected on the controversial measure.

Senator Ellender (Democrat), of Louisiana, chairman of the Senate conferees, announced the resumption of conferences last night after it had been said Tuesday there would be no further discussion of the matter until April 13.

It is believed Senate conferees may agree to the House-approved figure of 50 million dollars, although the Senate has passed a bill authorizing appropriation of 70 millions.

The Senate conferees are expected to hold out for funds to increase Washington's overtaxed hospital facilities at the cost of reducing some of the proposed public works.

The Goodwillie plan to reconstruct nine slum blocks in Southwest Washington for Federal war workers' homes seems doomed to be cut from the measure.

As passed originally by the House, the bill authorized appropriation of 40 million dollars for 10,000 homes and 10 million dollars for public works. The Senate amended the measure to 70 million dollars—45 millions for homes and the Goodwillie project and 25 millions for necessary public works.

See-Saw Battle Rages In Russia

Battle of Titans

By the Associated Press

London, April 1.—Bitter fighting now under way in the Donets Basin on Russia's Southern Front was reported tonight to be gradually developing into a titanic clash which ultimately may determine the outcome of 1942's warm weather operations on the entire Russian-German battlefront.

Dispatches from both Moscow and Berlin indicated that the entire front from Leningrad to the Black Sea now is locked in a see-saw struggle, with both sides moving masses of reserves into the central and southern zones.

Lightning Offensive Doubted

In view of this, London observers found it difficult to predict that either side could develop any lightning spring offensive.

Rather, they preferred to view the current action in the Donets Basin, where the roads are now drying steadily, as pivotal fighting holding the key to the situation for the remainder of the year. The side winning the advantage here is expected to prevail.

Incessant German counterattacks to recover lost ground and relieve the encircled Nazi Sixteenth Army in the Staraya Russa sector on the northwestern front are stressed in reports from Stockholm.

These reports state that the beleaguered German force, which originally numbered 100,000 men, has been cut in half by methodical Russian bombing and artillery fire.

Tonight's Moscow communique told of a number of successful operations on the Leningrad front in which about 3000 German officers and soldiers were killed during the last two days.

Vitebsk Capture Claimed Near

A Russian drive to close a pincers movement on the strategic town of Vyazma from the north is believed to have advanced further with a Soviet announcement that 12 villages on this northwestern front had been recaptured within 24 hours.

Meanwhile, the Moscow radio broadcast to the people of Vitebsk, only 75 miles from the Polish border, that their hour of liberation is "not far off."

London observers interpreted the northwestern front advance and the radio announcement as an indication that the Russians were strengthening and widening the arm of the westernmost advance on the line north of Vyazma.

This line extends back to Rzhev, which the Germans still are holding doggedly. Any extension of it without a substantially guaranteed challenge to the Germans north and south of this spearhead will place the Russians in a precarious position, London observers believe.

These observers watched the southern front action, however, as a more trustworthy forecaster of what warm weather, dry land fighting is to bring everywhere in Russia this summer.

89 Are Saved In Passenger Ship Sinking

By the Associated Press

Norfolk, Va., April 1.—Attended by a ship's doctor who was in agony because of two broken ribs, a young mother gave birth to a baby boy in a crowded lifeboat pitched about by 15-foot waves after their ship was torpedoed and sunk off the Atlantic Coast Sunday by an Axis submarine.

29 Are Missing

Rescue ships picked up 89 survivors of the large American passenger-cargo ship and landed them at Norfolk. Three others were known dead and 29 were missing, the Fifth Naval District said in announcing the sinking tonight. Those saved included 31 passengers and 58 crewmen. The three known dead were crew members.

Missing were 11 passengers and 18 crewmen.

Dr. L. H. Conly, of Brooklyn, N. Y., told newsmen that he delivered Mrs. Desanka Mohorovicic of an 8-pound son in total darkness, without anesthesia and with only the "simple instruments" contained in the lifeboat's medical kit.

Three or Four Hours' Pain

Mrs. Mohorovicic, 28-year-old wife of an attache of the Yugoslav consulate in New York, was in labor for "three or four hours," but stood the pain very well, Dr. Conly said, adding that she was "a brave lovely woman."

Compromise Hopes Held For India Plan

Way for Native Seat On Defense Body May Save Cripps Mission

By the United Press

New Delhi, April 1.—Sir Stafford Cripps opened negotiations with All-India Congress Party leaders tonight in a last-minute effort to stave off failure of his mission to swing India fully into the war against Japan, and hopes arose that a compromise might be reached.

Cripps invited to his residence Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, most influential member of the party, and Maulana Abul Kalam Azad, its Moslem president. Cripps had said that there would be no negotiations, that India must accept Britain's plan for dominion status after the war, or reject it as it stood, but it was apparent now that he was making a desperate effort to break the deadlock arising from India's demand to be able to name its own defense minister.

Outcome of the conference was secret, but there were indications that Cripps believed transfer to Indian hands of at least some measure of responsibility for India's defense during the war might turn the tide.

Cripps Reported Querying London

The formula under discussion was understood to call for an Indian minister of defense coordination, who would preside at meetings of the defense council, of which Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell, commander in chief of the British imperial forces in India, also would be a member. The Indian minister would have charge of civil defense, internal defense, air-raid precautions and similar matters.

Stopped by American and Filipino bayonets, a fierce Japanese attack has been frustrated in the Bataan jungles, the War Department announced yesterday, while down in Mindanao raiding parties have wrought havoc among enemy positions.

Making their second assault in three days, the Japs struck again at the right-center of Lieut. Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright's line across Bataan Peninsula. Apparently the spearhead of the long-awaited all-out offensive, the enemy struck with all the fury of desperation and was bloodily repulsed with a desperation equally furious.

South of Luzon, on the island of Mindanao, where Japanese have occupied the ports of Davao on the southeast and Zamboanga on the tip of the finger reaching southwestward into the Sulu Sea, American raiders scored two victories.

A Japanese supply base near Digos, in Davao Gulf, was attacked by "a small number" of American-Filipino troops. They destroyed 22

Admiral Indorses Plan for Naval Operation of U. S. Merchant Shipping

The Navy announced late yesterday the sinking of three additional Axis submarines, raising to at least 28 the number of enemy undersea raiders sunk or presumed sunk in the Atlantic or Pacific to date.

In addition, the naval communique declared that there is evidence of other sinkings of Axis subs by American armed forces but that they will not be announced until they are definitely established by later reports and the information no longer will be of value to the enemy.

Indorses Broughton Plan

Meanwhile, Rear Admiral Manley H. Simons, commandant of the Fifth Naval District, declared that at least half of the Allied merchantmen sunk by Axis U-boats in Atlantic coastal waters were lost because they disobeyed the Navy's orders.

Simons also indorsed a proposal by Gov. J. M. Broughton of North Carolina that the Navy take over and operate freighters and tankers to assure that its safety orders are complied with. The naval commandant declared that operation by Navy crews is "the only way to get strict obedience to our orders." (Detailed story on Page 2.)

The Navy communique announcing the sinking of three more Axis submarines, revealed that two had been accounted for by Navy fliers and the other by an Army airman.

Donald Francis Mason, a 28-year-old enlisted man of Rochester, Minn., who on a previous occasion radioed his base the famed terse report, "Sighted sub, sank same," and was decorated and promoted to the rank of ensign, for his triumph, was credited with sending one of the two latest U-boat victims to the

One plane apparently received a direct hit. It collapsed, a wing fell off and the ship plunged into the bay. Apparently the hit killed or stunned the crew of seven, since none tried to escape by parachute.

The hits on the other bomber set it on fire and the smoking craft crashed into the bay a short distance from the Bataan shore.

Pacific Council Maps Political, Military and Supply Plans to Counter Japs

Harry Hopkins Given Seat At Conference

By Thomas F. Reynolds
Copyright by Chicago Sun

The new Pacific Council organized yesterday in the historic White House cabinet room and began evolving political, military and supply plans to counter a great Japanese offensive toward Australia which is expected within the next 60 days.

Preliminary discussion during the initial 90-minute meeting presided over by President Roosevelt, developed a program for specific planning for supplies and priorities to be taken up at the second meeting, scheduled for next Tuesday.

As a result of the opening consultations, it was understood that plans were made for Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King of Canada to come here within a fortnight to participate in the third meeting of the seven great democratic powers of the Pacific.

It will be King's first visit here since his arrival to join in conversations with Mr. Roosevelt and Prime Minister Winston Churchill last December. His presence at the Pacific Council table will give substantial meaning to the supply talks, enabling quick, positive commitments for material consignments to the southwest Pacific by the war leaders of the two great producing units of North America—Canada and the United States.

Blow Expected Soon

Australia and New Zealand representatives here, it was learned, confidently expect Japan to launch its major smash at the world down under within the next month or two. Consequently, it was understood, much of the conversation at yesterday's meeting was premised on this fear.

In its equality of representation, the War Council indicated the shape of the post-war world for which the United Nations are fighting.

Without barriers of race or political power, a Chinese, an Aussie, a Canadian, a New Zealander, an "indomitable Dutchman" and an Englishman matched plans with President Roosevelt to devise the master strategem for smashing Japan in the Pacific.

There was one notable development at the meeting. President Roosevelt seated Harry L. Hopkins at the conference table, thereby partially acquiescing to Anzac demands for a voice in the decisions which control when and to what war theaters guns, tanks, planes and bullets shall be sent.

Mr. Roosevelt has not granted the other Pacific powers representation on the assignments board. At a press conference Tuesday he indicated that the nations which make the implements of war will generally be the ultimate judge of to what threaters they shall be consigned.

Halifax Present

But Hopkins is chairman of the Munitions Assignments Board controlling "all assignments both in quantity and priority, whether to Great Britain and the United States or other of the United Nations in accordance with strategic needs." Thus, in effect, Mr. Roosevelt brought the Munitions Assignments Board to the Pacific powers in seating Hopkins with the council.

At the President's right was tall Viscount Halifax, Ambassador of the British imperial crown. At his left was Hume Wrong, Counsellor of the Canadian Legation, substituting for Canadian Minister Leighton McCarthy who was out of town. Clockwise around the huge cabinet table were Dr. Alexander Loudon, Netherlands Minister; Hopkins, Dr. T. V. Soong, financial genius who is China's Foreign Minister; Walter Nash, Minister from New Zealand, and Dr. Herbert V. Evatt, Minister for External Affairs in Australia's Laborite government.

On leaving the White House, New Zealand Minister Nash said that "supplies and priorities" would be taken up Tuesday.

General Review of Situation

Soong said after the conference that the "United Nations will be getting to grips with the whole war situation more and more now."

Lord Halifax, stressing informality of the talks, said that they represented "a general review of the situation and were most helpful."

A few hours after the Pacific Council ended its first session, Mr. Roosevelt explained the scope and extent of Pacific planning in an hour and 40-minute conference with Sir Girja Shankar Bajpai, agent general for India to the United States.

"We talked merely of the scope and extent of the new Pacific Council," Sir Girja said.

bottom of the Atlantic.

In the case of the second submarine sunk in the Atlantic, according to the Navy's communique, Ensign William Tepuni, 26-year-old Naval Reserve pilot of San Francisco, sighted the undersea boat, dived in and bombed it and left the enemy marauder wallowing helplessly on the surface.

"Destroyers moved in the next day for the kill," the communique bluntly stated.

The Navy revealed that with these its total "bag" was raised to 24 while the Army has sunk four enemy submarines in the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans. Secretary of the Navy Knox yesterday commended Lieut. James V. Edmundson, 26-year-old Army aviator of Santa Monica, Calif., for destroying an enemy submarine in the Hawaiian area January 16. The Army previously announced only three sinkings.

Mason and Tepuni sighted and attacked both submarines the same day while on "routine patrol flights" in the vigilant watch over Atlantic shipping lanes.

Dropped Depth Charges

Mason dived on the submarine he caught napping on the surface and scored hits with every one of the depth charges he dropped. The unwary U-boat blew up, according to the Navy's report, and when the smoke and spray settled, the undersea raider was nothing but a mass of wreckage drifting on the surface.

The Navy said that destruction of the submarine attacked by Tepuni was "conclusive," and that "a sure kill was made the next day by destroyers.

Vice Admiral Royal E. Ingersoll, commander in chief of the Atlantic Fleet, awared Tepuni the Distinguished Flying Cross and Mason a silver star—equivalent to a second D. F. C.—for their work in accounting for two more of the enemy's preying U-boats.

Mason first won the Distinguished Fying Cross when he sighted a submarine's periscope cutting the water while he was on another "routine" patrol flight. He dived to a low altitude and released two depth bombs which "straddled" the submarine's "eye."

The undersea craft struggled to the surface until its conning tower was exposed, then went down again leaving a large area covered with oil—usually the sign of the death of a submarine.

For his second exploit announced yesterday, Mason not only won the silver star, but received the single gold stripe of an ensign as a promotion in recognition of his triumph over the undersea raider.

The Navy's announcement of the new submarine sinkings indicated that its patrols over vital shipping lanes used by United Nations merchantmen have been meeting with success, but it emphasized that it wasn't going to let the enemy know immediately just how well its campaign is working.

"There is evidence of additional sinkings of Axis undersea craft," the Navy said, "but announcements will not be made until full reports have been received in the Navy Department and absolute surety of claims is determined and not then until the confirmation is of no possible use to the enemy."

Navy Secretary Knox, in commending Edmundson, son of James A. Edmundson, of Santa Monica, praised the Army navigator's "keen observation, flying skill and successful attack with bombs" in destroying the enemy submarine in the Pacific.

Army to Use Half of Miami Beach Hotels

By the Associated Press

Miami Beach, Fla., April 1.—The bright lights of this glittering resort have been dimmed for the duration.

A tourist season that started before Pearl Harbor has run its course with a normal amount of play in night clubs, on golf courses, tennis courts, in ocean-front pools and cabana colonies.

Now Miami Beach is in the Army. Most of the hotels in a 24-block strip running south from Thirty-first Street have been leased for an Army Air Corps technical training camp. Twenty-four already have signed up. Many others will join the program.

The resort has hotel and apartment space for about 100,000 tourists. The Air Corps, already on the training job, is making plans to house 30,000 men at the peak of its program. It will double the population of the city, which has an official year-round count of 26,000 residents.

Miami Beach proper has 329 hotels, of which about 40 per cent will be used by the Army. Many of the remainder will stay open throughout the year. They expect to draw thousands of families here to enjoy vacations and visit their sons and husbands who are in the training camps.

Beach officialdom agrees that the customary tourist business is finished until after the war. The municipality will continue to employ the services of its Nationwide publicity organization, but the appeal will be different.

of Indian defense, said a dispatch from New Delhi to the London Daily Herald, according to the Associated Press.]

[The New Delhi dispatch said the exact time of the meeting was kept secret, but that "it is hoped the corner then will be turned."]

Informed quarters said earlier that Cripps was understood to have sent an S O S to the British war cabinet informing it that a concession to the Indians on their demand for their own defense member of the Viceroy's executive council might still save his mission.

The dominant All-India Congress Party held back for another day from saying "no" to Britain's proposals, even though the party's working committee was reported to have agreed unanimously to reject them unless they were altered radically. The working committee failed to agree, in another session tonight, on the form and substance of a resolution justifying its stand and making clear its demands, and a glimmer of hope for the success of Cripps' mission still obtained.

The committee meets again Thursday afternoon.

Congress party leaders were understood to be weighing with special care the possible reaction in the United States, China and the Soviet Union, on which India would have to depend for help if attacked by Japan.

Neither Nehru, who has the biggest voice in party affairs, nor Mohandas K. Gandhi, Congress' spiritual leader, was drafting the statement to justify the party's attitude, it was learned.

It was believed significant that this important task was intrusted to C. Rajagopalachari, for a time Congress president and former premier of Madras, who is probably the most moderate and pro-British member of the working committee.

Gandhi postponed for another three days his return to Wardha, indicating that he expected the negotiations to last at least that long.

Md. Sergeant Boasts MacArthur Citation

Hagerstown, Md., April 1.—The Army recruiting station here has a Gen. Douglas MacArthur memento proudly displayed on its wall. It is a citation signed by MacArthur and given many years ago to Sergt. John J. Chop, Army recruiter, for a job "well planned and well executed."

The citation was sent to Chop in 1926 when MacArthur was commanding general of the Third Corps Area for his efforts in CMTC work here.

12 on Life Raft Chew on Wood For 7 Days

By the Associated Press

New York, April 1.—The captain of a Norwegian freighter, torpedoed in the South Atlantic March 2, said today that he and 11 other survivors tossed about on a raft for seven days and nights before being rescued, and chewed bits of wood when their rations ran out.

The ship, the 2362-ton freighter Gunny, sank within 30 seconds after it was hit, Capt. Otto Henrichsen said. The Navy Department permitted mention of the ship's name because the sinking was reported previously from Mexico. Fourteen members of the crew died in the torpedoing.

"The next thing I knew after the explosion I was in the water, being drawn down by the tremendous suction," the captain said.

"While I was under water I shed my clothes and released the ship's papers which were weighing me down. I must have been down two minutes before the suction released me and I came to the surface. The ship had disappeared. I swam to a life raft."

Biscuits Soon Vanish

Then began seven long days and nights with 13 men trying to live on a few biscuits and an insufficient amount of water.

At first, the 53-year-old captain said, the men allowed themselves one biscuit a day but soon reduced the ration to one-half biscuit.

"When the water ran out," Henrichsen continued, "we whittled off bits of wood from the raft and chewed on them."

On the fourth day the chief engineer died and was buried at sea.

Henrichsen said he would go back to sea "of course."

The Gunny's survivors were rescued on March 9 by a Swedish ship and were taken to Progreso, Mexico.

Adrift for 45 Hours, 13 Are Landed Safely

Norfolk, Va., April 1 (AP).—Weak and numb from exposure, 13 crewmen of a torpedoed Panamanian merchant ship were landed at Norfolk Saturday night by a rescue vessel which picked them up after 45 hours adrift on the stormy Atlantic Ocean in one lifeboat and two rafts.

Two crew members were known dead and 38 were presumed lost, the Fifth Naval District said today in announcing the sinking of the medium-sized ship, which occurred early Thursday night. Seven of the 13 survivors were hospitalized here for treatment of exposure and minor injuries.

Fireman Ray Prichard, of Blytheville, Ark., said the ship went down three minutes after the unseen attacker fired a single torpedo into her bow. Two lifeboats were launched, he related, but one capsized and the other had a hole punched in its bow when hurled against the ship by heavy seas.

Goes Down Three Times

"I tried to slide down a rope into a lifeboat, but the sea threw me against the smokestack," the tow-haired blue-eyed 30-year-old Arkansan told newsmen. He was rendered partly unconscious and slid beneath the waves three times.

"When I came up the third time I grabbed a plank and got a death grip on it. I heard men in the water all around me calling for help. I was in the water for two hours when I saw an empty lifeboat. I climbed in and helped six or seven other men into the boat, including Capt. John Anderson," he said.

"The sea was rough and the boat was full of water," he continued. "This was the boat that had a hole in its bow. There were nine men in the boat, four men on one raft and two on the other raft.

Captain Dies Delirious

"The captain died Thursday night. He had been talking strange talk all night. I believe he had got a lick on the head. We kept his body in the boat but the next day it was washed overboard by a wave. Another man died and we kept his body in the boat until we were rescued.

"We were too weak from cold and exposure to row. We could not keep the boat's head into the sea and the rough sea kept breaking over the side.

"We saw the ship's dog, Boby, swimming in the water but we could not reach him to save him.

"Saturday we saw airplanes. They dropped flares to show the rescue ship where we were."

Fifth District Sells 192 Million in Bonds

Richmond, Va., April 1 (AP).—Sales of United States defense bonds in the Fifth Federal Reserve District from May, 1941, through February this year amounted to $192,276,072, or 4.5 per cent of the Nation's total.

Merchant Ship Crews Cause Half of Sinkings, Admiral Says

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

Elizabeth City, N. C., April 1.—Rear Admiral Manley H. Simons, commandant of the Fifth Naval District, declared here today that "at least half" of the merchant ships sunk off the Atlantic Coast were lost because they disobeyed the Navy's orders and that the "only way to get strict obedience is for the Navy to take over and operate the merchantmen."

He spoke at the commissioning exercises of a new operating base for the Navy's growing antisubmarine airship patrol.

"The merchantman crews do not keep vigil by day or watch by night," the ranking Navy officer said. "They do not obey orders. If they had there would have been many less casualties."

Governor Backs Charge

Gov. J. M. Broughton of North Carolina, who last week charged that a "lack of cooperation" between the Army and Navy was handicapping the war on U-boats, immediately took up Simons' statement that disobedience of the Navy's orders caused half of the sinkings.

Speaking after the Navy commandant at the exercises here, Broughton said he had confidence that the Navy will "solve the submarine problem" now that recent orders put them in complete charge of Army operations over the coastal waters.

"We need now one more step," he added, "Put the operation of tankers and freighters in the charge of the Navy."

Talking to reporters after the ceremonies Admiral Simons impliedly indorsed the North Carolina Governor's proposal that the Navy put its own crews on the merchantmen.

"It is the "only way" to make the ships obey orders, he stated.

Defends Record of Navy

Admiral Simons defended the Navy's record against German U-boats in the Atlantic. The sinkings, he said, are hitting "in a very vital spot" but the Axis has "paid a terrible price in both submarines and men."

Terming the undersea craft the "most efficient destructor ever invented by man," he pointed out that American subs are sinking "dozens of Japanese ships and returning home unscathed."

Opening of the new base here, the naval commandant said, will help destroy Axis submarines operating in the Middle Atlantic area and with the building of more blimps, planes and ships, the sinkings will be greatly lessened.

Capt. Charles E. Rosendahl, the Navy's leading lighter-than-air expert, declared that as production of new blimps is stepped up this summer, and other bases are opened, there will be a "noticeable reduction in merchantmen sinkings."

Sinkings at High Rate

He stated that "press reports which are undoubtedly incomplete" show that nearly 400,000 tons of Allied merchant ships have been sunk off the United States Atlantic coast during the first three months of 1942.

"This is at a rate at least four times as great as losses in coastal waters in the first World War," he added.

Rosendahl urged that the Nation do some "independent defense thinking" and carry forward the development of lighter than air.

"And besides the small nonrigid ship or blimp," Rosendahl added, "we cannot afford to overlook the very large rigid ship in this great worldwide war."

Just across Albemarle Sound from Kitty Hawk, scene of the first heavier than air flight by the Wright brothers, the six-million-dollar airship base covers several hundred acres. It is the only lighter than air station south of Lakehurst, N. J. There is another new base at South Weymouth, Mass., and another planned in Florida.

Australians Call to Colors All Men Between 18 and 35

By the Associated Press

Melbourne (Thursday), April 2.—All Australia's land forces were brought up to full war strength today and ordered into immediate battle training of the most intensive type so they may resist with maximum endurance the Japanese invasion which daily threatens this continent.

Single men between 18 and 45 and all married men between 18 and 35 were directed to report immediately for military service in an order issued on recommendation of Gen. Sir Thomas Blamey, chief of all Allied ground forces under the Supreme Commander, Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

The order, a product of Australia's recently regrouped command, came after a day of United States and Australian air attack in which the Allied planes, flying through tropical storms and stiff enemy resistance, blasted the Timor-New Guinea airdromes which menace Australia from two sides, and brought to 33 their three-day toll of enemy aircraft put out of action.

Training Intensified

War Minister Francis M. Forde said the total mobilization, ordered shortly after midnight, applied to men already earmarked for military duty but who, under previous plans, would not have been called up for some time.

Gen. Blamey said every Australian officer and enlisted men in all units now would be required to take part in the new period of intensive, supplementary training.

Blamey and all other senior officers now back to defend their homeland after the hard battles in which they have taken part in the Middle East and elsewhere have been insistent upon the need for hardening and training almost to the limit of the troops' endurance.

On the air front, revised official figures gave this tabulation of Allied successes since Monday: Four enemy planes certainly destroyed, 18 probably destroyed and 11 known to have been damaged.

Wednesday morning, Royal Australian Air Force bombers blasted the landing ground at Koepang, Dutch Timor, northwest of the Continent, causing many fires and explosions. Returning pilots said six enemy airplanes were believed destroyed on the ground and six others damaged.

In the same hours, Allied aircraft were throbbing through a tropical storm to New Guinea, the Japanese invasion springboard on the north, to drop their bombs directly on runways at the Salamaua Airdrome and then to get home safely.

No Allied aircraft was lost in either of the raids.

From Port Moresby, Allied New Guinea outpost, came word that a lone Australian bomber probably had accounted for two Japanese fighters over the Gulf of Huon, off northeast New Guinea, during a reconnaissance flight Tuesday.

Three Zero fighters pounced on the bomber. The turret gunner sent one down in flames and the pilot reported he believed he had got another in 12 minutes of action. The bomber was slightly damaged.

Over Port Moresby itself, a Japanese heavy bomber being used for reconnaisance was destroyed Tuesday and the crew killed.

These victories filled out the three-day total, adding 15 planes to the 18 destroyed, probably destroyed or damaged which Prime Minister John Curtin announced earlier as the preliminary Monday-Tuesday score.

children, were among those aboard the vessel when it was torpedoed twice in broad daylight.

[The attacking submarine apparently escaped the fire of a Navy gun crew which was aboard the doomed ship, it said.

[High praise was given the Navy gun crew which, according to several of the survivors, continued action against the U-boat until the decks were awash before attempting to save their own lives. It was believed that several of the five-man gun crew were drowned.

[The survivors were in such a crowded and weakened condition that they were unable to be of much help when they finally swung along side of the rescue vessel.

[However, it was said that Mrs. Mohoroyicic, mother of the newborn babe, climbed practically unaided up the side of the vessel on a cargo net and walked forward to take a shower before going to bed.—Editor's note.]

Flying Tigers Ask Gen. Huang For Ice Cream

Copyright, 1942, by Wide World

Bombay, April 1.—The most popular man in the American volunteer group is a Chinese shopping for ice cream freezers.

That gives you an idea of how food of the boys is Maj. Gen. Huang Jen Lin, in charge of feeding the group of fliers stationed at Kunming under Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's command.

Huang, who is 6 feet 3 inches and weighs 250 pounds, describes himself as a "restaurant man." His job is to provide typically American meals to the fliers in south China.

"The boys say they have never been fed better," he said. "Their only complaint is that they have no ice cream. But I'm hoping to buy ice cream freezers here."

Because things Americans like are short in China, Huang had a long shopping list, carrying such items as the best brand of American coffee, sweet corn, chewing gum, whisky, American magazines and swing records.

Adept at Slang

As director general of China's war areas service corps, Huang also takes personal responsibility for the A. V. G. hostel at Kunming. His contacts with the fliers have made him an adept in American slang.

"They're a swell bunch," he said. "The nicest guys I've ever had dealings with. I'm ready to break my neck to see that they're OK."

Huang supervises the A. V. G.'s daily menu: Breakfast—Three eggs, bacon, hot cakes, unlimited butter, jam, marmalade and coffee. Lunch—Soup, a meat course, four vegetables and dessert. Tea—Cakes, sandwiches and tea. Dinner—The same number of courses as lunch plus a salad.

For all this the aviators pay only one American dollar daily.

Huang has arranged with a club of Chinese students who studied in the United States to entertain the fliers in their homes. Three days a week he holds courses in Chinese and on Tuesdays the fliers attend a "know China club," where they listen to lectures on Chinese art, music and coins.

Dance Partners Scarce

He also formed the "Burma Road Club" for those who traveled at least 125 miles along the famous highway. Now, he said, he is trying to arrange weekly dances but he finds partners scarce and those who are jitterbugs even scarcer.

The group has a resident chaplain and Huang has also arranged for Chinese pastors to help him.

His greatest triumph, however, is the Sunday baseball game between the A. V. G. and the Chinese.

"I was tickled to death," he recalled, "when a Chinese boy born in Honolulu hit the first home run in this series."

The A. V. G., Huang said, has been scoring averages of 25 to 1 and sometimes 30 to 1 against Japanese airmen.

"Gosh, they're terrific," he said.

Gen. De Gaulle Pleads for 'Right to Fight'

By the Associated Press

London, April 1.—Gen. Charles de Gaulle, showing his resentment at the lack of recognition accorded his Free French movement by the United Nations, declared today that his followers would march "shoulder to shoulder with her Allies on the express condition that her Allies go forward with her."

(Forty-five words of this dispatch were deleted by censor.)

The Free French leader, addressing a luncheon audience, called the men of Vichy "infamous champions of capitulation," and then asked:

"How could anyone suppose, that in their attitude toward Fighting France (the Free French), the Democracies would indulge in an absurd kind of snobbery and let themselves be influenced by their regret at not finding in her ranks a great many erstwhile famous names?"

This was the first time that Gen. de Gaulle so openly and emphatically expressed the evident bewilderment of his faction and that of many Britons over the relations of the Allied governments to the Vichy regime, on the one hand, and to the fighting Free French on the other.

De Gaulle asked his audience another question:

"What could be said to French citizens who are being asked to resist in the midst of untold sufferings, if it had to be understood that Frenchmen who have been fighting—and what conditions—since September 3, 1939, would not be treated either as Allies or even as belligerents?"

Earlier it was announced that Gen. De Gaulle had placed Free French forces in the Pacific under Gen. Douglas MacArthur's supreme command. And the aid of these forces, based notably at Tahiti and new Caledonia on the supply routes to Australia, has been accepted by the United States Government.

Poles Bolster Red Garrisons in Iran

Ottawa, April 1 (INS).—Sixty thousand fully equipped Polish troops have crossed the border from Russia into Iran to bolster the British-Russian garrisons there, Polish Premier Gen. Wladyslaw Sikorski announced in Ottawa tonight.

This move was taken to forestall a possible spring drive by the Nazis through Iran into the Soviet Caucasus. The Polish troops were thought to be some of those released from Soviet prisons and concentration camps shortly after the Germans marched into Russia.

British Break Out of Burma Trap; Stilwell Leads Chinese at Front

By Daniel De Luce
Associated Press Staff Writer

With the Chinese Army on the Toungoo Front, Burma, April 1.—Under the incessant week-long blasting of Japanese dive-bombers and artillery, a Chinese garrison has slashed its way out of encircled Toungoo, forded the Sittang River and rejoined the main Chinese armies in a bloody withdrawal action personally directed by Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell with all the shrewd serenity of a chessmaster.

[A communique issued Wednesday night in Chunking said that severe fighting was continuing northwest of Toungoo, according to the United Press. The communique also disclosed that Japanese forces were repulsed with heavy losses March 24 when they attempted to dislodge Chinese troops from Manghan, Thai village near the Burmese southeastern border.]

This is the story of the fiercest battle yet fought in Burma:

The Japanese aiming north toward Mandalay encircled Toungoo a week ago. The Chinese garrison (reported by Chungking to have numbered from 8000 to 15,000 men, against 40,000 or more Japanese) was cut off from all aid, but stuck to shallow trenches and pits with machine guns and rifles, staving off repeated assaults.

Air Support Lacking

Gen. Stilwell, the lean, gray American commander of all Chinese forces in Burma, brought his armies from the north in an attempt to lift the siege.

For five days the counterattacks continued, but only a single convoy of ammunition got through to the Toungoo garrison. Heartened by this help, the men fought on.

By Sunday, however, it became evident that Toungoo could not be relieved. Lack of air support was a vital factor.

In short sleeves, calmly smoking a cigarette in a black holder, Gen. Stilwell went into a huddle with his Chinese aides, his fluent Chinese audible above the clatter of nearby machine guns.

He then flashed orders by radio to the Toungoo garrison to be ready to crash through the Japanese lines at a specified point on the northeast.

Feint Made to West

He moved his relief forces in a southwesterly direction, drawing off considerable Japanese strength to meet his feint. The British imperials in the Irrawaddy Valley farther west also began an attack to divert as much Japanese pressure as possible.

Yesterday, the scene was set and the Chinese in Toungoo dashed from their tree-screened positions out into the open.

The Japanese artillery laid down a blanketing fire, but the Chinese scattered and pressed on, splashed and swam across the Sittang under point-blank shelling, and reached the sanctuary of the farther hills through fields littered with Japanese dead.

Now the Chinese lines stand 12 miles north of Toungoo, around the smouldering ruins of the Nangyun railway station, which is a half-mile west of the Burma road and five miles south of Yedashe.

As the first big-scale test of the Japanese and Chinese armies in Burma, the final fall of Toungoo speaks for itself, but the issue might have been different if the Chinese forces now available had been able to reach the scene at the start of the Japanese encirclement maneuver.

TRAP BROKEN—As Japanese forces (black arrows) in Burma continued their northward drive on India, slashed their way out of encircled Toungoo (1). Under command of Lieut. Gen. Stilwell, they escaped to Nangyun, 12 miles north, where new defense lines have been set up. On the Prome front (2), British forces (white arrows) cut off at Shwedaung, executed a similar maneuver, to reach their main lines. Another Jap column was astride the Rangoon-Prome rail line and had reached the town of Paungde

By the United Press

New Delhi, April 1.—British troops have broken out of a Japanese encirclement and fallen back on Prome, gateway to the Burma oil fields, but the Japanese are massing only 10 miles to the south and have complete control of the air, an Allied communique revealed tonight.

With all territory behind them firmly in their hands, it appeared that the Japanese were preparing another flanking movement, possibly forcing the imperials to withdraw from Prome to prevent being cut off from their Chinese Allies in central Burma.

British Fight Way Out

Prome is on the east bank of the Irrawaddy River and the Japanese are driving up both the east and west banks, as well as up the Rangoon-Prome railway.

The British force, including units of the Gloucester, Yorkshire and Cameronian Highlander regiments and two Indian frontier battalions, had been encircled between Paungde, 30 miles south of Prome, and Shwedaunge, 10 miles south of Prome. They fought their way through the Japanese road blocks at Shwedaunge and moved on north to Prome, leaving all the territory from Shwedaunge south firmly in enemy hands.

Constant Air Bombardment

A communique issued at Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell's Allied headquarters here said the British imperial force occupying advance posts south of Prome anticipated the Japanese purpose in throwing blocks across the road at Shwedaunge. They counterattacked before the invaders could apply the squeeze from north and south and smashed their way back to Prome late Monday in heavy fighting that cost the Japanese heavily in casualties.

British fought "extremely successful actions" along the river despite the constant Japanese air bombardment, the communique said.

It explained that a British reserve force at Prome had been ready to strike south against the Shwedaunge road blocks but that it had not been necessary.

(In London, a British military commentator said that all the imperial troops except "a few stragglers" had rejoined their main forces for the defense of Prome.)

Communists Walk Out on Argentine

Santiago, April 1 (AP).—Seven Communist deputies in the Chilean chamber walked out today when Argentine Foreign Minister Enrique Ruiz Guinazu, a guest speaker, referred to the "similarity of international policy that Chile and Argentina had shown at the Rio de Janeiro conference." It was there that the two countries opposed an immediate diplomatic break with the Axis.

The Argentine Foreign Minister is here for the inauguration ceremony tomorrow of Chilean President-elect Juan Antonio Rios, who thus far has not indicated whether Chile will sever relations with the Axis.

Ruiz Guinazu's remarks bore out the belief of many that the Argentine Foreign Minister was trying to influence Chile to steer the same foreign policy adopted by Argentina—"support of Pan-American solidarity, but no break with the Axis."

enemy warehouses containing "large stocks of food, gasoline, ammunition and other military supplies," burning them to the ground, and destroyed several vehicles and other heavy military equipment.

"Our forces suffered no casualties," the communique said.

Paced by dive bombers hammering incessantly at Wainwright's front, aided by the big guns of Jap warships lying offshore in the China Sea, the attack dislodged a few defending outposts before coming squarely against the bayonets bright in the bamboo forests. Launched by elite shock troops, bolstered by artillery and by a storm of mortar fire, it carried forward into the outpost fringe taken a month ago by a surprise assault of Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

Fierce Attack Repulsed

It gained almost nothing at great cost. The elastic defensive system gave way here and there, outposts retiring before superior strength until they rolled back toward the main line of resistance.

There the line stiffened and held and the fight grew with mounting violence into a hand-to-hand melee of steel against steel, of grenades flashing thunderously in the dim jungle, of machine guns chattering savagely and filling the thick bamboo with a murderous crossfire. The Japanese attack faltered and stopped dead, bogged down in its tracks despite shock troops, despite dive bombers and naval guns.

The dive bombers and the naval guns kept up their long range attacks after the Japanese infantry had called it a day and halted to lick its wounds, baffled and badly hurt.

"Heavy fighting in Bataan ceased early today," said a War Department communique yesterday afternoon.

"Superior enemy numbers and fire power forced some of our outposts to withdraw a short distance, but no material change in the situation resulted. The enemy suffered heavy casualties while our losses were slight.

"Throughout April 1 the ground action in Bataan was limited to intensive patrol activity with occasional sharp clashes."

Japs Taken by Surprise

In a highly successful raid against the occupied city of Zamboanga, a native Sulu unit penetrated to the heart of the city itself, "taking the enemy completely by surprise." There they destroyed machine-gun nests and other military installations "inflicting heavy casualties."

Again "our troops withdrew without losses."

Corregidor Island, standing at the entrance to Manila Bay, was bombed again from the air, with little damage, while enemy batteries on the Cavite shore of the bay shelled Corregidor and its buttressing forts across the bay's mouth.

Resumption of activity on Luzon was taken here to indicate that Japanese Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashito is determined to throw the defenders from the principal island of the Philippines before the rainy season sets in a month from now.

Texts of the two communiques follow:

(Based on reports received up to 9:30 a. m., Eastern war time.).

"1. Phillippine theater:

"Japanese infantry opened a heavy attack on the right center of our line at about 8 p. m., March 31. Several waves of assault troops, supported by heavy mortar fire, made repeated attacks on our outposts. Some of our advanced positions were taken after fierce bayonet fighting. Our troops were reinforced and after several hours of savage hand-to-hand combat the enemy attack was brought to a halt before it reached our main line.

"A formal apology was made by the Japanese imperial high command in the Philippines for the aerial bombing of our base hospital in Bataan. In a radio broadcast a Japanese army spokesman declared that the bombing was unintentional.

"The enemy made a number of minor air raids on Corregidor and our rear areas in Bataan during the daylight hours of March 31. Most of these attacks were made by flights of two planes. The 116th air attack on Corregidor was brought to an abrupt end when the two heavy Japanese bombers engaged in the raid were shot down by our anti-aircraft artillery at about 5 p. m. March 31.

"2. There is nothing to report from other areas."

"1. The Philippine theater:

"Heavy fighting in Bataan ceased early today. Superior enemy numbers and fire power forced some of our outposts to withdraw a short distance, but no material change in the situation resulted. The enemy suffered heavy casualties while our losses were slight.

"Throughout April 1 the ground action in Bataan was limited to intensive patrol activity with occasional sharp clashes.

"Naval units shelled our positions along the west coast of Bataan, while dive bombers attacked our front lines.

"There were several harassing enemy air raids on Corregidor, which did little damage. During the afternoon these attacks were accompanied by the shelling of our fortifications by enemy batteries on the Cavite shore.

"In Mindanao our forces carried out two raids which proved highly successful. A small number of our troops raided a Japanese supply base in the vicinity of Digos in Davao Gulf. Twenty-two enemy warehouses, containing large stocks of food, gasoline and ammunition and other military supplies were burned to the ground. Several vehicles and other military equipment were destroyed. Our forces suffered no casualties.

"In the other raid one of our native Sulu units penetrated to the heart of the Japanese occupied city of Zamboanga, taking the enemy completely by surprise. Our troops destroyed several machine gun nests and other military installations, inflicting heavy casualties. Following the raid our troops withdrew without any losses.

Farish Admits Concealing Data

information on buna rubber after 1931, and he said that I. G. in 1940 refused to help Standard build synthetic rubber here, despite the fact that Germany and the United States were still at peace.

Such information from I. G.'s experience in building functioning rubber factories would have saved Standard thousands of dollars and would have hastened synthetic rubber production in the United States, Howard said.

Senator O'Mahoney drew the admission from President Farish that Standard concealed its butyl rubber process from Theodore A. Werkenthein, a Navy chemist sent by the Navy to inspect Standard's New Jersey synthetic rubber factory in 1939, when he read a note written allegedly by a company official.

"I took Mr. Werkenthein over to the "K" plant when it appeared that I could not very well steer his interest away from the process," the memorandum read. "I am quite certain that he left with no picture of the operations other than that a considerable amount of distillation and refrigeration is involved in the handling of the light hydrocarbons, and that refinery gas rather than straight butadiene is the raw material."

After reading it, O'Mahoney said, "I can very well understand why Standard Oil of New Jersey allowed itself to be trapped in the position of knowingly diverting the attention of a Navy representative."

Objects to Conclusions

Farish agreed that the memorandum was correct, but he objected vigorously to O'Mahoney's conclusion that Standard allowed itself to be trapped.

"Mr. Werkenthein was there on the invitation of the company," Farish said, and he expressed the belief that the government was interested only in the use, and not the production, of butyl rubber.

Farish said that all of Standard's information about petroleum-butyl rubber came from laboratory pilot units capable of producing half a ton of the synthetic a week. It was not until March 14, 1941, that Standard's engineers were ready to design a commercial unit that would operate satisfactory.

"From that time forward," he said, "our progress was rapid. The first appropriation from our board of $2,500,000 was made last June 11, and this original program was increased by a second appropriation of two million dollars on October 27. By the time of Pearl Harbor we had under construction 7300 tons a year of butyl rubber capacity with an estimated investment cost of $4,500,000."

Since Pearl Harbor, Farish said, Standard has been given a quota of 40,000 tons of butyl rubber but the plant, financed largely by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, has not yet entered production.

Senator Herring (Democrat), of Iowa, a committee member, defended Standard Oil and its officials after yesterday's hearing. He said he thought the company ought to be permitted to help beat Hitler and the Japanese, "then put the company officials in jail if necessary."

Herring said he was convinced by the Farish testimony that "if Standard hadn't obtained the basic patents from I. G. Farben, we wouldn't have toluol, the base for TNT, today. I think Mr. Farish will show that his organization was only carrying out the same practices that were engaged in by the big business corporations of America."

Senator Burton (Republican), of Ohio, another committee member, said he believed the investigation will result in the immediate release of synthtic rubber processes for the use of any company that can make it.

The hearing continues this morning at 10:30 with a Fraish on the stand.

State Department Reveals Cooperation

Supporting the testimony of W. S. Farish, president of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, before a Senate investigating committee Tuesday, in which he denied that Standard had made shipments of gasoline to Italian and German air lines in Brazil "contrary to the wishes of the State Department," State Department sources disclosed yesterday that Standard had cooperated in moves which led to the closing down of the Axis air lines and their substitution by American planes.

The State Department, it was learned, requested of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, during 1941 that supplies of gasoline to the Lati Air Line, operating a service between Italy and Brazil, and to the Condor Line, a German controlled line, which was furnishing a large part of the internal communications in Brazil, be delivered only from Standard stock instead of being consigned directly to the consumers, so that the Axis lines could obtain only small amounts that would be quickly used up.

The result of this policy, State Department sources said yesterday, was that after the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, both the Lati and Condor air lines were compelled to suspend operations and the personnel of their organizations was disbanded and placed under control by the Brazilian authorities.

Senate Orders Showdown on Labor

Board at the request of committeemen were attempting to devise a limitation that would get away from the inflexible flat cost basis.

Some senators said Nelson told the Appropriations Committee yesterday that the 6 per cent limit "just wouldn't work."

Barkley earlier told the Senate that the 6 per cent profits limit was adopted by the House without debate and with few members present and urged instead that high profits be reached by taxation in the pending revenue measure.

In debate on the Connally motion, the Senate heard appeals for revival of the "Baruch plan" for across-the-board ceilings to check inflation, requiring "the same sacrifices for civilians that are asked of the military."

Senator Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts urged Congress to impose "a ceiling on prices, ceilings on hours and wages, and a ceiling on profits, all in one law." The Administration recently was considering possible wage ceiling recommendations.

Senator Pepper (Democrat), of Florida, also appealed for omnibus action, in an apparently fruitless attempt to obtain appointment of a special committee to study the related questions during the recess.

Pepper, who conferred with Senate majority and minority leaders, said "many of us are concerned that this problem should be met as a whole." Pepper said "the problem today is not strikes," but lengthening of the work week, overtime and doubletime pay, and "entrance fees" for work on war projects. Pepper said he was "ready to proceed now" on such legislation, but only if curbs on business war profits and excess bonuses were considered at the same time.

Barkley said the special committee suggested by Pepper to deal with the whole problem was "worthy of consideration," but he did not see how the question of taxes, hours of work, overtime and profits could be dealt with in one omnibus bill or an over-all study completed in three weeks. He pointed out that the House had initial tax jurisdiction.

Clark Backs Baruch Plan

Senator Clark (Democrat), of Missouri, told the Senate that Congress passed up its opportunity to place ceilings on wages and profits as well as prices when it approved the price-control bill without the Baruch plan, which Clark favored.

The Missourian clashed hotly with Pepper on his call for a special committee study. He said the Florida Democrat was a member of the Senate Labor Committee, which had authority to bring out labor legislation pending before it. He said Pepper should move through this standing committee "instead of going around the country making speeches."

Pepper replied that he had urged that the House-passed Smith Bill be made the basis of Senate profits-labor legislation but was persuaded by Administration officials that more would be accomplished in the labor field by voluntary action. He accused Clark of indulging in "personalities" and said he had "seen the time when many Senators could spend their time better in a little closer contact with the people.

In 'Cooler' 3 Weeks

Postponement of action on the Connally amendment in effect provides a three-weeks "cooling off" period, before labor legislation goes to a real test in either House.

Members who have been bombarded with mail on the labor issue will have an opportunity to go home to test sentiment, and labor itself will have a chance to show whether it will make good on assurances of no strikes and cessation of doubletime for Sunday's and holidays.

The House, already in informal Easter recess, will return a week earlier than the Senate, with the sweeping Smith-Vinson curb on profits, overtime and closed shops still pending in the House Naval Committee. The Connally and Vinson measures will reach the floors of both houses at about the same time.

Victory Backbone

MacArthur Hails Labor Support

By the United Press

Gen. MacArthur's Headquarters, April 1.—Gen. Douglas MacArthur said today that American labor will be "the indestructible backbone" that will determine the outcome of the war, and expressed a firm conviction that workers at home will make a mighty effort to keep their soldiers at the front supplied.

Messages pledging labor's support were received by MacArthur from both the American Congress of Industrial Organization and the American Federation of Labor.

James B. Carey, secretary of the C. I. O., cabled MacArthur and his "valiant men" that "millions of members of our organization, working in the mines, mills and factories that comprise our arsenal of democracy are proud to be associated in this great fight. We know you are confident of ultimate victory over the forces of the Fascists and the Axis."

MacArthur's reply said:

"Appreciate deeply your message which just reached me. Labor has played its magnificent part in every great war our republic has fought and that it will do so again and prove the indestructible backbone that will determine the present vital struggle is my firm conviction. I have complete trust in the mighty effort I feel sure that you will put forth."

William Green, A. F. of L. president, said his organiation was behind the general five million strong.

"Your fearlessness and skill in the face of overwhelming odds makes every last one of us proud to be an American," Green cabled. "We solemnly pledge to invest one billion dollars of our earnings to help maintain you and our fighting men everywhere, and we further pledge we will build for our armed forces the finest and best war weapons the world has even produced."

"May God bless you all for your splendid patriotism," MacArthur replied.

R. A. F. 24 Years Old

London, April 1 (AP).—Britain's prized Royal Air Force, born of the union of the old Royal Flying Corps and the Naval Air Service, celebrated its twenty-fourth birthday today with the nation proudly claiming it had achieved numerical parity with the German air force.

Since the start of the war the R. A. F., with dominion and Allied squadrons and antiaircraft guns, has accounted for nearly 9000 Axis planes, British figures show.

A. F. L. Unit Quits Work Over Pay Rise Dispute

By the Associated Press

Camden, N. J., April 1.—The plant of the Radio Condenser Co., employing approximately 800 workers on war contracts, was closed today by a strike called by the A. F. of L. International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

Joseph Thompson, president of the union's local, declared the walkout was "100 per cent effective." Elmer G. Van Name, counsel for the company, confirmed that production had been halted but said the firm had no other comment to make "at this time."

The strike resulted, Thompson said, from the company's refusal of the union's request for a blanket 15 per cent wage increase. The union's contract with the company expired last midnight.

A company spokesman declared earlier that the union had been offered an 8 per cent wage increase, plus a bonus based on the cost of living.

Thompson said wages at the plant range from 37 cents an hour for beginners to $1.25 an hour for toolmakers and other skilled workers.

The company has sufficient Government contracts to assure continuous employment for two years Van Name said.

Independents Start Cotton Walkout

Fall River, Mass., April 1 (AP).—Members of the American Federation of Textile Operatives, an independent union, began walking out of several additional cotton mills today, threatening again to tie up plant operations which were resumed this week after a seven-day stoppage affecting 17,000 workers.

Union officials said that loom-fixers, slashertenders and knot tiers were idle in five mills and that additional workers would be called out. The plants affected immediately included three factories of the Berkshire Fine Spinning Co., the Luther Manufacturing Co. and the Richard Borden Manufacturing Co.

Union spokesmen said that the fresh walkout was in protest to a National Labor Relations Board announcement that it had canceled a hearing for a review of its ruling rejecting the A. F. T. O.'s petition to organize the mills on a craft basis.

Milk Deliveries Stopped in Strike

Rochester, N. Y., April 1 (AP).—All home milk deliveries in this city of 325,000 halted today when an estimated 900 drivers struck after collapse of wage negotiations.

Fred Kildorf, business agent of the Milkwagon Drivers Union (A. F. of L.), who estimated the number of drivers affected, said the union's demand for a $40 weekly wage and a 2 per cent commission on collections had been refused by the dealers association repregenting 68 dairies.

August S. Metz, president of the dealers association, which earlier had offered a $15 weekly wage and 9 per cent commissions, reported later the offer had been raised to $20 and 9 per cent with a guarantee the drivers would receive $41 weekly.

Senate Votes $100,000,000 Agency to Mobilize Small Business

The Senate yesterday voted 81 to 0 to mobilize thousands of small concerns into essential war production, an action broadening the powers of the War Production Board.

The Senate approved the creation of a 100-million-dollar WPB-controlled Smaller War Plants Corporation, with authority to make prime war contracts and farm them out to small business, after an unsuccessful fight to narrow the almost unlimited scope of the new agency.

Other Amendments Adopted

Amendments by Senator Bailey (Democrat), of North Carolina, to limit proposed loans to firms having less than $400,000 annual turnover, and to require that such concerns advance a "sound basis" for meeting production needs, were withdrawn by Bailey after bill sponsors said they would hamper the program.

Several other unopposed amendments were adopted directing the War Production Board to cooperate with the Director of Civilian Supply to utilize small business production for essential civilian purposes, imposing fines and imprisonment for fraudulent acts in obtaining loans and contracts, authorizing the corporation to use small banks as depositories and empowering the War and Navy Departments to guarantee loans made to contractors.

RFC Loans Authorized

Drawn by the Senate Small Business Committee, headed by Senator Murray (Democrat), of Montana, the bill was sent to the House, where it will receive prompt action after the Easter recess.

The bill vests in a five-man board of directors of the new corporation, appointed by War Production Chief Donald Nelson, the power to make loans for new plants or extension of old factories, and for the purchase of land, plants and equipment to speed small business production.

In addition, advances to small business could be made by the RFC under a liberalized loan policy "for any purpose deemed . . . to be advantageous to the national defense."

Nelson was authorized to appoint a special deputy whose sole responsibility would be to look after the welfare of small concerns.

The special WPB deputy would have authority to make inventories, deal with procurement officers, supervise subcontracts and otherwise aid small concerns to participate in the war production effort, as well as maintain essential civilian services.

Bailey contended that the bill as drawn placed no restrictions on the power of the new agency to make loans for any purpose without check. His amendment, limiting loan powers and requiring that firms receiving aid must have been "solvent going concerns December 1, 1941," encountered bipartisan opposition, led by Senator Taft (Republican), of Ohio.

Glass Supports Bailey

Bailey's amendment was supported by Senator Glass (Democrat), of Virginia, who said the corporation could make a single 100 million dollar loan if it chose, and Senator Johnson (Democrat), of Colorado, who said the 100 million dollars "wouldn't last two weeks."

"Under this bill," said Glass, "they can loan any amount of money to anybody for any damn purpose they please."

Taft argued that no such controls were imposed on lend-lease funds and that often insolvent firms must be brought into the war effort if production needs are to be met.

"Certainly you are going to lose money on this program," said Taft. "And don't you think that the RFC is not going to lose hundreds of millions of dollars on the loans it is making to big business."

Ersatz Rubber Outlook Good, Jones Says

By Nicholas P. Gregory
Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Jesse H. Jones, Secretary of Commerce, reiterated yesterday that the United States will have large quantities of synthetic rubber by the end of 1943 and disclosed that the Rubber Reserve Co. and Defense Plant Corporation have financed a potential output of 700,000 tons of synthetic rubber annually.

Jones, who has been under attack since the fall of Malaya and Sumatra for his alleged lack of preparations to encourage synthetic rubber production, revealed that 25 large companies are participating in the expanded program.

He said that in the next 18 months the Government and private industry expect to have in operation a sufficient number of synthetic rubber plants to turn out about 700,000 tons. This total is about 150,000 tons short of the amount of natural rubber consumed in 1941, before rationing of tires, cessation of auto manufacturing, and elimination of many everyday articles made of rubber.

Inquiry Progresses

Jones' announcement was made as the Senate Defense Investigating Committee wound up the second day of its inquiry into Assistant Attorney General Thurman S. Arnold's charges that the cartel arrangements of Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey) with a German trust retarded development of synthetic rubber in this country.

Standard's synthetic rubber patents have just been made available, royalty free, to all companies under a consent decree resulting from an antitrust complaint pressed by Arnold.

The companies participating in the joint Government-industry production program are Atlantic Refining Co., Carbide & Carbon Chemicals Co., Celanese Corporation of America, Cities Service Oil Co., Dow Chemical Co., E. I. du Pont de Nemours Co., Firestone Tire & Rubber Co., B. F. Goodrich Co., Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., Gulf Oil Co., Humble Oil Refining Co., Hycar Chemical Co., Koppers Co.

Other Firms Listed

Also Monsanto Chemical Co., Phillpis Petroleum Co., Pure Oil Co., Richfield Oil Corporation, Shell Union Oil Corporation, Sinclair Refining Co., Socony-Vacuum Oil Co., Inc., Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, Standard Oil Co. of Louisiana, the Texas Co. and the United States Rubber Co.

In addition to these 25 companies, two or three other groups of smaller rubber manufacturers will be given contracts and supplied with raw materials from some of the above large companies, Jones said.

"The plants to be built by the rubber companies require less time to construct than facilities for the production of the raw materials," Jones declared.

Ga. Official Warns U. S. Of Famine

Copyright by Chicago Sun

A famine in 24 months unless Secretary of Agriculture Claude Wickard and Price Administrator Leon Henderson are supplanted by friends of farmers, was predicted yesterday by Tom Linder, Georgia State agriculture commissioner.

Linder told members of the House and Senate Agriculture Committees and legislators from ten farm States that Wickard and Henderson are wrecking the farming industry. He demanded that "Congress get rid" of them before too much damage is done.

The informal meeting was presided over by R. A. Travatten, Minnesota agricultural commissioner, who told the group that the Administration's lend-lease program nullified the Price Contral Act and had disrupted market conditions.

As spokesman for Northern farmers, Travatten asserted that Government purchases of cheese for the British had upped prices and disrupted operation of creameries.

Travatten said the agriculture adjustment program could be dispensed with. This was in reply to a question by Senator Burton K. Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana. He said parity payments would be unnecessary if no Government effort is made to hold down prices, but added that soil conservation payments should be continued.

Wheeler said parity payments were based on the 1909-14 average, while manufactured goods bought by farmers today are "far above" prices then prevailing.

Linder warned that "Congress can't help agriculture" until Wickard and Henderson are ousted. "Both men have ignored the will of Congress as expressed in the price control bill providing for prices 110 per cent of parity," he charged.

Linder contended he had "inside information" that impending price orders on agricultural products is made available to representatives of big business and speculators.

"Wickard and Henderson arbitrarily are trying to force as low prices on the farmer as they can," Linder charged. "Unless Congress takes Wickard out of his job and puts a friend of agriculture in, Congress is wasting its time with legislation."

Asserting that Henderson's price control orders are determined in the interest of "international corporations and speculations," Linder claimed information had leaked to speculators and businessmen on retroactive dates used in fixing prices.

Linder also charged that huge imports of cocoanut oil and other vegetable oils had been encouraged because "international corporations headed up by Proctor & Gamble are interested in the oil."

Farm bloc members read into the committee record a resolution adopted by the National Association of State Agricultural Commissioners, Secretaries and Directors asking removal of all price restrictions on farm products and the prohibition of sales of Government-held farm stocks aimed at depressing prices.

As to the AAA, Linder said it could easily be dispensed with, to which Senator Wheeler added:

"That's the way the people in my State feel about it."

Store Clerks Strike

Cumberland, Md., April 1 (AP).—Louis Comba, representative of the Retail Clerks International Protective Association, said today a walkout of G. C. Murphy Co. clerks in a dispute over wages was 100 per cent effective. Comba said the union wants a $15.50 minimum starting wage, while the company offered $13.50—50 cents more than is now paid.

NYA Chief Cites Nazi Youth Training as Fine Example

By Robert De Vore
Post Staff Writer

Without giving up its "loathing of Nazi methods," the United States might well follow the example of Germany in training youths for work in war factories, Aubrey Williams, National Youth administrator, declared yesterday in a statement urging expansion of NYA's training program "wherever possible and necessary."

Williams, testifying in opposition to legislation to abolish NYA and the Civilian Conservation Corps, submitted for the record of the Senate Education and Labor Committee a prepared statement which also said:

"Germany and Japan are enemies powerful enough to threaten our national security because they have mobilized their full resources. The main resource of a nation is its trained man power. To insure adequate trained man power, Germany and Japan train not merely unemployed youth, but all youth.

Ten-fold Expansion Urged

"Instead of attempting to destroy the training program carried forward by the National Youth Administration, we should use it fully and expand it wherever possible and necessary. Where we now have 10 in training, we need 100; where we now have 1000, we need 10,000."

Three million workers were being trained in Germany in March, 1941, he said, "and, after two years of war, labor training continues on a scale never equalled in the United States," he added.

The foregoing statements were carried in a part of his prepared text that Williams was unable to read to the committee yesterday chiefly because of a series of brisk colloquies between Williams and committee members and Senator McKellar (Democrat), of Tennessee.

McKellar, author of the bill to terminate NYA and CCC except for the assignment of certain of their war activities to other agencies, declared that Williams favored redistribution of wealth after the NYA administrator emphasized as "the crux of the situation" the fact that "the average income of families of boys on our program is $627 a year."

"What I would like to redistribute is opportunity, and sometimes it takes money to do that," Williams replied.

Law Violations Charged

McKellar charged that NYA is taking youths out of the "finest kind" of State schools and putting them in camps, frequently in violation of State laws.

"But if they haven't got shoes and food, they can't take advantage of the schools you are talking about," responded Senator Rosier (Democrat), of West Virginia.

Williams told the committee he is in "complete accord" with the objective of cutting nonessential expenditures. From the start of the defense program, NYA has "followed a policy of converting" its facilities from a peacetime to a war program in vocational training. This "transition," he announced, was completed yesterday.

Of 421,000 youths who went from NYA projects into industry in 1941, 210,000 entered war industries, Williams stated. An additional 21,351 have entered military service, he said. Ten million workers must be added to war industries this year and at least half of them must be trained, he added.

Go to Easter Rites or Work, Nelson Advises

By the Associated Press

The War Production Board wishes all production workers "who do not intend to spend Easter Sunday as a day of religious observance" to put in a full day on April 5 at their machines, the office of Chairman Donald M. Nelson said yesterday.

Noting that Easter is a day of "very great religious significance," Nelson said he thought it "entirely proper" that workers desiring to spend part of the day away from their jobs for devotional reasons, should do so.

The comment was contained in a letter written to August W. Tuechter, president of the Cincinnati Bickford Tool Co., Cincinnati, Ohio, which was made public because of many inquiries on the point.

The letter said, in part:

"Easter is a day of very great religious significance, and I realize, of course, that many workers and executives in our war factories will wish to spend a part of the day away from their jobs in order to observe the day with proper devotion.

"I think it is entirely proper that they should do so, and the War Production Board is not asking any of them to forego their observance of Easter's rites and ceremonies.

"The board does, however, in view of the urgency of the situation, ask that all war-production workers who do not intend to spend Easter Sunday as a day of religious observance, put in a full day's work at their regular jobs."

Camp Lee Private Gets 65 Letters in One Day

Camp Lee, Va., April 1 (AP).—Private William J. Doyle, a former Weymouth, Mass., school teacher, of Company C, Seventh Quartermaster Training Regiment, received his mail personally from Capt. Paul D. Hinkel, the company commander—65 letters.

"I wanted to see the man who could get 65 letters at one time," the captain said.

Doyle admitted the majority of the letters were from girls but explained that they were his former pupils in high school who decided to deluge the teacher-soldier with correspondence.

Md. Woman Accused Of Threatening Teacher

Frederick, Md., April 1.—A 42-year-old woman of Middletown, was released on $1000 bond today on a charge of sending threatening letters to Ernest V. Rhodes, industrial arts instructor of Middletown and Brunswick High Schools. She was arrested by Sergt. Walter K. May, of the State police, who turned the case over to Federal authorities for grand jury action.

Sergt. May said the woman is specifically charged with threatening personal injury to Rhodes and sending obscene matter through the mails. He said the arrest followed an extensive investigation conducted since last December when Rhodes received the first letters.

East Tennessean Held in Sabotage At Alcoa Plant

Knoxville, Tenn., April 1 (AP).—The Federal Bureau of Investigation today held John W. Honey, 23-year-old former CCC enrollee, on a charge of un-American activity in his work at the Aluminum Co. of America plant at Alcoa.

Honey, who is married and the father of two children, was taken into custody last night.

FBI agents said Honey, a native east Tennesseean, was charged with wilfully failing to mix the proper amount of flux in liquid aluminum to remove impurities. They said this caused the loss of about four tons of metal daily for several days.

"I think you fellows ought to turn me loose," Honey told the officers at the hearing.

Entire Battleship Band Died At Pearl Harbor

Honolulu, April 1 (U.P.).—The entire ship's band of the U. S. S. Arizona was killed when that warship was sunk by the Japanese in their attack on December 7, the Navy revealed today.

The band numbered 21 men who were killed at their battle station, below decks, when the ship's magazine exploded. All died while passing ammunition to serve the warship's guns.

The band had finished near the top of a contest known as the "Battle of Music, 1941." Part of the Pearl Harbor recreation program.

After the bandsmen were killed the other contestants unanimously agreed to award a prize trophy to their memories.

The trophy, to be awarded annually, henceforth will be known as the "Arizona Trophy."

Deathwatch Kept On Tirpitz by Fleet

By the United Press

London, April 1.—British planes are keeping a close watch on the German battleship Tirpitz at her cliff-protected Norwegian berth, and heavy British warships are lurking nearby, ready to pounce on her if she moves, it was revealed tonight as Britain massed her forces to keep open both the Mediterranean and Arctic supply lines.

Naval circles made no secret of the fact that they regard the 35,000-ton Tirpitz, sister of the late Bismarck, as a special quarry. She has been holed up in a steep-sided fjord at Trondheim since British torpedo planes drove her there three weeks ago and was conspicuously absent in last weekend's German raid on a convoy bound for Murmansk.

Several other big German fleet units, including the pocket battleship Admiral Scheer and cruiser Hipper, and the damaged cruiser Prinz Eugen, are believed in the Trondheim area.

Naval spokesmen indicated that capital units of the home fleet, although badly needed elsewhere, will hold a deathwatch on the Tirpitz until apprised by air reconnaissance that she has left her berth, then they will close in to attack.

More Units in Arctic

Convoy escorts for the Arctic route to Russia around the Scandinavian Cape have already been strengthened, it was said, and heavier German air and naval attacks can be expected in that area with the lengthening days of spring.

Aviation circles said that the building up of Mediterranean defenses was also of vital importance in view of the increasing likelihood that Hitler will strike for the Suez and Middle East this spring. They pointed out that the Luftwaffe, from Sicilian bases, at present is waging a furious bombardment of Britain's "stationary aircraft carrier" in the Mediterranean—the island of Malta which is now averaging 10 alerts a day.

Malta, although bombed more than any spot on earth, has managed to hold out as a British outpost because it has the greatest concentration of antiaircraft defenses in the empire, it was said.

There was a raid today by a few Axis planes on Gibraltar—the first since July—possibly heralding a concerted assault to coincide with the offensive against Malta. Some bombs were dropped at Gibraltar, but caused neither damage nor casualties and antiaircraft fire soon drove the raiders away.

U. S. Planes Going to Middle Sea

An aviation spokesman said that American aircraft now being used in the Mediterranean include Douglas Bostons, Martin Baltimores and Marylands and Boeing Fortresses, all bombers. Lockheed Hudson reconnaissance craft and Curtiss Kittyhawk and Tomahawk fighters.

The need for more American planes in the Middle East continues urgent to mee the threat of a German drive on Egypt and the Suez Canal, the spokesman said. He added that the pilot problem was not so pressing since the empire's training system is furnishing more than enough flires to offset losses.

Naval circles said the Russian fleet's dominant position in the Black Sea acted as a great deterrent against the Germans' striking toward the Caucasus and Near East. The Russian fleet has held complete control over sea routes from Rumania during the Soviet counteroffensive and as long as they hold their base at Sevastopol the Germans cannot ferry troops by ship t othe Caucasus, it was said.

Malta Downs 6 Nazi Planes

Valetta, Malta, April 1 (AP).—Six German planes were shot down, at least three damaged and a number of others probably damaged during heavy sustained attacks on Malta today.

Sergt. Bosco: Come Home Or Be Busted

BOSCO

Unless Master Sergeant Bosco, who is A. W. O. L., returns in a day or so, he is in grave danger of being "busted" despite his excellent military record. It seems that there is no special spring leave for canine soldiers.

Bosco, a 96-pound Labrador retriever, is a full-fledged master sergeant in the Army. A few days after his birth in January, 1939, he started on duty as mascot at Fort Dupont, Del. Bosco worked his way up through the ranks in six different Army camps until last July. After a particularly heroic deed, he then was promoted to master sergeant by Col. Edward W. Timberlake, in charge of the Washington Antiaircraft command.

The promotion winning action took place in one of Bosco's earlier assignments when he was stationed with his owner, Sergt. Donald W. Kenna. Bosco was asleep in front of a guard house when a shot fired to frighten an escaping prisoner awakened him. He chased the fleeing prisoner, pushed him into a mud puddle and stood guard until the M. P.'s arrived to take the man into custody.

Col. Timberlake reports that Bosco is an ideal soldier. He knows and observes all military rules and signals. His current absence is due entirely to the early spring and the "fancies a young man is subject to."

Jap General Arrives in Manila To Rule Islands

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Lieut. Gen. Prince Yasuhiko Asaka has arrived in Manila to become Japanese governor general of the Philippine Islands, according to reliable information obtained here last night.

The prince is reported to have reached the Philippines at an unspecified time, prior to last Monday, in an armored plane with an escort of Japanese fighter planes. He is to become the ruler of the Philippines as a "colony of Japan" acting as representative of Emperor Hirohito.

It was Prince Asaka who was in direct command of the Japanese unit that captured Nanking in December, 1937, and whose troops were responsible for the rape of Nanking. Japanese forces in China were then under the command of Gen. Iwane Matsui, who was commander in chief with headquarters in Shanghai.

As a result of the world-wide condemnation of Japan for Nanking atrocities and the fact that Japan's army in China had run amuck, both Gen. Matsui and Prince Asaka were subsequently recalled to Tokyo. Gen. Shunroku Hata was appointed in Gen. Matsui's place with orders to restore discipline in Japan's army.

Briton Refers To RAF Aiding Our Sub Hunt

Sir Gerald Campbell, British minister, gave implied confirmation last night to recent reports that British planes have been sent to Cuba to aid in combating Axis submarines.

Detailing British assistance to the United States in the war, he said in a speech prepared for the Mutual Broadcasting system:

"We repair United States ships in our ports. We have lately supplied the equipment for the largest gun factory in the United States free of charge. We have sent you machine tools, some new guns of a special kind, ammunition and such treasured possessions as many Rolls-Royce aero engines.

"The other day you read of British fighter planes being sent to Cuba to help you in your fight against the U-boats which are taking a toll of United States and Allied ships in the Caribbean."

He did not amplify the reference but went on to say that "there are other ways in which we are lending our aid, but I mustn't tell them to you as they are secrets that the enemy would like to know even more than you would."

His address was an appeal to Americans not to "fall into the trap" set by Nazi propaganda to the effect that "Britain takes much from you but gives little in return."

Admiral's Son, Marine Corporal Get Hero's Medals

Mare Island Navy Yard, Calif., April 1 (AP).—Two 21-year-old heroes of Uncle Sam who clung to their posts although seriously hurt by Japanese fire on December 7, received the coveted Navy Cross today and the thanks of their President and country.

The two, both wounded in action, were Ensign Joseph K. Taussig, jr., of Jamestown, R. I., and Corpl. Harold R. Hazelwood, Stark City, Mo., of the Marine Corps.

Taussig, the son of Vice Admiral Joseph K. Taussig, retired, former commandant of the Fifth Naval District, received his award—the second highest the Navy has to offer—lying flat in bed with his left leg in a cast.

He beamed as Rear Admiral John W. Greenslade, commandant of the Twelfth Naval District, pinned the cross on his night shirt in behalf of Secretary Knox and President Roosevelt.

Hazelwood stood straight in his uniform, his left leg heavily bandaged, as Maj. Gen. William P. Upshur, commander of the Department of the Pacific, Marine Corps, pinned the award on him in the same room.

War Sidelights

Crowd Deserts Fire to See Ayres Enter 'Conchie' Camp

Wyeth, Oreg., April 1 (AP).—Lew Ayres, the motion picture actor who declined to bear arms for his country, registered at a quiet conscientious objectors' camp today.

Attended by a gallery which deserted a minor fire to witness his arrival, Ayres became the 171st enrollee at the camp, supported and operated by the Brethren and Mennonite churches.

After luncheon, which consisted of vegetable soup, curried rice, canned cherries, coffee with condensed cream, bread and butter, Ayres remarked:

"Gee, this is an ideal spot."

Ayres was assigned to handle emergency first aid work. He will arise at 6 a. m. and will depart with work gangs in nearby timber at 7:30 o'clock, after a brief devotional period. He will report back to camp at 5 p. m., and will retire at 10 o'clock. With others, he will be allowed three short recreational leaves a week.

Nazi Revolt Reported

London, April 1 (AP).—The Moscow radio reported today that "hunger revolts" took place a few days ago among workers of Essen, the German munitions center, and declared police guards and armed Storm Trooper formations were being increased at German war factories.

The Essen disturbances occurred when cutting of the bread ration was announced a few days ago, the radio said, and such slogans as "We want more bread," "Stop the war," and "Down with Hitler" appeared on factory walls.

Police carry out exercises which involve the erection of barricades and the posting of machineguns on roofs of neighboring buildings when the shifts are changing at Neukoelln and other factory districts of Berlin, the broadcast added, and special police committees have been formed to deal with sabotage.

Two important centers in Poland for the illicit sale of German army gasoline have been discovered, and high German officers of the army, air force and Gestapo have been arrested, it was said.

Mars' to Fly Soon

Baltimore, April 1 (AP).—Only a few minor parts stand between the world's largest flying boat and a test flight.

Glenn L. Martin Co. officials announced today the Mars, a 70-ton air battleship, would be flown sometimes this month. No delay on delivery of the needed parts was anticipated, it was added.

Damage the ship suffered in its first water test December 5 has been repaired and the test crew for the initial flights has been chosen.

THE LAMB: Pardon me, Madam. But I'm merely a symbol. The symbol of a gentler way to deal with your little difficulty.

THE LADY: You mean that little matter of constipation?

THE LAMB: Precisely. If you are one of those people with normal intestines who suffer from constipation due to lack of "bulk" in the diet, this crisp and toasty cereal, KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN, will not only correct the cause of the trouble, but by a way that is surprisingly pleasant, and gentle too.

THE LADY: Gentle? Hmm! — that sounds interesting. Go on—tell me more!

THE LAMB: You see, many medicinal laxatives work by prodding your intestines into action, or by drawing moisture into them from other parts of the body. But KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN works principally on the contents of the colon, helping you to have easy and normal elimination.

THE LADY: Well, I never! And it does look crisp and delicious. Let's try it.

A MESSAGE TO CONGRESS

From the YORK, PA., GAZETTE AND DAILY

TIME TO INVESTIGATE MARTIN DIES

One can no longer have any douht about Martin Dies. He is actively engaged in furthering the interests of our enemies. He is persisting in waging war against democracy, under the guise of an anti-Communist crusade, while his nation is at war with Naziism and Fascism to defend and preserve democracy. And in view of all the circumstances and of the information that is available to Mr. Dies he can have no possible excuse for his action. He is aiding and assisting the Nazis and their Fascist pals by issuing statements which have the effect not only of smearing high minded sincere liberals but of insulting our Russian ally as well. As Vice President Wallace said "The doubts and angers which this and similar statements of Mr. Dies tend to arouse in the public mind might as well come from Goebbels himself so far as their practical effect is concerned. As a matter of fact, the effect on our morale would be less damaging if Mr. Dies were on the Hitler payroll."

The Vice President's statement is plain talk and very much to the point. Were it not for the fact that the Lower House of Congress is in some respects an exclusive club in which, with few exceptions, members treat each other like fraternity brothers, Dies would certainly be refused further funds to carry on his obnoxious activities.

Deprived of the prestige of the Chairmanship of the House Committee purportedly investigating subversive alien activities, Dies would have little influence and less audience. The House of Representatives by continuing his committee and granting him funds to continue his carrying on becomes a party to his undermining of our war effort and must bear with him the responsibility therefor.

Anyone who has studied the Nazi technique boasted about by Hitler in his "Mein Kampf" and as developed and practiced by his propaganda chief Joseph Goebbels, cannot for a moment be deceived by the Dies methods. The Fascist propaganda in enemy or neutral countries follows a definite pattern. It announces antagonism to all isms including Fascism. But it spends its time denouncing Communism and worse—with accusing of Communism all except those with Fascist minds. This has been worked in most every country outside of Germany and Italy and Japan in which the Fascists have been able to build up propaganda machines. Anyone who has watched it anywhere recognizes it as soon as it appears some other place. It always follows the same pattern. Its purpose is to cause confusion and create suspicion and distrust and to divide opposition to Fascism. It presumes to attack Communism but through use of what it calls Communist Fronts and other devices it attacks all those it suspects of being incorruptible enemies of Fascism.

It has such certain and definite characteristics that it is easily recognized by any who have studied it or seen it in action.

We have long suspected Martin Dies of just this kind of thing. For that reason we have not hesitated to "attack" him and his methods and to call upon Congress to deny him opportunity for further harm. So far as the gentleman from Texas is concerned he is nothing to us one way or the other. We have no prejudices or grudges against him in any sense whatever. It is his actions to which we are opposed. Opposed because we sincerely believe that by such he is, and for some years past has been, an influence for great harm to this nation. He is and has been engaged for a considerable time in the kind of propaganda which cannot but be of great aid and comfort to Hitler and his fellow international highwaymen. He has used the Committee of which he has been Chairman and its hearings as a sounding board to obtain publicity for propaganda of great value to the Nazis, propaganda of the type that the Nazis inspire everywhere it is possible.

It is difficult to believe that Martin Dies recognizes the enormity of his action. His "intense itch for publicity," as Vice President Wallace put it, may be wholly responsible for his conduct. We trust so. Whatever may be the reason he has certainly by this time forfeited all rights to continue as chairman of any Committee of Congress. At the very least he should be immediately deprived of his ability to do further harm. The Justice Department should not permit it to stop there, however. He should be promptly investigated unbiasedly and unprejudicedly, but thoroughly, and proceeded against if the facts warrant.

LaGuardia Hit By Ousted Civil Service Chief

By the Associated Press

New York, April 1.—Paul J. Kern, ousted head of the municipal Civil Service Commission and one-time confidante and protege of Mayor F. H. LaGuardia, accused the Mayor today of repeatedly ordering the commission "to perform illegal, improper and unscrupulous acts."

In a petition field in State Supreme Court, Kern applied for his own reinstatement and that of Former Commissioner Wallace S. Sayre. Both were removed by the Mayor February 16.

Kern filed a long affidavit and copies of memoranda from the Mayor to support his allegations that LaGuardia personally attempted to rerate examination papers.

Kern further asserted that LaGuardia sought to tamper with the rules governing provisional employes and ordered the commission illegally to create and exempt position.

For many years a close friend and political associate of the mayor, Kern charged in his affidavit that LaGuardia attempted "to interfere with and impair the morale, discipline and effectiveness" of the commission.

He said that the commission's rejection of alleged improper demands "frequently resulted in intemperate and abusive attacks on the commission by th mayor."

He contended that his dismissal was "the culmination of an extended effort by the mayor over a period of time to reduce the independent status of the Civil Service Commission to that of pliant lackeys supple to his own will and whim and in contradition to the letter and the spirit of the civil service law."

Kern's affidavit charged that on one occasion the mayor personally attempted to rerate examination papers after the papers had been carefully and properly rated by expert commission examiners.

The commission, the affidavit stated, received a written communication form the mayor in this case which read in part:

"I have read yours of September 29, 1939, in re the case of R——. This does not answer the matter at all. For the thousandth time, I repeat—I have read the paper and the woman passed."

Kern said the woman's paper was not rerated despite the mayor's demand. The affidavit stated that on another occasion the mayor ordered the commission to retain a provisional appointee after he had failed an examination.

The petition for reinstatement contained a review of Kern's inquiry into the alleged use of city employes, material and equipment on a paving job at the Lake Mahopac estate of Edward J. Flynn, Democratic national chairman and Democratic leader of the Bronx. Kern charged that the mayor tried to obstruct the inquiry. The Flynn matter is now before the Bronx County grand jury.

Mystery of Pamphlets Left In Jurist's Chambers Is Solved

The person suspected by Justice T. Alan Goldsborough of "trying to prejudice" him against the Japanese agent, Ralph Townsend, turned out yesterday to be a Bureau of Standards scientist acting upon "the most proper motives."

Townsend having pleaded guilty of violating the Foreign Agents Act, the justice is considering whether, and how long to send him to jail. He announced Monday that he had received some pamphlets, including one written for the Japanese by Townsend, asked that the sender be found and declared he would send the person to jail for contempt of court.

Addams S. McAllister, assistant director of the Bureau of Standards, read of the justice's action in The Post Tuesday. He promptly called the courthouse and said he sent the pamphlets.

Summoned before Justice Goldsborough yesterday, McAllister explained that he had received the pamphlets in the mail some years ago, when Townsend was operating for the Japanese, and filed them away. They came to his attention recently, in connection with Townsend's plea of guilty. McAllister thought the material might be important. Being a scientist and not a lawyer, he believed the proper place to send them was the court. Because he wished no "self-advertising," he sent no letter with the pamphlets, believing they would speak for themselves.

Justice Goldsborough praised McAllister's "courage in coming forward" and said he thought it would be a "grievous miscarraige of justice" to punish him for the technical impropriety.

Order of Arrest 'Misses' Di Cicco

New York, April 1.—A lawyer and an attache of the sheriff's office sought vainly today to serve a civil order of arrest on Pasquale (Pat) Di Cicco, erstwhile Hollywood actors' agent and husband of the former Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt, as the aftermath of a fracas with Peter Joyce, a hotel clerk, over a cooking pot on St. Patrick's Day. The arrest order was a preliminary step in a $100,000 damage suit filed by Joyce.

Representative Rankin (Democrat), of Mississippi, told a Senate Immigration Subcommittee yesterday he would not be surprised if the citizens of Washington removed the Capital's famous Japanese cherry trees before the war is over.

Supplies to Be Flown to Serb Army, Aide Here Asserts

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Staff Writer

It is nearly a year now since the Germans announced that they had conquered Yugoslavia and "annihilated" its army.

Yesterday, however, Col. Bragutin Savich, No. 2 man in Yugoslavia's air force, sat in the Yugoslav Legation on Sixteenth street and talked about his still-defiant country as the scene of a possible new European front against Hitler.

The nucleous for an Allied offensive army in that part of the world, he said, already is available in Gen. Draja Mihailovic, the Balkan eagle, and his 100,000 guerillas in the Yugoslav Mountains.

Bulgars Reported Joining

This Chetnick army, sworn to fight for restoration of free government, is right on Hitler's flank, busily engaged in harassing the railroad lines between Germany's arsenals and Nazi strongholds in Bulgaria and Greece. All Axis efforts to smash Gen. Mihailovic's guerilla army have failed, and now it is reported that anti-Nazi Bulgars, Croats, Magyars, Austrians and Rumanians are flocking to his standard.

Col. Savich, who arrived here this week at the head of a Yugoslav military mission, is something of a fighting man himself, to judge from the decorations on his breast. But he is an unabashed hero worshipper where Gen. Mihailovic is concerned.

"The Germans have put a price of one million dollars on his head," Col. Savich said. "That is too small. He is worth much more than that."

Details Are Secret

Col. Savich and his mission came here to try to arrange for supplies for Gen. Mihailovic. He did not say what supplies he was after, but a dispatch from London the other day said that the guerilla army needed rifles, tommy guns, hand grenades and the like.

"Getting supplies to Gen. Mihailovic is reasonable and possible," Col. Savich said.

The exact details of the plan, he said, were secret. He disclosed, however, that they would be flown from some point in the Mediterranean area—possibly Syria—and dropped by parachute from long-range planes.

Col. Savich, looking back on Yugoslavia's dramatic decision to fight the Hitler juggernaut a year ago, said that this decision seriously affected Hitler's plans for attacking Russia, robbing him of two months of good fighting weather. He said it also may have dissuaded Hitler from going through Turkey last spring.

Trouble With His English

Col. Savich, who is second in command of the Yugoslav air force now stationed in the Middle East, began the study of English only ten months ago, and he was having trouble yesterday in trying to explain just what his homeland had done to disrupt Hitler's plans.

"You mean," said a reporter, trying to be helpful, "that Yugoslav threw a monkey wrench into the works."

"Yes, yes," said Col. Savich, grinning.

But he made it plain that it was a monkey wrench that could still play a powerful part in wrecking the Hitler machine.

Members of D. C. Moslem Sect Charged With Draft Violation

Indictments charging violation of the Selective Service Act were returned by the District Grand Jury yesterday against two members of a local Moslem sect, who allegedly declared that the laws of their faith forbade them to carry arms for the United States.

Accused of refusing to comply with various requirements of the draft law were Joseph Nipper, 42, and John W. Miller, 26, both Negroes. A third man, Harry M. Craighead, 25-year-old Negro who also claimed to be a Moslem, was indicted for the same offense several weeks ago. Two more similar cases were reported pending before the grand jury.

All of the men claim membership in a Ninth Street Temple of Allah, presided over by one Mohammed Rassoull, and cite their Moslem beliefs as their reason for not meeting draft law regulations.

Nipper, a window washer, was charged with refusing to register for the draft because he abided by the laws of Islam rather than those of the United States. G-men quoted him as follows:

"Mr. Rassoull has told us that we should be on the side of our nation Islam, which is composed of the dark peoples of the earth, consisting of the black, brown, red and yellow people.

"I am opposed to fighting in this war on the side of the United States, since this is a war between Christianity and Islam. Christianity is on the side of the white people and Islam is on that of the Asiatics, and I don't wish to fight against the Moslems."

Miller was said to have registered with Local Board No. 22, but allegedly would not complete his questionnaire, returning only a conscientious objector's form.

"I would rather go to jail than serve with the armed forces of the United States," Miller was reported to have said.

"By signing and completing the questionnaire I would be pledging myself to the American people. I follow the teaching of Allah brought to me through Allah's Apostle, Mohammed Rassoull, and when any law interferes with the teaching of Allah I will follow Allah's teaching."

Both men said that they had joined the "Islam Nation" in 1940, Nipper in the summer months and Miller in September.

The sect has its headquarters at 1527 Ninth Street Northwest, where they operate the Temple of Allah and their own school—the University of Islam. Its following was estimated to include around 200 persons. White people are barred from the meetings and Negroes who attend are searched before being admitted in accordance with a prohibition on tobacco, cosmetics and alcohol.

More Severe Restaurant Rules Ordered

Stringent health and sanitary regulations for District restaurants were adopted by the Commissioners yesterday in a move to minimize the danger of epidemics in the overcrowded Capital.

Enforcement of the rules was assured by a penalty clause which provides a $300 fine and revocation of license of violation or noncompliance with any of the sanitation provisions.

One provision requires physical examination of restaurant employes. The health officer was given the power to make examinations to determine whether the food-handlers have any communicable disease. Affected persons are prohibited from handling food.

Other regulations call for proper space, lighting, ventilation, dishwashing and toilet facilities for all food-serving establishments. No dogs except those leading the blind are permitted in dining rooms.

Senate Approves Navy Projects

The Senate authorized yesterday without objection a billion-dollar program of public works for the Navy.

Chairman Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts, of the Senate Naval Committee, said the projects include numerous storage facilities, aviation projects including lighter than air, housing, training, hospitals, research and radio facilities. The House has yet to act.

'General' Kimberland Indicted For Impersonating an Officer

Maynard Kimberland, who was said to have represented himself as a "general," was indicted for impersonating an officer by the District Grand Jury yesterday.

Kimberland was accused of having falsely asserted that he was a former West Virginia National Guard officer beginning duty here in Washington.

Investigators said Kimberland had blandly craried on lengthy correspondence with various Army officials—including letters to Gen. George Marshall and Undersecretary fo War Robert Patterson—in an attempt to wangle himself a defense job in Washington.

His arrest came after the motor pool here had sent out a car and chauffeur every day except one between January 1[illegible] and 23 on telephoned requests from a Gen. Kimberland at the Capitol Hotel. At the end of that time an officer connected with the motor service got suspicious, looked up the records and found that he had no Gen. Kimberland listed among the officers eligible for the use of cars.

Kimberland was reported to have said then that he was just beginning duty here, and that his name had probably not yet been placed on the list. Later he was quoted as saying that he thought he was entitled to use an Army car and driver because he was here looking for a wartime job.

The indictments were as follows:

Impersonation—Maynard Kimberland.

Violation of National Motor Vehicle Act—John A. Coulter, 29.

Pandering—William Miller, 43.

Violation of Selective Service Act—John W. Miller, 26, Negro; Joseph Nipper, 42, Negro.

Assault with dangerous weapon—Alex McDouglass, 38, Negro; Sidney Goodman, 42, Negro; William E. Smith, 30, Negro; Robert A. Sibley, jr., 29, two indictments, also charged with assault with intent to kill and assault on a police officer.

Grand larceny—Lee Carlton, 36, Negro; Ollie C. Herdison, 25; Archie Lucado, 27.

Housebreaking and larceny—Charles C. Mitchell, 20, Negro, seven indictments; Lee Watson, jr., 18, Negro.

Unauthorized use of auto—Samuel M. Appleby, 20.

Destroying Government property—George J. Bauer, 27.

Assault with intent to rape—Theodore R. Moore, 36, Negro.

Numbers law violations—Charles T. Unkle, 40.

Assault with dangerous weapon—Albert Speed, 50, Negro; Walter E. Garrett, 32, Negro.

Motors Firm Cut Army Ordnance Price 40 Million

Continental Motors, Inc., Muskegon, Mich., agreed yesterday after conferences with the War Department Price Adjustment Board, to reduce the overall price on its Army ordnance and Air Corps contracts by 40 million dollars.

The reduction was agreed to after a review of operations of contracts for several months, and after a series of conferences with the Army. Continental Motors officials said the reduction was made as the result of increased efficiency in its plants, improvements, and the "cooperation of employes."

The adjustment board was set up to review contracts let during the early days of the armament program. Many of these contracts were let in an effort to get the program under way rapidly on the basis of information available at this time, officials said. The review is now being carried out in the light of later developments.

Agencies Name 7 Members of Parking Board

The seven members of the Motor Vehicle Parking Agency were named yesterday by the District Commissioners, the Federal Works Administrator and the Secretary of the Interior.

The representative specified by law from the FWA is Public Roads Commissioner Thomas H. MacDonald, and the Interior representative is Irving C. Root, superintendent of National Capital Parks.

Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer was named from the Department of Vehicles and Traffic.

Other members appointed by the commissioners are: John G. Bell, vice president of Peoples Drug, for a one-year term; Francis A. Murray, vice president of the H. G. Smithy Real Estate Co., for a 2-year term; Harry S. Wender, vice president of the Federation of Citizens' Association, for a 3-year term; and Albert I. Cassell, Negro, architect and engineer, for a 4-year term.

Richard A. Murphy was made executive secretary, at a salary to be specified by the Civil Service Commission. Each of the seven members of the board are to receive $500 annually for their services.

An item of $5800 from the highway fund requested in the second deficiency appropriation bill now before the Senate is asked to operate the parking agency through the present fiscal year. For succeeding years the Commissioners are empowered to ask for appropriations in the regular District budget.

The parking agency, first proposed in the Whitehurst highway plan, was approved by Congress on February 16. In general its purpose is to regulate all types of off-street parking, and certain phases of on-street parking. Its immediate aim, however, is to set up a municipal parking system later to be turned over to private operators.

The powers granted the agency under the Congressional act include the acquisition and sale of property, and the purchase, installation and regulation of parking meters. Otherwise, its duties are strictly advisory.

The Commissioners have ordered the board to meet as soon as possible to work out its organization and scope of activity, including the election of a chairman.

Cabbies Get 4 More Days to Display Signs

Cab drivers were given a four-day extension on the deadline for installing "On Call" and "Off Duty" signs, which were supposed to have been on display yesterday. Because of the short notice given to prepare or purchase the signs, Public Utilities Chairman Gregory Hankin allowed them to hold over until April 6.

The order for the new signs was occasioned by complaints to the P. U. C. that cab drivers, upon being given a destination which did not please them, would refuse to drive the passenger on grounds that the cab was on call, or off duty. Under the new ruling, to give such an excuse the driver must be exhibiting one of these signs at the time he is hailed.

John H. Royer, jr., president of the D. C. Cab Owners Association, announced last night that the association has the signs available and will sell them at cost to any driver.

Tomorrow the new central call box system will be opened to five participating companies. The switchboard for the call boxes has been installed at the Columbian Building, 416 Fifth Street Northwest. It is serviced by 70 direct lines to apartment houses and hotels and 37 incoming trunk-lines as well as the lines to the 55 call boxes throughout the city.

Royer last night maintained his Tuesday estimate that many of the drivers in the city would go out of the business rather than invest in new licenses in the face of the rubber shortage.

Rites Mark Beginning Of Passover

By Robert Tate Allan
The Post Church Editor

Against the backdrop of another world fight for freedom, members of the Jewish faith last night ushered in the Passover season, marking their ancestors' exodus from Egypt and liberation from bondage.

Defenders of freedom, more than 900 Jewish soldiers, sailors and marines mingled with chaplains, friends and families at Seder services at the Willard Hotel—one of many Passover rites held in the city.

From an altar at the head table, Chaplain Aryeh Lev, of the Chief of Chaplains Office, conducted the ancient rites that brought a touch of nostalgia to the throng of lads away from homes where Seder services are an annual custom.

Reads From Hagada

Chaplain Lev might have been their own father reading from the Hagada, just as the family head does at Passover season:

"How much then are we indebted for the manifold favors the Omnipresent hath conferred upon us? He brought us forth out of Egypt, executed judgment on the Egyptians, and on their gods; slew their firstborn, gave us their wealth; divided the seas for us, caused us to pass through the dry land; plunged our oppressors in the midst of the sea; supplied us with necessaries in the wilderness 40 years; gave us manna to eat; gave us the Sabbath; brought us near to Mount Sinai; gave us His law; brought us into the land of Israel, and built for us the holy temple, wherein to make atonement for all our sins."

Chaplain Lev elevated a dish of matzos and asked:

"These unleavened cakes, wherefore do we eat them? Because there was not sufficient time for the dough of our ancestors to leaven, before the Holy Supreme King of Kings, blessed be He! appeared unto them. And it is said: And they baked unleavened cakes of the dough which they brought forth out of Egypt; for it was not leavened, because they were thrust out of Egypt; and could not tarry, neither had they prepared for themselves any victuals."

In the average Jewish home, the youngest son of each family generally recites four questions concerning the meaning and spirit of Passover.

Memorial to Freedom

The matzos eaten at the Seder feast is a memorial to the Jews' freedom; the bitter herbs recall their servitude and the wine is used for blessing.

The service men and their friends were guests of the Army and Navy committee of Washington, the Jewish Welfare Board and the Washington Post, No. 58, of the Jewish War Veterans of the United States, and its ladies' auxiliary.

Among the other guests were Chaplains Alva R. Brasted, Fort Belvoir; J. R. McAllister, Fort Meade; Christian Westphalen, Bolling Field; Thomas M. Midura, Seventy-first Coast Artillery (AA), and Roy R. Marken, Marine Barracks, Quantico.

The Washington Hebrew Congregation held a Seder supper last night at the temple for its members and friends. There will be Passover services there today at 11 a. m., and in orthodox synagogues today and tomorrow at 8:30 a. m.

The Hebrew Travelers' Sheltering Society held a Seder celebration for wayfarers last night at 407 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest, and also will welcome them tonight.

Burns Selected As New Head of Army Ordnance

President Roosevelt yesterday selected Maj. Gen. James H. Burns, Deputy Lend-Lease Administrator and Executive of the Munitions Assignment Board, to be Ordnance Chief of the Army.

The President sent Burns' nomination to the Senate, where confirmation is expected shortly. Upon confirmation he will take over next June from Maj. Gen. Charles M. Wesson, who is ending a four-year tour of duty in that post.

The ordnance job, involving problems of mass production of the light and heavy guns for American and United Nations warfare, is one of the most important in the Army. Burns is rated one of the Army's outstanding experts in this field, and additionally will bring to the new job his experience in handling ordnance needs for Britain and other Allies during his service as virtual technical general manager of lend-lease.

Leroy Risk Named General Manager Of Hotel 2400

E. Leroy Risk has been appointed general manager of Hotel 2400, it was announced yesterday.

A native of Reading, Pa., Risk has been associated for the past 10 years with the Ambassador Hotel here. He started his hotel career with the Knickerbocker Hotel, New York City, and later was with the Ritz Carlton, Atlantic City, N. J., and Wardman Park here.

During World War 1, Risk served in the United States Air Corps as a surgeon. He was on the Peace Committee with President Wilson, later as unofficial delegate on the Reparation Committee.

He is married and has two children.

Lag in Red Cross Drive Perils Activities in D. C., Lund Warns

The District Red Cross yesterday declared that its services will have to be drastically curtailed unless the District's quota of $750,000 is reached.

Otto Lund, chapter manager, expressed his gratitude that the lag in the war fund campaign here had been mentioned at President Roosevelt's press conference, and pointed out that 15 per cent of the District's fund is retained for the Washington chapter.

"Red Cross service in Washington," he said, "has been scheduled upon the expectation that the District will meet its quota. Fifteen per cent of $750,000 is $112,500. The District has now raised $484,231. Of that sum, 15 per cent is $72,634, which means that the District is still short by $39,866."

Lund said that so far this year the District Red Cross has graduated 70 classes in home nursing, one-third more than in the entire year in 1941.

Danger of Epidemics

"We should bear in mind," he said, "that wartime crowding is apt to bring epidemics. The importance of nurses' aides to relieve the overburdened nurses in our own hospitals has been stressed again and again by hospitals, doctors and officials. In order to make this expansion we must raise our quota.

"Then, too, home service provides a liaison between service men and their families and covers a wide field of service to needy families of men in service. Additional case workers and stenographers are needed here. This program, too, will have to be curtailed if our quota is not met."

Lund said the chapter has voted to provide five mobile canteens for use here. These are used not only to help service men stationed here but will be desperately needed if Washington is bombed. So far $3000 has been donated toward this, but $7000 more is needed, he said.

Groups Commended

Courtenay Barber, District campaign manager, praised the general business group, which has already met its quota, and the Government Printing Office, Navy Yard, Department of Agriculture and Treasury Department for their support. At the same time, S. Sloan Colt, acting national chairman of the Red Cross, expressed appreciation to Henry Monsky, president of B'nai B'rith, for support of his units to the war fund campaign. Monsky reported that B'nai B'rith had gone over the top in its pledge of $50,000 to the national drve for 65 million dollars.

It was pointed out that some of Washington's wealthiest citizens have failed to give their support, "the same thing being true of a large group of doctors, dentists and lawyers."

Both Lund and Barber said that, barring a major disaster all over the country, this will be the last Red Cross drive until next spring. There will be no fall membership drive this year.

Soldier Learns Brother Is Alive In Philippines

His best news since Christmas had come yesterday to Private William F. Copper, 28, of the Washington antiaircraft command, in the announcement that his brother was listed among the Americans believed alive and interned in the Philippines.

COPPER

This brother is Robert G. Copper, 26, a graduate of the University of Virginia, who went to the Philippines a year ago as an electrical engineer for work at Cavite. The last word Private Copper had received from his brother was a cablegram sent December 22, saying "Merry Christmas, OK."

Both Private Copper and his brother are natives of Waynesboro, Va. Private Copper has been stationed here since January 7.

Pastor Emphasizes Value Of Periods of Repose, Silence

The value of periods of silence and repose in a streamlined age was stressed yesterday by the Rev. Dr. Fred S. Buschmeyer, pastor of Mount Pleasant Congregational Church.

He addressed Washington Federation of Churches' services at Epiphany Episcopal Church, 1317 G Street Northwest.

"Great living invariably demands giant hours of silence and repose," said the clergyman. "Small minds and souls skip with swift nervousness over the surface of life, like fragile water bugs on a summer stream.

"Great hearts and minds move like giant icebergs undeterred by surface winds and currents, because the center of their being is deeply hidden from the casual glance."

"The Cross gives body and beauty to art, architecture, music and literature," said the Rev. Daniel W. Justice yesterday at the Penn Theater, where he addressed Southeast churches' Lenten services. He is pastor of Trinity Methodist Church.

"Remove the Cross from music, and what would happen to Handel's 'Messiah,' Bach's 'Mass In D Minor,' Mozart's 'Requiem' and Schubert's 'Benediction?'" he asked.

"In human experience, the Cross continues as one of the loveliest of all personal possessions, representing love, redemption, sacrifice, service and brotherliness," he declared.

The Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, today at noon, will conclude his series of Holy Week messages at Epiphany Church. Members of D. C. Moslem Sect Charged With Draft Violation

Indictments charging violation of the Selective Service Act were returned by the District Grand Jury yesterday against two members of a local Moslem sect, who allegedly declared that the laws of their faith forbade them to carry arms for the United States.

Accused of refusing to comply with various requirements of the draft law were Joseph Nipper, 42, and John W. Miller, 26, both Negroes. A third man, Harry M. Craighead, 25-year-old Negro who also claimed to be a Moslem, was indicted for the same offense several weeks ago. Two more similar cases were reported pending before the grand jury.

All of the men claim membership in a Ninth Street Temple of Allah, presided over by one Mohammed Rassoull, and cite their Moslem beliefs as their reason for not meeting draft law regulations.

Nipper, a window washer, was charged with refusing to register for the draft because he abided by the laws of Islam rather than those of the United States. G-men quoted him as follows:

"Mr. Rassoull has told us that we should be on the side of our nation Islam, which is composed of the dark peoples of the earth, consisting of the black, brown, red and yellow people.

"I am opposed to fighting in this war on the side of the United States, since this is a war between Christianity and Islam. Christianity is on the side of the white people and Islam is on that of the Asiatics, and I don't wish to fight against the Moslems."

Miller was said to have registered with Local Board No. 22, but allegedly would not complete his questionnaire, returning only a conscientious objector's form.

"I would rather go to jail than serve with the armed forces of the United States," Miller was reported to have said.

"By signing and completing the questionnaire I would be pledging myself to the American people. I follow the teaching of Allah brought to me through Allah's Apostle, Mohammed Rassoull, and when any law interferes with the teaching of Allah I will follow Allah's teaching."

Both men said that they had joined the "Islam Nation" in 1940, Nipper in the summer months and Miller in September.

The sect has its headquarters at 1527 Ninth Street Northwest, where they operate the Temple of Allah and their own school—the University of Islam. Its following was estimated to include around 200 persons. White people are barred from the meetings and Negroes who attend are searched before being admitted in accordance with a prohibition on tobacco, cosmetics and alcohol.

More Severe Restaurant Rules Ordered

Stringent health and sanitary regulations for District restaurants were adopted by the Commissioners yesterday in a move to minimize the danger of epidemics in the overcrowded Capital.

Enforcement of the rules was assured by a penalty clause which provides a $300 fine and revocation of license of violation or noncompliance with any of the sanitation provisions.

One provision requires physical examination of restaurant employes. The health officer was given the power to make examinations to determine whether the food-handlers have any communicable disease. Affected persons are prohibited from handling food.

Other regulations call for proper space, lighting, ventilation, dishwashing and toilet facilities for all food-serving establishments. No dogs except those leading the blind are permitted in dining rooms.

Senate Approves Navy Projects

The Senate authorized yesterday without objection a billion-dollar program of public works for the Navy.

Chairman Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts, of the Senate Naval Committee, said the projects include numerous storage facilities, aviation projects including lighter than air, housing, training, hospitals, research and radio facilities. The House has yet to act.

'General' Kimberland Indicted For Impersonating an Officer

Maynard Kimberland, who was said to have represented himself as a "general," was indicted for impersonating an officer by the District Grand Jury yesterday.

Kimberland was accused of having falsely asserted that he was a former West Virginia National Guard officer beginning duty here in Washington.

Investigators said Kimberland had blandly crarried on lengthy correspondence with various Army officials—including letters to Gen. George Marshall and Undersecretary fo War Robert Patterson—in an attempt to wangle himself a defense job in Washington.

His arrest came after the motor pool here had sent out a car and chauffeur every day except one between January 1[illegible] and 23 on telephoned requests from a Gen. Kimberland at the Capitol Hotel. At the end of that time an officer connected with the motor service got suspicious, looked up the records and found that he had no Gen. Kimberland listed among the officers eligible for the use of cars.

Kimberland was reported to have said then that he was just beginning duty here, and that his name had probably not yet been placed on the list. Later he was quoted as saying that he thought he was entitled to use an Army car and driver because he was here looking for a wartime job.

The indictments were as follows:

Violation of National Motor Vehicle Act—John A. Coulter, 29.

Violation of Selective Service Act—John W. Miller, 26, Negro; Joseph Nipper, 42, Negro.

Assault with dangerous weapon—Alex McDouglass, 38, Negro; Sidney Goodman, 42, Negro; William E. Smith, 30, Negro; Robert A. Sibley, jr., 29, two indictments, also charged with assault with intent to kill and assault on a police officer.

Grand larceny—Lee Carlton, 36, Negro; Ollie C. Herdison, 25; Archie Lucado, 27.

Housebreaking and larceny—Charles C. Mitchell, 20, Negro, seven indictments; Lee Watson, jr., 18, Negro.

Unauthorized use of auto—Samuel M. Appleby, 20.

Destroying Government property—George J. Bauer, 27.

Assault with intent to rape—Theodore R. Moore, 36, Negro.

Numbers law violations—Charles T. Unkle, 40.

Assault with dangerous weapon—Albert Speed, 50, Negro; Walter E. Garrett, 32, Negro.

Robbery—Harrison French; William Outlaw.

Housebreaking and larceny—Leon H. Christian, 29, Negro; Beverly T. Rice, 23, Negro; Irving F. Brown; Walter E. Garrett. Two charges dismissed.

Unauthorized use of auto—Alfred E. Cressel.

Motors Firm Cut Army Ordnance Price 40 Million

Continental Motors, Inc., Muskegon, Mich., agreed yesterday after conferences with the War Department Price Adjustment Board, to reduce the overall price on its Army ordnance and Air Corps contracts by 40 million dollars.

The reduction was agreed to after a review of operations of contracts for several months, and after a series of conferences with the Army. Continental Motors officials said the reduction was made as the result of increased efficiency in its plants, improvements, and the "cooperation of employes."

The adjustment board was set up to review contracts let during the early days of the armament program. Many of these contracts were let in an effort to get the program under way rapidly on the basis of information available at this time, officials said. The review is now being carried out in the light of later developments.

Agencies Name 7 Members of Parking Board

The seven members of the Motor Vehicle Parking Agency were named yesterday by the District Commissioners, the Federal Works Administrator and the Secretary of the Interior.

The representative specified by law from the FWA is Public Roads Commissioner Thomas H. MacDonald, and the Interior representative is Irving C. Root, superintendent of National Capital Parks.

Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer was named from the Department of Vehicles and Traffic.

Other members appointed by the commissioners are: John G. Bell, vice president of Peoples Drug, for a one-year term; Francis A. Murray, vice president of the H. G. Smithy Real Estate Co., for a 2-year term; Harry S. Wender, vice president of the Federation of Citizens' Association, for a 3-year term; and Albert I. Cassell, Negro, architect and engineer, for a 4-year term.

Richard A. Murphy was made executive secretary, at a salary to be specified by the Civil Service Commission. Each of the seven members of the board are to receive $500 annually for their services.

An item of $5800 from the highway fund requested in the second deficiency appropriation bill now before the Senate is asked to operate the parking agency through the present fiscal year. For succeeding years the Commissioners are empowered to ask for appropriations in the regular District budget.

The parking agency, first proposed in the Whitehurst highway plan, was approved by Congress on February 16. In general its purpose is to regulate all types of off-street parking, and certain phases of on-street parking. Its immediate aim, however, is to set up a municipal parking system later to be turned over to private operators.

The powers granted the agency under the Congressional act include the acquisition and sale of property, and the purchase, installation and regulation of parking meters. Otherwise, its duties are strictly advisory.

The Commissioners have ordered the board to meet as soon as possible to work out its organization and scope of activity, including the election of a chairman.

Cabbies Get 4 More Days to Display Signs

Cab drivers were given a four-day extension on the deadline for installing "On Call" and "Off Duty" signs, which were supposed to have been on display yesterday. Because of the short notice given to prepare or purchase the signs, Public Utilities Chairman Gregory Hankin allowed them to hold over until April 6.

The order for the new signs was occasioned by complaints to the P. U. C. that cab drivers, upon being given a destination which did not please them, would refuse to drive the passenger on grounds that the cab was on call, or off duty. Under the new ruling, to give such an excuse the driver must be exhibiting one of these signs at the time he is hailed.

John H. Royer, jr., president of the D. C. Cab Owners Association, announced last night that the association has the signs available and will sell them at cost to any driver.

Tomorrow the new central call box system will be opened to five participating companies. The switchboard for the call boxes has been installed at the Columbian Building, 416 Fifth Street Northwest. It is serviced by 70 direct lines to apartment houses and hotels and 37 incoming trunk lines as well as the lines to the 55 call boxes throughout the city.

Royer last night maintained his Tuesday estimate that many of the drivers in the city would go out of the business rather than invest in new licenses in the face of the rubber shortage.

Rites Mark Beginning Of Passover

By Robert Tate Allan
The Post Church Editor

Against the backdrop of another world fight for freedom, members of the Jewish faith last night ushered in the Passover season, marking their ancestors' exodus from Egypt and liberation from bondage.

Defenders of freedom, more than 800 Jewish soldiers, sailors and marines mingled with chaplains, friends and families at Seder services at the Willard Hotel—one of many Passover rites held in the city.

From an altar at the head table, Chaplain Aryeh Lev, of the Chief of Chaplains Office, conducted the ancient rites that brought a touch of nostalgia to the throng of lads away from homes where Seder services are an annual custom.

Reads From Hagada

Chaplain Lev might have been their own father reading from the Hagada, just as the family head does at Passover season:

"How much then are we indebted for the manifold favors the Omnipresent hath conferred upon us? He brought us forth out of Egypt, executed judgment on the Egyptians, and on their gods; slew their first-born, gave us their wealth; divided the seas for us, caused us to pass through the dry land; plunged our oppressors in the midst of the sea; supplied us with necessaries in the wilderness 40 years; gave us manna to eat; gave us the Sabbath; brought us near to Mount Sinai; gave us His law; brought us into the land of Israel, and built for us the holy temple, wherein to make atonement for all our sins."

Chaplain Lev elevated a dish of matzos and asked:

"These unleavened cakes, wherefore do we eat them? Because there was not sufficient time for the dough of our ancestors to leaven, before the Holy Supreme King of Kings, blessed be He! appeared unto them. And it is said: And they baked unleavened cakes of the dough which they brought forth out of Egypt; for it was not leavened, because they were thrust out of Egypt; and could not tarry, neither had they prepared for themselves any victuals."

In the average Jewish home, the youngest son of each family generally recites four questions concerning the meaning and spirit of Passover.

Memorial to Freedom

The matzos eaten at the Seder feast is a memorial to the Jews' freedom; the bitter herbs recall their servitude and the wine is used for blessing.

The service men and their friends were guests of the Army and Navy committee of Washington, the Jewish Welfare Board and the Washington Post, No. 58, of the Jewish War Veterans of the United States, and its ladies' auxiliary.

Among the other guests were Chaplains Alva R. Brasted, Fort Belvoir; J. R. McAllister, Fort Meade; Christian Westphalen, Bolling Field; Thomas M. Midura, Seventy-first Coast Artillery (AA), and Roy R. Marken, Marine Barracks, Quantico.

The Washington Hebrew Congregation held a Seder supper last night at the temple for its members and friends. There will be Passover services there today at 11 a. m., and in orthodox synagogues today and tomorrow at 8:30 a. m.

The Hebrew Travelers' Sheltering Society held a Seder celebration for wayfarers last night at 407 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest, and also will welcome them tonight.

Burns Selected As New Head of Army Ordnance

President Roosevelt yesterday selected Maj. Gen. James H. Burns, Deputy Lend-Lease Administrator and Executive of the Munitions Assignment Board, to be Ordnance Chief of the Army.

The President sent Burns' nomination to the Senate, where confirmation is expected shortly. Upon confirmation he will take over next June from Maj. Gen. Charles M. Wesson, who is ending a four-year tour of duty in that post.

The ordnance job, involving problems of mass production of the light and heavy guns for American and United Nations warfare, is one of the most important in the Army. Burns is rated one of the Army's outstanding experts in this field, and additionally will bring to the new job his experience in handling ordnance needs for Britain and other Allies during his service as virtual technical general manager of lend-lease.

Leroy Risk Named General Manager Of Hotel 2400

E. Leroy Risk has been appointed general manager of Hotel 2400, it was announced yesterday.

A native of Reading, Pa., Risk has been associated for the past 10 years with the Ambassador Hotel here. He started his hotel career with the Knickerbocker Hotel, New York City, and later was with the Ritz Carlton, Atlantic City, N. J., and Wardman Park here.

During World War 1, Risk served in the United States Air Corps as a surgeon. He was on the Peace Committee with President Wilson, later as unofficial delegate on the Reparation Committee.

He is married and has two children.

Lag in Red Cross Drive Perils Activities in D. C., Lund Warns

The District Red Cross yesterday declared that its services will have to be drastically curtailed unless the District's quota of $750,000 is reached.

Otto Lund, chapter manager, expressed his gratitude that the lag in the war fund campaign here had been mentioned at President Roosevelt's press conference, and pointed out that 15 per cent of the District's fund is retained for the Washington chapter.

"Red Cross service in Washington," he said, "has been scheduled upon the expectation that the District will meet its quota. Fifteen per cent of $750,000 is $112,500. The District has now raised $484,231. Of that sum, 15 per cent is $72,634, which means that the District is still short by $39,866."

Lund said that so far this year the District Red Cross has graduated 70 classes in home nursing, one-third more than in the entire year in 1941.

Danger of Epidemics

"We should bear in mind," he said, "that wartime crowding is apt to bring epidemics. The importance of nurses' aides to relieve the overburdened nurses in our own hospitals has been stressed again and again by hospitals, doctors and officials. In order to make this expansion we must raise our quota.

"Then, too, home service provides a liaison between service men and their families and covers a wide field of service to needy families of men in service. Additional case workers and stenographers are needed here. This program, too, will have to be curtailed if our quota is not met."

Lund said the chapter has voted to provide five mobile canteens for use here. These are used not only to help service men stationed here but will be desperately needed if Washington is bombed. So far $3000 has been donated toward this, but $7000 more is needed, he said.

Groups Commended

Courtenay Barber, District campaign manager, praised the general business group, which has already met its quota, and the Government Printing Office, Navy Yard, Department of Agriculture and Treasury Department for their support. At the same time, S. Sloan Colt, acting national chairman of the Red Cross, expressed appreciation to Henry Monsky, president of B'nai B'rith, for support of his units to the war fund campaign. Monsky reported that B'nai B'rith had gone over the top in its pledge of $50,000 to the national drve for 65 million dollars.

It was pointed out that some of Washington's wealthiest citizens have failed to give their support, "the same thing being true of a large group of doctors, dentists and lawyers."

Both Lund and Barber said that, barring a major disaster all over the country, this will be the last Red Cross drive until next spring. There will be no fall membership drive this year.

Pastor Emphasizes Value Of Periods of Repose, Silence

The value of periods of silence and repose in a streamlined age was stressed yesterday by the Rev. Dr. Fred S. Buschmeyer, pastor of Mount Pleasant Congregational Church.

He addressed Washington Federation of Churches' services at Epiphany Episcopal Church, 1317 G Street Northwest.

"Great living invariably demands giant hours of silence and repose," said the clergyman. "Small minds and souls skip with swift nervousness over the surface of life, like fragile water bugs on a summer stream.

"Great hearts and minds move like giant icebergs undeterred by surface winds and currents, because the center of their being is deeply hidden from the casual glance."

"The Cross gives body and beauty to art, architecture, music and literature," said the Rev. Daniel W. Justice yesterday at the Penn Theater, where he addressed Southeast churches' Lenten services. He is pastor of Trinity Methodist Church.

"Remove the Cross from music, and what would happen to Handel's 'Messiah,' Bach's 'Mass In D Minor,' Mozart's 'Requiem' and Schubert's 'Benediction?'" he asked.

"In human experience, the Cross continues as one of the loveliest of all personal possessions, representing love, redemption, sacrifice, service and brotherliness," he declared.

The Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, today at noon, will conclude his series of Holy Week messages at Epiphany Church. Red Cross

It is hard to say why Washington has made such relatively poor showing in the Nation-wide drive to secure Red Cross funds. Presumably, local residents are no more subject to demands for welfare funds than are the residents of other cities. Yet it is a fact that the local record in the current Red Cross drive is the worst in the country. After Pearl Harbor a war fund of 50 million dollars, subsequently raised to 65 million dollars, was sought. According to Norman Davis, the Red Cross chairman, the residents of other areas have come through with such alacrity that the goal has been exceeded. But the District has raised only $484,000 of its original quota of $750,000. For an area which leads the country in per capita income, the local showing is, by comparison, most disappointing.

It may be, of course, that many residents, having contributed their dollars last fall, when the Red Cross held its annual roll call, feel that they have done their part. But funds collected during the roll call were for operating expenses, not for the huge emergency fund made necessary by our entry into the war. Since 15 per cent of the funds now being raised in each community are turned over to each local chapter, failure to meet our quota will mean that the activities of the District Chapter must be seriously restricted, if not actually crippled.

For it costs money—lots of it, in fact—to carry on the many necessary war services either started or projected for this community. We urge, therefore, that readers take due note of the District chapter's predicament, which does us no credit, and which, after all, can be ended with the comparatively modest cooperation of persons who live and work here.

Road To Rome

Over the protest of the British Foreign Office the Vatican, according to a report from Rome, has accorded diplomatic recognition to the militaristic government at Tokyo. The news has been read in this country with a great deal of bewilderment. Even more than Nazi Germany Japan would seem to embody that anti-Christian concept of the deified state condemned by Pius XII in his encyclical, Summi Pontificatus, of October 20, 1939.

However, a distinction must be drawn between Papal preachments and Vatican diplomatic policy. In what was obviously an attempt to prepare American opinion for the shock of the Rome announcement, Archbishop Spellman, of New York, from the pulpit of St. Patrick's, on March 21, declared that while neutrality between right and wrong is impossible, the Holy See must take advantage of diplomatic means "of keeping in contact with Catholics of every nation." There is some merit in that statement. Millions of Catholics in the Philippines, Malaya, China, Indonesia and elsewhere have been affected by the recent Japanese conquests. Certainly the willingness of the Vatican to achieve a modus vivendi with Japan concerning its interests in these countries does not connote or imply any indorsement of the Japanese aggressions or of Japanese war aims.

Yet we may be sure that from now on Axis propaganda will exploit the recognition in an endeavor to prove that it does represent an explicit or implicit indorsement of Japanese ambitions. That was clearly what the Japanese were after. Their eagerness to open relationships at the Vatican is in suspicious and significant contrast to the open or tacit hostility toward Christian missionary activities which Japan has manifested for several centuries. Japanese success in this respect cannot but be viewed with dismay in Catholic America.

There is another aspect of this extraordinary development which is equally distressing. An exchange of diplomats between Tokyo and Vatican City seems to suggest a belief at the Vatican that Japan may be able to consolidate her conquests in the Pacific area. It may even suggest a disposition to consider them as an accomplished fact. Such a view may influence many people.

For many decades, to be sure, Vatican diplomacy has had the reputation of being the most astute and farsighted in the world. This belief, however, is open to some question. In the conflict of 1914-18 Benedict XV, like Pius XII today, preserved scrupulous neutrality as between the warring sides while working unceasingly for peace. Nevertheless, the confusion in the church's affairs in Europe following the Armistice has been ascribed to the Vatican's anticipation of victory by the Central Powers. Certainly the wisdom of Vatican policy toward the Italian conquest of Ethiopia and toward the civil conflict in Spain has not been demonstrated by subsequent events.

Our Tie With India

American concern over the British-Indian problem is profound. India stands athwart the mighty oceans which are now the battleground of a war on the outcome of which our survival depends.

India is in the same boat. And, in recognition of our common concern, India was our cosignatory, with 24 other nations, in the war declaration of the United Nations. To be sure, the people of Nationalist India might reply that India's signature was the work of the British Raj. But India's peril from the enemies of the United Nations is surely patent from the entry of the Japanese marauder into the Indian Ocean. Japan is not in Burma to save Burma or win Burma's independence. She is there to annex Burma to her imperial "coprosperity sphere," and then to pounce on India. Thus there can be no freedom for India, whatever the British do, till the world has been purged of the menace which confronts all free peoples.

Yet India is quibbling over the plan of Indian emancipation after the war which has been prescribed by Sir Stafford Cripps. The British offered their plan for acceptance or rejection as a whole. Not all the elements in India's variegated life, it is true, have yet expressed themselves. But several minority groups have come out in flat opposition, and it looks as if the Hindu element represented in the powerful Congress Party will follow suit. It may be that this is a trading position. But the British, having said that their proposals were not subject to negotiation, have had their last word. Accordingly the hope appears to be dashed of a united India attached in full military concert to the United Nations as a result of a pledge of Indian freedom.

The objections in the Congress Party appear to turn on the defense item in the Cripps proposals. Britain provided for the retention of "full responsibility for the conduct of the naval, military, and air defense of India." This is already in the hands of the commander in chief, Sir Archibald Wavell. Such a safeguard was provided in the interests of the whole of the United Nations as well as India herself. Defense of India is part of the world war effort. It is precisely in the same category as, for instance, Australia's, and yet the Australians had no compunctions about inviting in the American, MacArthur, to assume the commander in chief's role. That was a recognition—both the invitation and the acceptance of it—that the United Nations must stand or fall together. If, to satisfy an Indian sense of pride, the direction of India's defense were to be broken now, the result would only be confusion and the opening of India to Japanese penetration. Still, in spite of this situation, the Congress Party boggles at the item which maintains the status quo in India's military direction.

In point of fact, the status quo refers only to the commander in chief. In other respects several concessions are made to India in so far as defense is concerned. A representative Indian is invited to join the War Cabinet with the same prestige as Australia's Mr. Casey. India would be seated on the Pacific War Council—also through a representative Indian. These concessions, which give India a decided voice in war strategy, do not seem, however, to have made much impression in Delhi. It is all or nothing, evidently, that the Hindus want—a position which in view of the fast developing threat that is lapping India's shores, seems incredible.

The British offer to India was so fair and decent to India, the alternatives are so suicidal, that the conclusion will be forced upon the American people that suspicion of Britain is almost ineradicable. That is the reason that other members of the United Nations should take action. For it is obvious that the danger of a relapse of India into internal dissension with the British is a real handicap to victory over the Axis. It is regarded as such, at any rate, in Washington.

For this reason the President might be well advised to study the situation with the view of exploring the possibilities of mediation. Any such proffer could not be regarded with suspicion in India. For the cause of Indian emancipation has lain close to the American heart, and the leaders of Indian opinion know it. They must also realize why. The sympathy of the American people comes from the sharing by their forefathers of the experience which the people of India have undergone. Moreover, the President could be assured of China's support. That is important, since it was Chiang Kai-shek who, after his visit to India, advised the British to do precisely what they have done, and he must be distressed by India's noncooperation.

Noncooperation is an Indian habit. If it could be transformed into cooperation, what a mighty warrior-partner she could be! And we need India in the phalanx of the Freedom Front in peace as well as war.

Commandos

From now on commando raids must be thought of as making up a sort of counteroffensive in embryo. For they are getting more and more effective, as later information on the St. Nazaire raid testifies.

The importance of St. Nazaire cannot be exaggerated. It has the largest shipyard in continental Europe and has drydock and harbor installations capable of giving berth to the largest vessels in the Nazi navy, including the Tirpitz, as well as to many submarines and other war craft. Yet so well protected has St. Nazaire been to air attacks that repeated raids by the R. A. F. were able to do very little damage. This time the R. A. F. was part of a well-drilled team of British land, sea and air forces which, working with astonishing speed and skill, succeeded in getting into the inner harbor. A former American destroyer, the Campbelltown, formerly the Buchanan, was loaded with dynamite, "defied German submarines, mines and concentrated fire from shore batteries," to use the words of a British correspondent who accompanied the commandos, and piled herself up on the dock gates at the entrance to Penhoet Basin. The ensuing explosion not only wrecked the dock gates but destroyed the gates of the adjoining submarine basin as well.

The damage thus done by this latest British commando raid was, it would seem, considerable. But as significant as the damage is the fear which this raid, together with those that have preceded it, has aroused in Nazi hearts. On the eve of their greatest offensive of all, that against Russia, when they will need every man and gun and plane if they are to have any chance of success, they must now take precautions against further British raids carried out on an ever-increasing scale. Thus, when they find it essential to concentrate their strength, they may now have to divide it.

Head Off Hoarding

From the standpoint of facilitating the conservation of strategic materials, it is a pity that in many cases the War Production Board has to give lengthy advance notice of the dates on which its restrictive orders become effective. Producers usually need such notice. But the minute consumers learn that after such and such a day the sales of vacuum cleaners, table cutlery, razor blades, and what not, will be banned or curtailed, there is a run on those articles, whether or not the buyers' needs are pressing. The effect, of course, is to speed the disappearance from the market of certain articles, to encourage hoarding, and to complicate the business of estimating minimum consumer requirements.

Sometimes, to be sure, it is possible to head off hoarding by laying down certain conditions effective at once. For example, the WPB ruled on Tuesday that not only are there to be no more collapsible tin tubes for foods, cosmetics, and most toilet preparations, but individual buyers of tubes of tooth paste or of shaving cream must also turn in a used tin tube of any kind for each new tube bought. This places somewhat of a burden on retailers and dealers who are required to hold used tubes for disposition subject to WPB orders. But it is a very effective way of discouraging hoarding.

To apply this principle broadside to all metal objects the manufacture of which is to be curtailed, however, would literally force retailers into the trade-in business on a scale that is clearly beyond them. What is the answer? Instead of trying to figure out a pattern of individual ways to prevent hoarding, the WPB, it seems to us, should have the over-all authority to appropriate surplus consumer stocks at its discretion. This, after all, is the simplest and most effective way of dealing with a situation in which, increasingly from now on, the supplies available cannot possibly meet the demand.

WITH A BOWL OF GROWING NARCISSI

Here from translucent sheaths will slow unfold
A miracle for you who shall behold
The Spring's green calyx open to your eyes
Before the earth unveils her to the skies.
Here your own constellation in a sheaf,
From nebulae soft shut within a leaf,
Shall break and burn for you as pure a ray
As buds of Eden in the world's young day.

But never shall you know what brings them here
Out of far mystery—or is it near?—
Lifting frail swords against the alien air,
Singing with stars, unutterably fair;
Nor why the flower is white and green the shoot,
Nor that still secret at the buds' white root,
Nor why they never shall have permanence;
The ways of loveliness need no defense.

You shall not hear it; only they shall know.
Their swords will fall, the stars put out their light,
Their going will be like a shadow's flight.
One morning you shall look for April here,
And find it gone, the husk left brown and sere;
Its soul of beauty will have fled before,
Back to its secret heaven, and closed the door.

For Victory

To encourage a speedy victory for our cause in this epochal World War, we must be optimistic, specific and clear as to our intentions—and be sure that our purposes are for the benefit of all peoples. We must discourage the prophets of calamity and fear for our country and for the future of the world. Instead, we must all have the conviction, the faith and the determination not to be selfish; to give and to fight to the best of our ability for the victory of the United States and its Allies, and to establish a better world for all people to live in after the World War is over. We must be united in the defense of our institutions, our way of life, our country and our homes.

I agree with the people that condemn the attitude and action leading to personal advantage exemplified by some of our leaders. This selfishness must be stopped if we are to have success in this important war that has the possibility of being a turning point for real civilization. We must put into operation the principles of brotherhood of man, of justice, liberty and peace—principles professed by all religions—to secure a better social order.

If we wish to secure a better world to live in, we must take a position of determination and have the confidence and faith to fight, work and give as much as possible for our speedy victory in this war. We must trust our leaders who represent the will of the people, and who have given their pledges that their goal in this war is the liberation of humanity from aggression, slavery and wars, and to promote and establish democracy as a substitute for dictatorship and the totalitarian state; to promote economic security, political, racial and religious freedom. It is important to repeat that the future well-being of everybody depends upon victory in this war in order to bring about a reign of justice and liberty.

Parking Cars

In the near future, due to the tire rationing, there will be an estimated 12 million cars out of use by the end of 1943, and a million or so by December, 1942. In some places this would not constitute such a problem, but how about the District of Columbia? Currently there is a law on the statutes stating that it is a violation to leave an auto on the street in the same spot for more than 18 consecutive hours. Where, in the name of heaven, will all these vehicles be placed? At this time there is even insufficient garaging and parking facilities for the cars now in the District, and with more war workers coming in every day, a good many bringing cars with them, this situation is becoming more acute every day. Personally, I find it impossible to find a parking spot in front of my own home now.

Coddling Labor

I am amazed at the full-page ad of the A. F. of L. crying to high heaven about sixth columnists. So they are the people who are hurting the downtrodden working man, at $15 a day, who needs an extra incentive to work more than eight hours.

"The spectacle of American union labor forces us all to hang our heads in shame. The President must almost daily appease Green and Murray.

Win the war? Hell, no, we have not time to concentrate on it. We must nurse and coddle the largest group of babies (nine million) ever assembled in the world's history.

Work Together

We Government workers, we wage earners on defense projects and in factories, turning out munitions, tanks and planes, we pay every tax assessed. We pay on incomes, property, gasoline, movies, bank checks, cigarettes, and all the other taxes tucked out of sight so that we won't know that we are paying them. We are not exempt on a single item that our earnings permit us to enjoy.

Millions of us will pay income taxes this year who didn't pay a cent a decade ago. We're working now, else there wouldn't be any overtime to fret about. We're working because our country needs our work more than she did 10 years ago, when we begged for it and could not get it at any price. Now we work, get paid, pay taxes, buy bonds and help as we can.

But who are WE and who are YOU? If we all pay taxes for the same thing, aren't we one people? We're all working to win the same war, aren't we? Come to think of it, you didn't pay much taxes yourselves 10 years ago, did you? Maybe we've always been one people, taking turns with lucky breaks and tough ones. Maybe if we work together and pay taxes together, we always will be one people, with one country and one flag.

Let's don't let Hitler outsmart us by making us fight one another at home.

Doesn't Miss Razors

Among the many things that I cannot understand is the anxiety that is manifested regarding the shortage of razor blades. Why do men use the fool things, anyway? When I was a young man, up to the age of 20 I patronized a barber. My employer had bought for himself a safety razor, made abroad, and consisting of a heavy blade with holder and a device for sharpening the blade. Being used to a straight-edge razor he had some difficulty in managing the "new-fangled thing" and gave it to me. I used the instrument for years with perfect results. Later I bought a new razor that had just appeared on the market. This razor had a sharpening device (stropping) and I would get about three months' shave out of every blade that I used. One blade lasted me 13 months. I used that razor for years. Unfortunately it was bought by a famous maker of blades and practically withdrawn from the market. This was done, I have no doubt, to increase the sales of this company's much advertised blades. About six years ago I asked a friend who was going abroad to buy for me a razor that is advertised in Life, Esquire and other magazines. It comes with stropping and honing devices. Since that time I have shaved with it over 2000 times and am still using the same blade and expect to for the rest of may life. I have often watched men shaving with their so-called razors and blades and noticed that they seem to be scraping their beard off with little scratchy jerks and taking an interminable time to do it. My shaving takes me about eight minutes. So what? Nothing except to suggest to men: go thou and do likewise and end your razor blade troubles.

Credit Due Investor

In a recent editorial discussing an increase in wages sought by employes of the General Motors Corporation, you remarked that such increase, if granted, would be added to the price of the product, and therefore be eventually borne by the taxpayers without affecting the profits or dividends of the corporaiton. One of your correspondents vigorously expresses the opinion that the added cost should come from profits and not from the pockets of the country's taxpayers. Apparently, the opinion is given honestly and without any sense of injustice. No doubt it voices the reaction of a very large number of people.

I hold no motor stocks, but have small interests in several other lines of business, including ten shares in American Telephone and Telegraph Co., the annual report of which corporation is before me. It shows that at the close of 1941 the company had 634,151 stockholders, the average holding being 29 shares. This showing is somewhat typical of large corporations, which include among their owners (stockholders) not only people of wealth but a very large proportion of people in moderate circumstances. In many cases, no doubt, the returns from a small investment in stock is the sole source of income. That income is needed for food, clothing and shelter; and in that respect it differs in no degree from the income of a workman in the factory. Money received as dividends is like other money and its purchasing power is no greater.

Present pleas for increases in the cost of living. Why should not the same plea be advanced in favor of increases in profits, which reach the stockholder in the form of dividends? Is there anything sinister about investments in the securities of corporations? Manufacturing requires both capital and labor. In fact, capital investment must precede manufacture; for the land must be purchased, buildings erected, machinery installed, before any returns from the business can be realized. Clearly, it seems to me, the men who have the foresight, intelligence, and courage to project business undertakings and take the risk of investment therein, are entitled to admiration and praise rather than thoughtless condemnation.

These are ruthless times. I have looked a long time to see something said for the present "forgotten man"—the small investor, the pensioner, the dependent upon a small "fixed income." He is still with us.

Useful Project

As a first aid instructor for the Red Cross I wish to express my appreciation to the students in the manual training classes of our junior and senior high schools for the valuable service they are furnishing to the national war effort by making sets of splints which can be purchased for merely the cost of the materials by all citizens in the civilian defense programs, first aid and medical services. The splints are excellently made. Orders are filled within a few days. I feel that the community should be grateful and proud of the service the students have rendered.

May I suggest that a useful project for those students in machine and metal working classes in the junior and senior high schools of Washington would be the making of first aid kits for the first aid medical service of the Red Cross and civilian defense, in which perishable first aid supplies may be kept. Specifications may be obtained from the Red Cross or the Army.

The Post Impressionist

Talk

With the exception of one other person who possessed the gift of gab Dr. Geislings multiloquence marked him a human being set apart from others, because when in his presence no one else found an opportunity for vocalization.

The exception was Aunt Saphronia, whose flow of words matched the continuous performance of Alfred Tennyson's brook, albeit no gibble-gabble ever marred her loquaciousness.

Both the doctor and Aunt Saphronia had done much traveling, much reading and much public speaking, and both possessed such reserves of ammunition in the form of words that the rapid-fire of nouns, adjectives, verbs and other parts of speech, did not exhaust their vocabularies, nor even made a dent in them.

The doctor was a frequent guest at our house and when his flowing tongue was unhinged for action, then others could only rest and listen.

The same may be said of Aunt Saphronia.

The two had not met, not until they collided in our living room. We had known for several days that both were coming and bets were made by members of the family. The menfolks wagered, quite naturally, that a member of their sex would win the verbal duel, and the others, who said "pish! pish!" wagered nicotine carriers against boxes of stuff calculated to increase one's avoirdupois.

The doctor and Aunt Saphronia arrived. They were introduced. They mentioned the weather, then they started from scratch.

For more than one hour they talked and it was with difficulty that they were stopped. Only the entry of a maid with something more substantial than words to fill their mouths brought an end to the word barrage.

Dr. Geisling was the first to depart from the house. When the door had been closed Aunt Saphronia exclaimed, "What a charming man! What a brilliant mind he has! Never have I enjoyed an evening more. Thank you for inviting me to meet him."

Next day the doctor met a male member of the family. "It was indeed a great pleasure to meet Miss Saphronia," he said. "She is so entertaining. It certainly was a delightful evening."

Meanwhile all bets had been declared off, for the reason that nobody had won. Although the doctor and Aunt Saphronia had talked continuously for an hour neither of them had heard one word of what the other had said.

In one of the Federal departments is a man who derives keen enjoyment from always being in opposition. He discovers what stand you take on a subject, then proceeds to batter it, using his arms as well as his mouth, and it soon becomes evident that should his upper limb be amputated he would be tongue-tied. At the beginning of his harangue he shakes a finger or his fist at you, then lets loose his verbal volley. Synchronously his arms swing into action, either like flails threshing grain, or around and around, like fans on an old-time windmill. Finally he explodes with a laugh and says, "I knew that I would get a kick out of you!"

In the same office is a young married woman who loves to talk as long as you listen, or pretend that you are listening. She emits recurrent sounds without raising or lowering the pitch of her voice. She possesses a perfect monotone, and even when she lets her words loose they appear to leave her lips reluctantly. She can change her subject from a dinner party to her daughter's latest hair-do, then switch to the trouble she had while taking her dog for a walk, and say it all as with one breath, without a flicker of expression either of word or on her countenance. All she asks of a listener is silence, and she drones until run down.

"I tell you right now," is a phrase that interlards the conversation of many who wish to appear emphatic, and occasionally, "I bet you a hundred dollars," is added to a declarative sentence for good measure. A youth who gives voice to such remarks is apt to term a traffic cop a "dumb cluck," but not in a voice the officer can hear.

A motorman on the Georgia Avenue-Seventh Street line apparently enters into many conversations during his run. He does not talk to his passengers; that is forbidden; he addresses persons whom he passes, but even they do not hear, nor is it intended they should. It is his form of amusement, this giving vocative expression to his thoughts concerning men, women and children who form the panorama of his everyday life. A passenger seated immediately behind him may hear in a low voice, "So you took a chance by dodging that car, eh? Better watch your step, young woman. Next time you may not be so lucky." Meanwhile his car has passed the Sweet Young Thing who has found safety in a zone with yellow boundaries, and his next remark concerns a small boy who has scooted up a side street after filching a banana from a peddler's cart.

Many years ago I read a story, "The Man Who Was Talked to Death." Where I read it I cannot recall, nor the author's name. The narrative concerned a Chinese official who had been found guilty of a crime for which no punishment commonly practiced seemed adequate. Finally it was decreed that pundits, talking in relays, should continue by the criminal's side until the end should arrive. During the period of slow torture he would be kept awake by the prick of spears, and compelled to listen to the monotonous clack.

The power of talk becomes impressive when one realizes that the prattle of infants of today will change to words, and the words they speak during the oncoming years will result in some of them being elected to serve in the United States Congress.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Blockade Of America

IT IS CLEAR to every one who knows the situation, and very clear indeed to our enemies, that our critical weakness is no longer in the production of war materials but in transportation. We are able to raise armies and to make weapons much faster than we can move them, and in the present phase of the war—the year 1942—the whole effort of our enemies is, so far as we are concerned, directed against our internal and our external system of transportation.

LIPPMANN

This is the net effect of Japanese strategy against the United States. The blow at Pearl Harbor, the seizure of Wake and Guam, the blockade of the Philippines have cut us off from the direct route to the Far East. The Japanese threat to Australia is in all likelihood designed to force us to invest shipping and naval power in an immensely long and strategically unprofitable line of sea communications. The Japanese conquest of the oil of the East Indies affects us in that it compels us to carry oil across the vast spaces of the Pacific. The conquest of the rubber territory is a paralyzing blow at our internal system of transportation.

The anti-American strategy of the Nazis is, for the present, also aimed at our transportation. The submarine war in the Caribbean, in our coastal waters, and in the Atlantic is designed not only to destroy ships, but also to slow up shipping, and to terrorize the seamen of all the American republics.

SINCE TRANSPORTATION is now the crucial problem, we must look to see who is charged with it. What do we find? We find here, as earlier in the battle of production, divided authority. Thus we have just in recent days achieved, it would appear, some unity of Naval and Army command in the protection of shipping. For the management of shipping we have the War Shipping Administration and we have the Army transports and we have the Navy transports. For the construction of transport ships we have the Maritime Commission. And for internal transportation by rail, truck, inland waterways, automobile and air we have any number of separate authorities.

Is it not evident that we very much need a supreme War Transportation Board with a director exercising at least as much power as Mr. Nelson exercises over production? For transportation should be dealt with as a whole—not only all ships in a common pool so as to obtain the maximum service from each ship but all other means of moving men and goods as well. Only an over-all authority can, for example, decide efficiently how much oil for the Eastern seaboard should be carried in tankers or in railroad tank cars, or how far it would be possible to go, by reducing railroad and truck freight carried for civilians, in reducing the demands on war shipping.

Considering the importance of transportation, it can safely be said that the supreme director ought to sit as an equal in the inner war council along with Admiral King and Gen. Marshall.

THERE is another reason, besides these logical reasons, why we very urgently need a Nelson for transportation. Not only is authority too much divided,—so many people's business being in the end nobody's business—but besides that it must be said, I am afraid, that a new spirit of invention and enterprise needs to be infused into the agencies which now deal in transportation. They are administered, we need not doubt, by able, conscientious, and experienced shipbuilders and shipping men. But what is lacking is a full awareness that there is a radical difference between shipping in war and shipping in peace, between the economics of war and the economics of peace. The effect is to stifle invention and to delay the adoption of drastically new measures. Yet these are indispensable if we are to break victoriously out of the blockade which our enemies are imposing upon us.

This is the reason why even a layman like myself is warranted in insisting again and again upon the affair of the Sea Otter ships. It is not for the purpose of promoting that particular ship; only persistent experiment and fair trial can determine the intrinsic value of the Sea Otter. Those who have studied the affair of the Sea Otter are determined to keep calling attention to it because it has demonstrated so clearly that there is in shipping no way at present to get persistent experiment with a radically new idea. The Sea Otter may not be able to fulfill the hopes of its inventors. But what is certain is that the invention has not been treated as, for example, new airplane designs are treated at Wright Field—by men who understand how scientific experiments should be conducted and how inventions are developed.

WHAT HAPPENED to the Sea Otter in the Navy Department and in the Maritime Commission is proof positive, I submit, that no really new invention, better than the Sea Otter perhaps, is likely to be welcomed and given a proper test. Yet if we do not use our ingenuity in the field of transportation, we shall lose the war. For our capacity to construct conventional ships is loaded to the limit, and supplementary unconventional means of transportation must imperatively be found. The affair of the Sea Otter demonstrated that no one is fiercely determined to find these supplementary means of transportation. I think I can prove that no such fierce determination exists.

The Sea Otter, whatever its final merits, is not in any sense a crackpot idea: it has the support of some ship designers of proved competence, of some shipbuilders of proved competence, of at least one large shipping company of proved competence in the handling of cargo ships, and of many naval officers who have studied the submarine menace in this war and in the other war.

YET WHEN this invention was accepted for experiment, what happened? The Maritime Commission would not touch it. So it was turned over to the Secretary of the Navy, who undoubtedly hoped it would succeed. He turned it over to civilians in the Navy Department.

Two items enable one to judge their capacity to conduct a scientific experiment. One, the naval officer who developed the idea of the ship and was placed in command at the trial run, was forbidden to be present when his ship was being constructed. Did any one ever hear of such goings-on as that? Second, the Navy Department civilian who was in charge of the project and made the final judgment against it had never seen the ship. Can any one imagine Henry Ford deciding about a new model without ever taking the trouble to go to see it?

IT CANNOT be said too strongly or too often that the war cannot be won if in the crucial matter of transportation, there is this sort of obtuse obstruction. There is needed a fresh, and powerful mind in these things to produce a different atmosphere, to shake these agencies out of their routines, their conventionalism, and their defeatism. There is needed somebody—not necessarily a shipping man—with the genius of a Girdler, a Sorenson, a Keller to put new life into the Maritime Commission, and to take command of all war transportation.

Business At War

By Carl Hovgard

Scientific Use Of Human Resources

Third of a series on the effects of war on American business, written by experts of the Research Institute of America.

WHEN MUSSOLINI was still ruler of his people, he told them: "War alone brings out the maximum human energy and puts the stamp of nobility upon the people who have the courage to face it."

HOVGARD

Ironically, war has perhaps brought the Italian nation to the lowest level of economic and social degradation. But there is also no doubt that war places far greater demands on human resources than does peace. And it exacts its price on the home front as well as on the battle front.

Both the military effort and the economic effort which supports the military enterprise must of necessity rest on available man power. Without men to make, as well as to carry guns, defeat is inevitable.

THE UNITED STATES entered this war with human resources represented by a population of more than 130 million. This vast reservoir of potential strength must make itself felt decisively on land, on sea, and in the air. It must do that in the most effective manner possible. And it must do it with the utmost speed. Available skills must be where they are most useful. The task of winning this war not only calls for the production of shot and shell, tank and plane. It demands that these commodities be gotten to the places where they will do the most good. It demands that lives be consumed in making them effective against the enemy. But it also puts a premium on intelligent planning—this in both a military and economic sense. Perhaps most of all that is where the emphasis lies.

Just as an individual may have huge real estate holdings and be "land poor," so a nation may be rich in human resources and suffer the tragedy of military failure. Fortunate in our physical as well as our human resources, the difference between victory and defeat reduces to the manner in which we use these resources. Unless we can assign each to his proper station—on the firing line, in the airplane plant, the essential civilian factory, or the center which promotes and sustains morale—unless we can do this successfully, our strength will be dissipated in empty gestures.

The five million men unhappy France posted behind the Maginot Line to sit idly through the first eight months of the war quite certainly would have made a greater contribution to the defense of their homes if many of them had been put to work in factories producing the tanks and airplanes France did not have when the enemy was ready to strike.

Even England was slow to grasp the implications of modern warfare. But she finally had the wisdom to recall from the fields of Flanders some 25,000 highly skilled workmen before it was too late. Most of these men are still at lathes and work benches in London and Manchester and elsewhere, doing more than their bit as irreplaceable soldiers on the economic front.

PATRIOTISM TODAY is not the simple matter of emotion it was in less complex times. Its expression today is complicated by the involved character of the task imposed on nations by 300 years of science and half that many of industrialism. The best a man could do for his country a century ago was to put a gun on his shoulder and go out to meet the foe. But dive bombers, 80-ton mobile fortresses called tanks, bomb sights which perform mathematical miracles, have changed all that.

Our intricate war machine calls for an equally intricate utilization of our available man power. The job faced by our Selective Service administration is not as simple as it was for the comparatively primitive civilization of Ethiopia in 1935, which, when confronted with invading Italian "civilizers" enacted this simple draft decree: "Everyone will now be mobilized and all boys old enough to carry a spear will be sent to Addis Ababa. Married men will take their wives to carry food and to cook. Those without wives will take any women without husbands. Women with small babies need not go. The blind, those who cannot walk or for any reason cannot carry a spear, are exempt. Anyone found at home after receipt of this order will be hanged."

In the United States, the Selective Service System must follow a policy of deliberate exclusion from military duty, as did the Ethiopians. But it must be exclusion following a far more complicated pattern.

The keystone of American policy in disposing of its man power is contained in the title of the act which brought the Selective Service System into force. It is that men will be taken for military service when it is believed they will serve their country best there, and that they will be deferred when it is clear that they will be more useful in a civilian occupation. Any other procedure would be patent waste.

The three registrations held under the law have classified (or soon will have) a pool of man power estimated at about 26,500,000. This pool is limited exclusively to the men between the ages of 20 and 44.

The tremendous extension of the war front requires that the military authorities think in terms of an eventual armed force of 8 to 10 million men—perhaps even more. If it becomes necessary to put so many men into the field, there may be a reduction in the physical standards for military service. Many formerly in Class 1-B (available for limited service) will be transferred to 1-A (available for service). This is on the score of purely physical qualifications.

It states little more than the obvious to say that the physically incapacitated must be kept out of the armed services. There they would interfere with the efficiency of their fellows. Fortunately, Selective Service physicians report that the general level of health among selectees is higher today than it was at the time of the last war. Not a little of our strength lies in the fact that our higher standard of living has brought with it a high standard of physical health.

THE EXTENT and duration of the war will determine just how stable present deferment policies may be. Individuals now deferred because of the dependency of a wife may find themselves called to service, if the wife is employable. In particular, this is likely if the economic demands of the war are such as to require services of the wife to replace a drafted elevator operator, sales clerk or relatively unskilled worker of some other nature.

But far the most important group to be deferred is that which consists of "necessary men"—either in civilian enterprise or production for war.

When Jap bombs fell on Manila our Army had a strength of approximately 1,600,000 men. The goal for December, 1942, is 3,600,000 for the Army alone. We started this year with roughly 50,000,000 engaged in gainful labor. These, together with plant equipment and natural resources, are the means to victory. The Selective Service System has the responsibility of balancing these resources. It is a tremendous responsibility. The right man must be with the right machine—whether it is a machine gun, a riveting hammer or a swivel chair.

Dispositions to be made of our uniformed man power are a military secret. But as the size of our armed forces increases, special industrial or other skills become more and more precious, and the most effective use of this man power on the home front is the responsibility and concern of every American.

It must be apparent to all that one of the first tasks of the War Production Board is that of making men available to machines. There must be additional crews to operate the machines over the 24 hour period. There must be new machines and fresh men to satiate the appetite of the war god, Mars. Smoke will pour from the chimneys of the "arsenal of democracy" only if there are hands to stoke the furnace.

The task of marshaling America's man power can be divided into three main sectors. First, additional millions must be brought into production. Second, additional supervisory staffs and technicians must be created. Third, (and most difficult), we must acquire the techniques and information which will make it possible to assign the particular individual to his appropriate place. In other words, the man power problem is far from being purely quantitative in nature. If, for example, conscription should take all our airplane designers away from their drawing tables, it would be a major catastrophe probably equivalent to loss of the war.

But the problems which confront the draft boards are not nearly so simple as suggested by that. Each board must decide wisely in hundreds of individual cases. A rule of thumb method of determining who should do what, multiplied many times over by the thousands of individual boards, could do vast harm to the national interest.

Among the most promising developments in this connection is that the Government has created a national roster of persons with specialized technical skills. A virtual census of brains is being taken. Among other things, the National Inventors Council and the National Research Council have a well-organized program designed to bring genius into the service of the Nation.

GEN. LEWIS B. HERSHEY, director of Selective Service, has defined the policies of his office as follows:

"Men have been deferred because they were engaged in activities essential to national defense or national health, safety or interest. Men will continue to be deferred because they are essential directly or indirectly to the accomplishment of things which bring victory.

"There will be no reduction of vigilance to protect industries engaged in the supplying of our own armed forces and those of our Allies. The Selective Service System will be mindful of the need for food and of men who know how to grow it.

"Students will continue their studies when by so doing they become trained for professions in which there is a scarcity.

"Apprentices will continue to acquire skills, skills in which there are shortages."

The broad choice between whether an individual should be in one of the armed services or in an essential civilian industry is the least of the decisions to be made. Such a choice is the most elementary of the problems to be solved if our man-power program is to yield its finest product, which in this instance is military victory. As this life and death struggle comes home to us, it is not unlikely that we will have to adjust ourselves to many things to which we are unaccustomed.

In Germany, for example, conscription of labor for specific industrial tasks is commonplace. Germany is certainly not a model we wish to copy. But it is a forceful illustration of the application of intelligence to a single end—that of successful warfare. Workers in Germany are compelled to carry an "Arbeitsbuch," or labor book, without which they can get no work. This gives the government authority to assign the individual to the job it designates.

In Russia the labor passport has achieved the same result.

On the democratic front, the desperate situation in which England found herself resulted in similar power being given to the Minister of Labor, Ernest Bevin. It is not inconceivable that a long war will entail a like use of Federal power here.

Even so, such a policy would not be new to American history. In the last war the principle of "work or fight" was formally approved by the administrative heads. On May 17, 1918, a "work or fight" order was issued, providing that all men between the ages of 18 and 45 who were engaged in "nonproductive" enterprise were subject to withdrawal of their deferments in the event they failed to enter "productive" employment. Administration of this order was left to local draft boards. Since the war came to an end not long after, not many were affected. Even so, Army estimates indicate that 57,009 men did shift their employment because of this order. Indeed, 2695 men previously deferred were certified for induction into the Army.

There is a great aversion in this country to use of such arbitrary methods in dealing with the civilian aspect of war. Congress has repeatedly shown its unwillingness to be realistic with so politically unpopular an issue. Among its expressions in this respect was the resolution which created the War Policies Commission of 1930. It expressly provided: "that said commission shall not consider and shall not report upon the conscription of labor." However, the provisions of the Selective Service Act give the President wide powers to determine occupational deferments. Unquestionably, these powers could be exercised to set up a "work or fight" program.

As a guide to the future of the war effort, it is helpful to note the types of persons who were considered not productive during the World War. They included waiters, elevator operators, doormen, bellboys, theater ushers, sales and other clerks in stores. At that time, no effort was made to compel an individual to shift his occupation if hardship for dependents would be involved.

With the growing emphasis now on occupation as the most important reason for deferment, and the drift away from dependency, the Selective Service System is assuming more of the color of "work or fight" regulations of the First World war. The shift will not become complete until Congressional action provides subsistence payments for dependents left at home. The payments are, however, only a matter of time. They may occur before the end of 1942.

The new "work or fight" attitude is important to employers because it redefines "essential employes." Their work must be essential to the war effort. No matter how irreplaceable an individual may be in civilian business, he will be subject to call. Employers should be as ready to cooperate with the Government in making skilled employes available for the war effort as they are where materials are concerned.

It is fully as important that skills be adequately channeled and their use controlled in line with a total plan as that materials be so treated.

In the tremendous emergency which confronts the Nation, it is the people who must fashion their own victory. America has the economic resources to win. It has the man power. It is developing the skills and the technique. It is the job of 130 million Americans to see to it that these resources are used to get the results desired. To do this calls for the most effective use of human energy and intelligence the world has ever seen.

Fair Enough

Criminal Gang Union Rule

SOMEBODY named L. Metcalfe Walling, described as Administrator of Wages and Hours Division of the Department of Labor, recently said that Nazi propaganda was responsible for the movement to abolish the 40-hour week. I don't believe he had any ground for this charge because he offered no proof and, furthermore, this agitation over the 40-hour week is a diversion which has temporarily switched public attention from the corruption of the union racket which the Administration and the professional man-hunters of the unions have been trying to conceal. By kicking that gong around they have raised a great clatter in the manner of those old-time house-prowlers who would start a fight in the alley while the man around front went through the place.

PEGLER

The real issues are not the 40-hour week, but the compulsory closed shop, the criminal practices of unions and the rising power of the union brown shirts to gang up on honest, patriotic citizens and persecute and rob them with the sanction of the packed Supreme Court. The boss-fakers of this great criminal union power obviously must be glad of any such distraction, so there is as much reason to suspect them of fomenting this row as there is to suspect the Nazis on the word of an obscure recent appointee in the Labor Department who doesn't support his statements and whose official background creates suspicion.

Every word that Thurman Arnold said to the House Judiciary Committee about the predatory brutality and thievery of unions was absolutely true and proven, but he was not talking about the 40-hour week, which is quite another matter. We can retain the 40-hour week by paying for it in higher prices for war materials and other goods. This might bankrupt the Nation, but we probably are going through the wringer anyway, so what the hell!

IF WE realize that business firms and stockholders, big and little, are not philanthropists or governments with taxing powers and must take in at one boxoffice what they pay out in wages, taxes and all, we can maintain the 40-hour week by hoisting the ceilings on prices of war goods and civilian commodities and services. To be sure this would mean higher costs of living and the beneficiaries of the overtime-pay provided by the 40-hour week would be no better off than they would be on straight pay. But it is as long as it is wide, so it would seem to make little difference whether we do or we don't.

But there is something deliberately deceitful and dark in this persistent and stubborn avoidance by our Government of the sorry facts of union operations as they have been revealed in these dispatches hundreds of times and stated by Thurman Arnold in his pathetic, futile testimony to Congress on various occasions.

These unions are infested with dirty thieves and exploiters and betrayers of labor and they do hi-jack the farmer, the consumer and the employer and they do beat up, rob and horribly persecute common American citizens whose Government ought to defend their right to work on war tasks free of any obligation to pay tribute to any extortioner.

I PROMISED Will Green two years ago that I would show up a rogues' gallery of crooks in positions of power in unions and don't let any of the miserable frauds of the corrupt union press tell you that I cited only a few or that the proportion of crooks in union leadership has been no greater than in the clergy or finance or commerce. It is the crookedest calling in the whole United States, and the unions, far from exposing their vermin and pulling them off the backs of the workers and the whole community, have fronted for them and refused to cooperate with the prosecuting officers when they could have done so.

I cited a hundred and there are countless more vicious parasites who can't be called criminals only because local prosecutors have been too lazy or too much in political fear of the unions to convict them. Do you think I would call Mike Boyle, the boss of the Chicago electricians, a low crook and a traitor to labor, if I couldn't prove it by court records, but do you think Green has done anything about him? I wouldn't and Green hasn't and Boyle is only a specimen out of the whole evil horde.

Yes, I am an American, too, and so are millions of others who are determined not to permit anyone, the Government or any gang of corruptioneers, to exploit our sacrifices so as to substitute criminal gang rule and compulsion for the free institutions which the Nation is fighting to maintain.

Product Of Living Tissue Found To Cause Hay Fever Torture

By the Associated Press

Boston, April 1.—A chemical which hay fever releases in the human body to torture its victims has been found and measured at the Tulane University School of Medicine. The substance is histamine, a product of living tissues.

The Tulane work is a new approach not only to hay fever, but to all other allergies. The experiments were reported to the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology today by Gerhard Katz, M. D., assistant professor of pharmacology.

Physicians have suspected that histamine caused much of the havoc in allergies. But finding it was a baffling task.

Dr. Katz solved this difficulty by producing blisters on human arms and looking for the histamine beneath the raised skin surfaces. A very good blister-maker is the common drug cantharides, an aphrodisiac when taken internally, an irritant when on the surface.

Always a little histamine was found. But when ragweed pollen, one of the principal hay fever causes, was injected at the site of the blister, the histamine rose by varying amounts, running up to six times normal.

The amount of histamine, Dr. Katz said, is enough to account for many of the irritating symptoms in hay fever and other allergies. But it does not account for all the damage. Other suspected chemicals produced by the allergy irritants are being sought.

From the Tulane experiments it appears likely that hay fever is really a protection against a more serious, and possibly fatal, trouble known as anaphylactic shock. In ragweed season the pollen inhaled in a single day is enough to kill a man if the pollen proteins got into the blood. Hay fever appears to be a reaction by which nature prevents too much of the pollen proteins from reaching the blood.

Symphony Busy Making Records Under Kindler

Hans Kindler and the National Symphony Orchestra were busy last evening making Victor records under the supervision of Charles O'Connell and will continue this morning from 9:30 a. m. to 12:30 p. m. These are the first recordings under a new contract.

Among the compositions selected for recording are "Batuque" by the Brazilian composer, Oscar Lorenzo Fernandez; "Prelude and Hula" by the Hawaiian composer, Dai-keon Lee; Jaromir Weinberger's "Czech Rhapsody," Dr. Kindler's arrangements of Handel's D minor prelude and fugue and the "Love Music" from Musorgski's "Boris Godunov," Richard Strauss' "Don Juan" and Smetana's "Vltava."

The National Symphony made its first recordings last year, with an artistic and commercial success that led to a renewal of contract. Several of these recordings have been signally honored. The Brahams' third symphony was named by Victor "masterpiece of the month" and Dr. Kindler designated "artist of the month." The recording of Chadwick's "Noel" was chosen by the Steinway Review of Permanent Music as "the best in American music for 1941."

First Lady's Friend Ordered to Army

New York, April 1 (AP).—The city Selective Service headquarters said today that Joseph P. Lash, 32-year-old general secretary of the International Student Service, had been ordered to report for induction into military service April 13.

Lash, a friend of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and former member of the National Defense Advisory Board's youth division of the Office of Civilian Defense, applied for a commission in the Naval Intelligence Service early this year. His application was rejected.

The Dies Committee investigating un-American activities questioned Lash in 1939 when he was executive secretary of the American Students Union. He denied then that he was or ever had been a Communist.

Free French Admiral Quits; Seized Islands in Atlantic

By the Associated Press

Montreal, April 1.—Free French headquarters here received a cable today saying that Vice Admiral Emile Muselier, naval commander of Gen. Charles DeGaulle's forces, has resigned from the French National Committee in London.

The cable said Admiral Muselier had resigned "at his own request and had been replaced by another admiral."

He has commanded Free French naval forces since July, 1940.

The cable telling of Muselier's resignation was signed by De Gaulle himself and sent to Washington, whence it was transmitted to Montreal. It read:

"You may naturally dismiss as ridiculous statements which certain persons are trying to spread in the United States and Canada on the subject of the resignation of Admiral Muselier. The fact is that the latter left the national committee at his own request and has been replaced on it by another admiral. All the political rumors and other reports about this matter are nothing but absurd fantasies. Free France and the Free French forces are more united and more resolute than they have ever been."

Beltsville's Answer to Sugar Shortage

Pollen Rationed to Bees Speeds Honey Production

By Chester R. Venemann
Post Staff Writer

The sudden wartime demand for honey, sugar's most popular substitute, has led apiculturists (beekeepers, to you) at the Department of Agriculture Research Center at Beltsville, Md., to redouble their efforts to increase the Nation's output of honey.

Heads of the department have turned over to the Bureau of Bee Culture the task of upping by 50 per cent last year's crop of 206,590,000 pounds of domestic honey.

James I. Hambleton, chief apiarist at the center; and his coworker, Willis J. Nolan, senior apiculturist; believe they have found the answer in the old trick of fooling nature into increasing their populations.

They have discovered that the population of a beehive or colony will vary according to the amount of pollen available for the feeding of the young bees during the winter, and if an extra dose of pollen is slipped into a colony, the bees will immediately go to work to produce more little bees to eat it.

By robbing one colony of its pollen reserve, an apiarist can "overpollenate" 50 others and raise his bee population by as much as 100 per cent in a single season. "It's all very simple," they say. "More pollen—more young; more young — more bees; and more bees—more honey."

They have found that the output of pollen can be increased by moving the colonies into heavily pollinated areas at times when honey-producing flowers are not available. Another trick is to unite two colonies and then remove one of the queen bees. Each swarm will immediately think its population has doubled and, without asking the reason why, will go to work to double its pollen reserves.

Pollen, the male reproductive spore of plants, is made up of fine dust-like particles which are gathered by the bees and carried to the hive in fat pellet-like globules clinging to their hairy rear legs. Although pollen ocurs in colors ranging from a deep red to purple, generally it is a yellowish-brown and, when dried, resembles a well known brand of breakfast food.

The greatest problem the apiarists encountered was that of taking the pollen away from the home-bound bees and to do it in a nice sort of way. They have now invented a trap to be placed over the entrance of the hive, which removes the pollen as the bees enter to store it.

The trap consists of two strips of wire mesh in which the holes are just large enough for a bee to squeeze through without any baggage. As the pollen-laden bee enters, the pollen pellets are scraped off and drop into a wooden box placed below.

The pollen is then dried and stored in metal or glass containers for use later, either to be fed back to colonies that are experiencing a tough winter or to normal colonies to increase their broods of young.

The average hive will "knock off" between 40 and 50 pounds of pollen in a season, and some colonies in California have been known to produce as high as 70 pounds.

Pollen, according to the scientists, is a nearly perfect food. It contains fats, proteins, carbohydrates, minerals and vitamins. It is believed to be five or six times richer in pantothenic acid—a vitamin of the B complex—than either yeast or liver. Hambleton is working now on experiments he believes will prove pollen to be a valuable source of vitamin extract.

The bees, according to Nolan, are a philosophic lot, and are not in the least disconcerted over the robbery of their pollen. "They never complain," he said, "not vocally, anyhow. They just go out and gather some more pollen."

2. "THE TAKE" from average hive is 40 to 50 pounds of pollen a season. Senior Apiculturist Willis J. Nolan removes pollen from the trap. The Gibson Girl bonnet and veil serve a worthy and obvious purpose

If You Want a Winning Smile Include Calcium in Your Diet

Right Vitamins Also Essential To Good Teeth

By Ida Jean Kain

IF YOU have already acquired your third set of teeth, you will not be interested in reading any further. This is for the folks who still have a goodly number of their second set of teeth and want to hang on them.

We know quite a lot about nutrition and teeth. Not everything by any means. But we know definitely that their development and healthy maintenance depends upon the minerals, calcium and phosphorus, and the Vitamins A, C and D.

We need calcium and phosphorous because they are what the teeth are made of. Now, it isn't so important to learn that grown-ups require 0.8 grams of calcium a day and children from one to one and one-half grams. All you have to remember is that adults need a pint of milk every day and children from three to four glasses.

Calcium Need

You get some calcium in vegetables—which adults seem better able to utilize than children—but it is almost impossible to get enough calcium without the daily use of milk or cheese in the amounts stipulated.

Since the food which furnish calcium also furnish phorphorous, you can forget all about phosphorous as long as you get your milk and vegetables daily.

Why is that you must also have Vitamins A, C and D for healthy teeth? Because without these vitamins you could not effectively use the minerals. You might drink your milk and still lose your teeth unless you got these important vitamins.

Here again it is unnecessary to keep in mind that you need 5000 units of Vitamin D, and 75 milligrams or 1500 units of Vitamin C, and a certain amount of Vitamin D. All you have to do is make sure that your daily menus include a green leafy or yellow vegetable, three pats of butter or an enriched substitute, whole milk, cream, an egg, and that you realize it's a good rule to have meat organs of some kind once a week.

If You Use Skim Milk

If, in order to keep your calories down, you take skim milk or buttermilk in place of whole milk, then you must be sure to have a good serving of green leafy vegetable every day or to take a Vitamin A concentrate of haliver or codliver oil.

To get your Vitamin C you must have daily a citrus fruit—oranges or grapefruit or the juice—or tomatoes, plus a second fruit.

You also need some sunshine for Vitamin D. In the winter months it is most emphatically a good plan to take codliver oil, use a sun lamp regularly, or take a trip to Florida or California. There is a seasonal influence on the Vitamin D manufactured in your skin by the sun and surveys show there to be less dental caries during the seasons and in the countries where the sun shines brightest.

The amounts of the essential nutrients mentioned here are those suggested by the National Research Council for the nutrition yardstick. If you will follow this yardstick, you will have a pretty good chance of keeping your teeth. In addition, you will have a better chance of living longer and at a high level of positive health.

You Can Eat Your Vitamins and Wear Them, Too

By the Associated Press

This spring you can eat your vitamins and wear them too.

Whether your fancy is for a vegetable plate or a fruit compote, you can match your menu to your wardrobe, with a parade of the light-hearted new plastic buttons which simulate everything in the seed catalogue, from onions to radishes and from strawberries to pears.

If you're a salad addict, for instance, you may button up your new dress with a row of plastic peppers, beets or tomatoes. If you're a fruit faddist you may choose luscious red cherry buttons, blushing peaches or rosy apples, complete with green leaves. There are lapel clusters to match each of these fruit and vegetable button originals, and the whole idea is designed to add to the general gaiety of life.

Newest in the button parade are the "cut-fruit" series, which are so lifelike you want to bite into the halved cherry or apple which buttons up your dress or blouse.

The new buttons are finding their greatest use in brightening up last year's dresses that need a few new touches to put them in trim for another season of wear.

You'd be surprised what you can do with a plain navy blue dress, for instance, and an assortment of bright red strawberry buttons, also, and home-sewing fans are greeting them with cries of pure joy.

Home Beauty Aid Leaves Face Clear, Fresh

If you have a yen to look your best for the evening, but first aid meetings, nutrition classes and the duties of your household don't leave you time for getting a professional beauty service, try your own hand at a treatment that will give you a refreshed clean, relaxed look.

The herbal masque developed in the laboratories of a nationally known beautician for under-30, skin or beautilift masque for the over-30 skin may be the solution.

This masque is a thin, transparent, honey-like substance especially developed for young skins. Pat the masque gently over the face and neck and allow it to dry. Leave on for 20 minutes and then remove first with a dash of warm water, then cold. this will leave your skin clear and fresh, your face brighter, and a glow to your skin not unlike the kind you get when exercising in the crisp outdoor air.

The Beautilift Masque is for the mature skin. You dip the silk jersey masque in special beautilift lotion and adjust it to the contours of the face. Then you feel the sensation of having your face firmly lifted. Even your tired chin will tilt upward courageously. Leave the masque on for about 20 minutes while you bathe or take a catnap, Then remove.

Utensil Care

When a new utensil of porcelain enameled wear is used for the first time it is sometimes an advantage to fill it with lukewarm water, place it over a low flame and bring to a mild boil. Then empty it and permit it to cool slowly. This "tempering" process often contributes to increased life of the utensil.

Care of Woolens

With wool becoming more precious, it is important to take especial care of woolen clothes, new or old. Woolens may be kept fresh and clean by careful brushing, steam pressing, and spot removing with a reliable cleaning fluid. However, all woolens should be thoroughly cleaned before putting them away for the season. Clean garments, enclosed in an air-tight compartment with a moth repellent, are unlikely to be the victims of moths.

Hot Cross Buns Traditional Holy Week Food

HOT CROSS BUNS with their spicy flavor and yeasty fragrance make their appearance during Holy Week, but especially do we think of them for Good Friday. Perhaps that is because in the old days the gentry saw to it that a Hot Cross Bun was hung in the chimney place on Good Friday and left there throughout the year. This was supposed to bring good luck by preventing evil spirits from descending the chimney to ruin bread in the oven and cause other domestic troubles.

Primitive Saxons, too, marked buns with a cross in honor of Easter, their goddess of light, whose name had been borrowed for our Easter. We probably borrowed the venerable "crossed bun" along with the name.

Hot Cross Buns are not a special type of dough, but merely a bun marked with a cross. And the delicious ones served at a luncheon recently when Miss Bernice Burns, home economist, Electric Institute, was hostess to the press and radio girls, are worthy of the effort to bake during Holy Week.

The luncheon was really a rhapsody of spring, both in appearance and flavor. The menu follows:

Spring Luncheon Menu

Onion Soup
Corn Fritter Waffles
with Beeted Egg, Watercress Garnish
Grapefruit Orange Calavo Salad
Hot Cross Buns
Strawberry Cream Puffs
Coffee

The refrigerator roll recipe that was used for making the Hot Cross Buns, is one that may be used to make up the dough and keep in the refrigerator and then be used as needed. Miss Burns' recipe follows:

Hot Cross Buns—Add 1 teaspoon sugar to 2 yeast cakes and stir until liquified. Add ¼-cup lukewarm water. Mix together 2 cups lukewarm water, ½ cup sugar, 1 tablespoon salt and 2 tablespoons fat. Then add yeast mixture. Then add 2 eggs and 4 cups of flour, if using electric mixer, and mix for 5 to 8 minutes, then stir in 4 additional cups of flour. Store in refrigerator until needed. If a mixer is not used, add 8 cups of flour and 2 beaten eggs and knead as for any dough mixture. After storing in the refrigerator, take out quantity needed and place in greased muffin pans, filling pans ⅓ full. Let rise for 2½ to 3 hours or until double in bulk. Bake in quick oven, 425 degrees for about 20 minutes. Make cross on buns with mixture of confectioner's sugar, butter and cream. Makes 3 dozen rolls.

Accessories Copy Ripe Red Cherries

Accessories that look as if they were made from the skin of over-ripe cherries may be the coming season's most popular contribution to fashion. They go with everything.

One of the first to adopt them was Rosemary de Camp, movie star. Her bag, gloves and shoes of cherry-red patent-leather are perfect with her blue-gray dress-maker suit. She wears them too, adding a belt to match, with a coat-dress of soft green wool.

And to top it all, when Rosemary dons shoes and gloves with a mustard-yellow costume, she pins a cluster of shiny red cherries to her bonnet.

American Salad

Mexican Ambassador and Senora de Castillo Najera Entertain at Large Reception for Dr. Ezequiel Padilla

THAT VERY GOOD NEIGHBOR, Dr. Ezequiel Padilla, Mexico's Minister of Foreign Affairs, yesterday centered the spotlight at one of the largest receptions of the season.

Dr. Padilla

When the hospitable Mexican Ambassador and Senora de Castillo Najera give a party, there's no half-way business about it; and when they have such a famous guest of honor as Dr. Padilla, half the town turns out to help them celebrate. That, anyway, was the case "after 6 o'clock" yesterday when the Mexican Embassy was the scene of a fete that made history in more ways than one.

Guests came in droves . . . and kept coming. Five minutes after the opening hour, the spacious dining room, and the adjoining conservatory was a moving mass of official and diplomatic notables, with a scattering of out-of-towners and residential Washingtonians also on hand to enjoy the party. A bar set up in the conservatory did a rushing business for well over two hours; while, at the opposite end of the embassy, a rhumba band played for dancing until long after dinner time, even Latin-American dinner time.

The host and hostess and their guest of honor stood in the small drawing room to receive the throng. With them most of the time was pretty Erma Castillo Najera, who stood next to Dr. Padilla. Now and then a Cabinet member or a diplomat stopped the line to chat briefly with the Ambassador or the Minister of Foreign Affairs . . . but for the most part, greetings were brief and to the point, and each guest quickly made way for the one behind him.

* * * *

ANYBODY moving through the crowd could pick up interesting bits of information about Dr. Padilla. Everybody present seemed to have facts at fingertips. Yes, he was "the Magnificent Mexican" who starred so gloriously at the recent conference at Rio de Janeiro, one guest observed. Another remembered having met him a number of years ago when Padilla was attending Columbia University. A journalist, who specializes in international affairs, declared, "Padilla is the Man of the Hour in the Latin American picture," but when I asked him to elaborate that weighty statement, he suddenly remembered he hadn't yet had a drink . . . and started for the bar.

Senora de Castillo Najera

Tall, handsome and smiling, the dark-haired Dr. Padilla meanwhile was still shaking hands with one guest after another. A pretty woman asked about his new baby (born only two weeks ago) and a proud smile swept over his face. The baby was fine, he said. Very fine . . . And the line moved on.

In keeping with Washington custom, guests yesterday collected and lingered in the dining room. I don't know yet what the decorations were, nor the color of the candles that furnished practically all the light in that dark-walled chamber. I couldn't get that near the table. For more than two hours, the company was clustered around it so thickly that getting even a glimpse of the lavish spread was more trouble than it was worth.

An early arrival was the Peruvian Ambassador, Don Manuel de Freyre y Santander. Coming in a few minutes later was the Turkish Ambassador, Mehmet Munir Ertegun, and the Brazilian Ambassador Carlos Martins. The Ambassador of Venezuela and Senora de Escalante were accompanied by their pretty daughter, Senorita Maria Teresa Escalante. The Colombian Ambassador came on time and stayed late; as did the Chilean Ambassador and Senora de Michels and their daughter, Cristina.

"THERE'S Lady Halifax," somebody whispered; and every camera poised for action went into it at once. She came in with the Polish Ambassador and Mme. Ciechanowska. The Minister of Sweden, W. Bostrom was there; also, the Portuguese Minister and Mme. de Bianchi and the Minister of Norway and Mme. Morgenstierne.

Reflections in a teacup: The Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Jesse Jones, making the rounds quickly before going on to another party . . . The Netherlands Minister and Mme. Loudon, shaking hands with Senator Theodore F. Green and Representative Sol Bloom . . . Mrs. Thomas Burke arriving with her mother and seeming to know everybody present . . . "Wonder where the Ambassador is?" Mrs. A. A. Berle, a late arrival asked somebody. "Which Ambassador?" "Why the host," she said . . . and that very minute spotted him making his way with great difficulty through the throng in the dining room . . . Ramon Beteta, Mexican Undersecretary of the Treasury, and formerly a professor at the University of Texas, had a crowd around him during the entire party; as did Luciano Wiechers, counsellor of the Bank of Mexico, who took time out to chat with Export-Import Bank President, Warren Lee Pierson.

SENATOR Arthur Capper stopped in for a few moments before going on to the Yugoslav Legation party. Mrs. Stanley K. Hornbeck was there; also, Mrs. Breckinridge Bayne, who was accompanied by her niece, Mrs. John Norcross, who recently arrived here from the West Coast for an extended stay.

Flourishing at his second big-league fete of the day was the Soviet Ambassador, Maxim Litvinoff, who was quite a popular center of attention, despite the fact that he looked a bit tired. Yesterday morning he and Mme. Litvinoff entertained at a highly official musicale followed by a buffet luncheon.

Mexican Ambassador

The Yugoslav Counselor, Dr. Vladimir Rybar accompanied Mme. Elvina Dreszer. The latter, incidentally, was gayly reporting the good news that her friend, Wienawa Dlugoszewski, who with his wife visited in Washington last weekend, had just been appointed Polish Ambassador to Cuba. I heard also that Rafal Lepkowski, former member of the Polish Embassy staff, was to be back once more as secretary. All of which will be especially good news for his many Washington friends.

Hendersons Give Party for Miss Lewis

"One in a series of parties" might properly be said of the fete given yesterday by Ensign and Mrs. Clark Henderson in honor of Miss Volinda Lewis and Lieut. (j. g.) Hughes Call, whose marriage is on Saturday's calendar.

This time, however, it is not the same hosts for a number of parties, but the same guests of honor, who have been feted at a party a day for the past week. The wedding party was invited to yesterday's gathering, of course, and in all close to 50 guests dropped in at the Henderson's apartment on MacArthur Boulevard "from 5:30 on."

Their hostess greeted them wearing an American Beauty taffeta gown to match the name and color of the roses arranged about the room. The bride's attendants were on the guest list—her sister, Miss Phoebe Lewis; Miss Gertrude Good, Miss Barbara Allen and Mrs. Guy Mercer of Evanston, Ill.

Also invited were Miss Eliabeth Burton, Lieut. Robin Scully, Robert Farrell, of Chicago; Ensign James Vandermade, Lieut. William White, Capt. Cameron Brown, William Shipp, Ensign Frank Nagle, Col. and Mrs. Paul Henderson, parents of Ensign Henderson, and Josephine and Floranne Henderson, Capt. and Mrs. Thomas Gilchrist, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Ulman, Mr. and Mrs. Colbin E. Wright, of Detroit, Mich.; Lieut. and Mrs. John Harvard Castle.

Others on the guest list were Ensign and Mrs. Thad Brown, Lieut. and Mrs. Walter Lineberger, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Burritt, Capt. and Mrs. James Saalfield, Lieut. Thomas Griswold, Lieut. and Mrs. Allen Edwards, Ensign and Mrs. Byron Johnson, Lieut. David Northrup, Lieut. and Mrs. John Bittner, Mr. and Mrs. J. Edward Day, John Rumsey, of Bronxville, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. John D. Witten, and Lieut. Comdr. Paul B. Hartenstein, of Philadelphia.

Scottish Week To Create Wide Interest, Here

A Scottish bagpiper and hundreds of sprigs of white heather will lend atmosphere when Scottish Week opens at the British War Relief Headquarters on Monday.

Heather sprigs, a true Scotsman would swear to it, "will bring ye more luck than a dozen four-leaf clovers or a collection of rabbits' feet, and for a mere tu'pence you can buy yourself a piece of this monstrous luck at the coming sale-exhibit and help along a right worthy cause to boot."

Details of the "week" were ironed out yesterday, when the group of womer who will work on it and act as hostesses during its run met at the home of Mrs. George Hewitt Myers. The whole thing is under the generalship of as goodly a foursome of "Mac's" as could be imagined. Mrs. Robert Lister Macneil, wife of the Macneil of Barra. Mrs. Arthur MacArthur, Mrs. Wayne Macpherson and Miss Abbie McCammon.

A number of items will be for sale at the exhibit and the proceeds will go, entirely, to children evacuated to the highlands of Scotland from the bombed areas of Britain. More than 100 children are now living safe from bombs and bloodshed at Moy Hall and Corrimony House, two large old Inverness-shire castles, donated by their owners. The work is being carried on through the Scottish Clans Evacuation Plan, an entirely American organization of which Mrs. Macneil of Barra is chairman.

The ultimate aim is not only to help the youngsters to recover from the shocks of modern warfare, but to train them in the age-old Scottish crafts, the raising of sheep and the spinning and weaving of woolens. The work at the British end of the line is being carried on under the chairmanship of Cameron of Lochiel, Chief of the Clan Cameron, Lord Lieutenant of Inverness-shire.

To climax next week's exhibit and sale and to add a bit more to the coffers that will "keep the children evacuated," a musicale of Scotch ballads and tunes is planned for Sunday, April 12, at 9 o'clock in the evening. Mr. and Mrs. Myers have donated the use of their Textile Museum at 2330 S Street for the event. Miss Nemone Balfour, Scottish singer, and Miss Betty Paret, harpist, who will accompany her, will be the artists.

The S. C. E. P. (just to keep up with the initial vogue) lists a number of prominent Washingtonians on the national committee, which is headed by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt as honorary sponsor. Corcoran Thom is treasurer. The national committee includes Mrs. Robertt Woods Bliss, the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, the Rev. C. Leslie Glenn, Coleman Jennins, Canon Albert H. Lucas, Rear Admiral William Dugald MacDougall, Mrs. Gracie Richards, and Lady Margaret Walker, wife of John Walker.

The sisters plan to have but one attendant apiece, and in view of the wartime situation the parties, which ordinarily would have been given for them also will be curtailed.

Miss Catherine Eloise Lindsay will become the bride of George Wilson Peacock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur C. Peacock, of Williamsett, Mass. She will have Mrs. Charles Thompson as her matron of honor.

Military Mission Honored At Yugoslav Legation

By Patricia Grady

"I've never seen so much gold braid in my life before," said a dazzled guest at the reception which the Yugoslavian Minister and Mme. Fotitch gave yesterday in the new legation on R Street.

And indeed the military side of Washington—with the emphasis on the air forces—had turned out in full regalia to honor the members of the Yugoslavian military mission who shared the receiving line spotlight with the Minister and Mme. Fotitch. In the two weeks they have been here the mission has been busy establishing quasi-permanent headquarters in Washington as they plan to be "duration" workers. All members of the Yugoslavian air force, their job is to speed up the flow of American-made military equipment to their air force in the Middle East.

Mme. Fotitch, who pinned a pastel orchid to the shoulder of her aqua-gray dinner frock, trimmed in white beads, turned her guests over to the Minister who introduced them to the military mission members—at least to those of them in line, for several circulated among the guests. Members of the mission which is headed by Col. D. Savitch, include Maj. Mishovich, Capt. S. Papich, Capt. D. Ristich, Capt. D. Mucich, Capt. B. Vulich, Capt. D. Stanisavljevich, Lieut. M. Jelich and Flight Sergts. V. Jelich, M. Mitch and S. Kolega.

'General' Pepper Is Greeted

Definitely a social hit were the honor guests yesterday. So much so that one young lady decided to go down the receiving line a second time. At last count, she'd made the trek three times. "You must be a general," one of the mission told Mrs. Claude Pepper, after a glance at her silver star-bedecked cloak. "And he made me feel like one," laughed Mrs. Pepper.

"Where's my boss?" Justice Owen Roberts, who came in with Mrs. Roberts, asked Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone. But though "business" had kept the Chief Justice from attending the pleasant after 5:30 gathering, a large part of diplomatic, official and residential Washington managed to put business aside for the afternoon, and the rooms of the legation were still a moving mass of people at 7:30.

Mme. Hurban Pours Tea

Mme. Ciechanowska, wife of the Polish Ambassador, and Mrs. Clarence Norton Goodwin exchanged enthusiastic comment over the morning musicale at which Mme. Litvinoff had been hostess. Mme. Ciechanowska said that she would soon be back to a normal routine of living—she and the Polish Ambassador have had a succession of their country's notables visiting them these past weeks.

Those who could make their way past the besieged bar in the hall would have seen Mme. Hurban, wife of the Czecho-Slovakian Minister, pouring tea at the dining room table, laden with sandwiches, smoked meats and pastries, and centered in a patriotic bouquet of red roses, white carnations and blue delphinium.

"Why aren't you two in uniform?" asked one of the guests of Lieut. Col. Jorge Sarmiento, the Peruvian Military Attache, and Lieut. Col. Felipe Munilla, Cuban Military and Air Attache. Col. Sarmiento had an answer. Latin American military attaches, gentlemen that they are, don't want to add to the confusion of Washingtonians concerning uniforms—so, they cling to their civilian dress out of courtesy to the country that is their host. Very diplomatic, Col. Sarmiento.

Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Clifford Lee Corbin were among the early arrivals, though Mrs. Corbin explained that they almost didn't come because they had been locked out of their car. Countess Lasocki, wife of the Second Secretary of the Polish Embassy, was here, there and everywhere, in an eye-catching chapeau of zebra-striped taffeta. Mrs. Sumner Welles, working her way through the throng, told friends as she passed that she was on her way to the Mexican Embassy, "That is if I can ever get out," she added.

CAPITAL WHIRL

To get back to yesterday's party—just before this column ends . . . It was the largest fete in a series scheduled for Dr. Padilla, whose Washington visit is charted to end in the next few days. But I've an idea the whole town will be talking about him, and the reception in his honor for many days to come. In a burst of enthusiasm I said as much to the Mexican Ambassador and Dr. Padilla. "I am enjoying my Washington visit," said the Foreign Minister in measured tones as he made a courtly bow.

"Glad you had a good time," added Ambassador Castillo Najera, while his wife smiled her farewell; and pretty Erma waved a gay goodby as she went off to the ballroom to dance with a handsome young Army officer.

Mrs. Thorpe Urges Women to Work Toward Caution and Safety in Traffic

ON A GLOOMY, rainy day, or a dark and foggy night wear something light—a white or yellow scarf. Or you might carry a white umbrella or don a yellow rain coat. Just be sure that you can be seen at a distance in the dark. This is the advice of Mrs. George C. Thorpe, director of the Women's Safety Committee of the American Automobile Association.

Speaking "On Safety and Defense" before an audience last night in the Departmental Auditorium, Mrs. Thorpe pointed out that light-colored wearing apparel makes it possible for an automobile driver to see a pedestrian in the dark. This she asserted, often is the means of saving a life or preventing accidents.

Mrs. George C. Thorpe

"Such a simple precaution," she said, "is especially important now that District traffic lights are cut off at midnight."

Pointing out that many traffic accidents are due to the pedestrian's rush as well as the motorist's speed, Mrs. Thorpe urged her listeners (many of whom were defense workers newly arrived in Washington) to eliminate the necessity for speed by carefully budgeting time.

"For example," she said," if we have to reach our office on time, let's compute the length of time it takes to dress, breakfast and reach the street. Add to that the average time it takes to obtain transportation—the length of time en route . . . add 15 minutes for good measure. Then the chances are we'll reach our place of employment, safe, sound and ready to work."

"In the interest of National Defense," said Mrs. Thorpe, "we all have a redoubled responsibility to conserve human life." She emphasized the fact that as the war lengthened, traffic hazards would increase in Washington. She cited the large number of service men and civilian employes who use the already crowded streets of Washington as a potential reason for possible increased traffic accidents. Also, she pointed out that old tires would induce accidents. "New and inexperienced mechanics," she explained, "may fail to do repair jobs taken for granted, thus causing more accidents."

Because the new Federal employes (group) has been involved in 13 per cent of the 1941 traffic fatalities, the Women's Safety Committee of the A. A. A. is sponsoring a series of lectures on "Traffic Safety." Mrs. Thorpe's talk last night is one of a series designed to acquaint the newcomers with the District's traffic hazards and with ways to prevent accidents.

Young Actress to Appear Here

WHEN Mary McDougal Axelson, poet and playwright, went to an Oklahoma City hospital 13 years ago, to hold a tryst with the stork, she took her notebook along. "I will get a play out of this," thought Mrs. Axelson.

She got the play all right—"Life Begins," first produced on Broadway, then made into a movie, and reissued last year under the title, "A Child Is Born." She also got a future actress—her daughter, Mary Ivonne Axelson, who will be guest artist Wednesday afternoon, April 8, at the tea of the District of Columbia branch of the League of American Pen Women.

Mary Ivonne Axelson

One of the youngest entertainers ever to appear before the local pen women, Mary Ivonne will give a program of songs and readings, including some of her interpretations of old folk poems and ballads. She will be accompanied in her musical selections by Bess Heath Olmstead, treasurer of the League of American Pen Women.

About a year ago Mary Ivonne came to Washington from Hollywood with her parents. Her father, Dr. Ivar Axelson, is an economist with the State Department. Since coming here, Mary Ivonne has made more than 60 public appearances singing and acting on the radio and before disabled soldiers, club groups, schools, parties and other audiences. Her work has aroused wide interest in entertainment circles.

Living up to her background of birth, Mary Ivonne began acting as soon as she could talk, her first imitation being of the ice cream man in Riverside Park, New York, where her parents lived before going to Hollywood. She has "said pieces," appeared in plays, written plays, given monologues and danced and sang ever since. The Axelson home is full of costumes in which she represents Indians, pirates, queens, antebellum belles as the mood strikes her. In a group of children her first thought is to organize and produce an unwritten play.

Mary Ivonne's grandmother, Mrs. D. A. McDougal, a member of the League of American Pen Women, is widely known for her club activities. She was the first Democratic National committeewoman from Oklahoma.

Your Personal Success

Public Speaking

IN CLUB WORK or war work, some women naturally take the lead. Others have as much to offer, but they're so afraid to speak up in public.

Have you tried? Did you flounder from a poor start to a poorer end, "Er—I guess that's all?"

A few home lessons in public speaking will give you the confidence you need.

The start of a talk is really easy, if you know proper forms and parliamentary rules. "Mr. Chairman, fellow members" launches you. And, if you've risen slowly and paused a moment before speaking, you'll both look and feel poised as you begin.

How to keep going might be your next worry—suppose your mind goes blank! In a short talk just hold tight to your main idea. For a longer speech, have notes.

Ending is knowing when as much as how. When you've said your say just stop! And don't trail off weakly, but be clear and positive—"Let us reach our goal by the 30th. Thank you!"

With a little practice you may be the star speaker of your group! Our 40-page booklet on public speaking has complete directions for voice training, preparing and delivering speeches. Tells faults audiences don't like, includes parliamentary forms and sample speeches for different occasions.

6000 to Map USO Campaign For 32 Millions

Plans for collecting 32 million dollars with which to operate the United Service Organizations a second year will be launched April 12 at a conference in the Mayflower Hotel.

Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt yesterday invited 6000 civic leaders in all parts of the United States to attend. He said aims of the conference—called for Sunday because "everybody is so busy"—were the successful continuation of "a recreation program so vital in the Nation's war effort."

Within a year, he said, the number of Americans in uniform will increase twofold. On that basis, he pointed out money sought by the USO in the forthcoming campaign will come to about 2 cents per day for each sailor and soldier.

In the meantime, plans for the second campaign were being developed on the local front. A USO Council has been organized with Sidney F. Taliaferro as chairman.

Washington went over its goal of $250,000 by about $14,000 during the first campaign conducted last August. Half the amount went into the national USO treasury and the other half was distributed among the Salvation Army, the Travelers' Aid Society, Catholic Charities of District of Columbia, the Young Men's Christian Association, the Jewish Community Center, the Young Women's Christian Association, the Soldiers, Sailors and Marines Club and the District of Columbia Council of Defense. These agencies undertook to provide expanded recreational and welfare services to service men on leave in the city.

No national funds have been expended in the District, the idea being that recreation camps should be constructed in small communities with large Army camps near them—and that Washington should be able to care for itself.

Serving with Taliaferro on the new USO Council, which will open offices soon, will be Morris Cafritz, Mrs. Albert W. Atwood, John Saul and about 20 other members representing agencies making up the USO.

Slightly more than $14,000,000 was collected in the first national campaign, which was headed by Thomas Dewey of New York.

PUC Disapproves Motion to Dismiss Phone Hearings

A movement to dismiss hearings held by the Public Utilities Commission and the Federal Communications Commission on the 10 cent tariff for phone calls made in hotels and apartment houses was disapproved yesterday. The motion was entered by attorneys for the Hotel Association on grounds that neither commission had proper jurisdiction.

Such regulation, it was claimed, belonged properly to the office of the rent administrator. Under the Rent Control Act service as well as rents for apartments and hotels were frozen as of January 1, 1941. It was contended that this freezing included telephone service and equally the charges for them.

PUC Commissioner Gregory Hankin asserted that the hotels were not offering the services themselves, but were in effect, merely acting as agents for the telephone companies.

Hearings were continued until this morning at 10 o'clock.

Circus Train Due to Pause Here Today

The first robin has been sighted, bock beer is on tap and baseballs are thudding into catchers' mitts on every sandlot, but the official sign of spring will be upon us today.

At 7 this morning the Ringling-Barnum circus train is scheduled to pull into Potomac Yards at Alexandria en route from winter quarters in Sarasota, Fla., to the opening performance in New York.

No matter how early the hour, the perennial quota of circus fans is expected to greet the train when it rolls in for a two-hour layover to feed the elephants, take on water and give the hundreds of performers aboard a chance to stretch their educated legs.

The welcomers' delegation will be led by Dr. William M. Mann, director of National Zoological Park, and Melvin D. Hildreth, lawyer and officer of the National Circus Fans Association. Cheerfully they will skin their shoes—and maybe their shins—on cinder underfooting, trip over wires and risk decapitation by switch engines to get their first 1942 glimpse of "the big show."

The circus will play a week's engagement here next month.

Funeral Rites For Mrs. Hayes Set for Today

Funeral services for Mrs. Alma Leola Hayes, prominent clubwoman and resident of Takoma Park for 20 years, who died Tuesday night at home, 13 Sycamore Avenue, will be held today at 11 a. m. in the Hines Funeral Home, 2901 Fourteenth Street Northwest. Burial will be in George Washington Memorial Park.

The Rev. Reno S. Harp, rector of Trinity Episcopal Church will conduct the service.

A native of Winona, Miss., Mrs. Hayes graduated from Columbia State College for Women and also attended Chicago University. Active in the Takoma Park Women's Club, Mrs. Hayes at one time was chairman of the Drama Department and chairman of the club's publicity committee. She was well known in amateur theatrical circles frequently taking part in community plays. For the last five years she has been employed in the Census Bureau.

Surviving are her husband, J. Warrington Hayes; two brothers, Dr. William E. Bray, of the University of Virginia faculty; Maurice A. Bray, of Portland, Oreg., and an aunt, Mrs. L. B. Sparkman, of Cleveland, Ohio.

McNutt to Reduce Activities Of Physical Fitness Division

By Christine Sadler
Post Staff Writer

Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt will use a "divide and conquer" technique to save his Office of Defense Health and Welfare Services from the stigma attached to the physical fitness division which landed in the FSA lap yesterday by transfer from the Office of Civilian Defense.

Some functions of the office, which has developed a "Hale America" program extending throughout the country, will be fitted into the ODHWS recreation division, it was learned last night. Some will be shifted to the United States Office of Education, which is seen as the logical agency to carry a sports program to the Nation's school. Still others will be left to the Children's Bureau.

But many of the division's activities will just be stopped, it appeared, as the FSA office issued a statement that Administrator McNutt has asked the Budget Bureau for an allotment of funds "greatly reduced" from the amount Director John B. Kelly said the program must have "if I am going to stay with it."

Kelly Asked Million

Kelly said one million dollars was needed and that he would resign if the fund went below $300,000. The division now has a budget of only $84,000 annually—since most of its manifold interests are carried on by $1-a-year experts and sports coordinators willing to serve for the honor of it.

The FSA office declared the amount McNutt has asked of the Budget Bureau for physical fitness goes way under even the $84,000.

Senator Byrd (Democrat), of Virginia, chairman of the joint committee on nonessential Federal expenditures, yesterday asked the new boss of physical fitness to furnish the committee with a complete list of everybody working for the division's program—either as volunteers or paid workers.

Also he asked whether Administrator McNutt intended to get funds to operate the division from "existing emergency funds," or whether he intended to come to Congress for an appropriation and "give Congress the right to pass on activities for which the money is being expended."

Budget Bureau Action Awaited

It was in the division of physical fitness that Mayris Chaney, friend of Mrs. Roosevelt, served as director of the children's division and folk-dancing.

Official announcement of ODHWS plans for all the various sections of the division and the 61 sports will not be made by McNutt until the Budget Bureau has acted on his request for funds, it was said yesterday.

Navy Lifts Ban On 2-Year Wait Before Marriage

The Navy lifted the gates yesterday and young Navy and Marine regular officers henceforth can embark on the sea of matrimony without the previously required two-year waiting period.

Word was flashed to ships and stations that the 10-year-old ban has been lifted for duration of the war. And the news must have spread swiftly, for in a few hours a number of young women called information offices here for additional details.

On Capitol Hill, members of the Senate Military Affairs Committee took a large share of credit for the Navy's concession to Cupid and predicted that the Army may soon follow suit. The Senate only the other day passed the committee-sponsored bill of Senator Chan Gurney (Republican), of South Dakota, that would prohibit any discrimination against Army, Navy or Marine officers who marry during the current war.

Bust of MacArthur Arrives Here for Unveiling Monday

Gen. Douglas MacArthur had trouble getting from New York to the Mayflower yesterday. He wouldn't fit into a lower berth, so he traveled on the outside platform of the train. And it took three baggagemen, a policeman, and a truck to get him from Union Station to the hotel.

This particular Gen. MacArthur is a larger-than-life clay portrait bust of the hero of Bataan.

The sculptor, Nison Tregor, brought it to Washington for a formal unveiling ceremony on Monday, Army Day. He tried to get a drawing room, so that he and the general could travel together sociably. But the train was crowded.

The portrait bust was commissioned by Howard Hoeffer, New York businessman and philanthropist, who is presenting it to West Point. The Army Day ceremony—a by-invitation-only affair—will take place in the Mayflower at 6:15 p. m. Monday and will be broadcast over a Nation-wide Mutual network. It also will be shortwaved to Australia and efforts are being made to arrange a response from Gen. MacArthur himself.

Mrs. Arthur MacArthur, sister-in-law of the general, will unveil the portrait bust. Hoeffer will present it to Maj. Gen. William Connor, former superintendent of the United States Military Academy, who has been delegated to accept it on behalf of the West Point authorities.

Paul McNutt, former Fovernor General of the Philippines, is chairman of the program. Philippine Commissioner Joaquin Elizalde will speak, as will Dr. Herbert Evatt, Australian minister of foreign affairs and attorney general.

Mrs. Roosevelt heads the imposing list of patrons and patronesses.

More than 10,000 worshipers are expected to attend the Easter sunrise service of the District of Columbia Organized Bible Class Association at 6:40 a. m.—the break of dawn—on the heights of Fort Lincoln, Bladensburg Road and the District Line, according to association officials.

The Bible Association has more than 15,000 members in churches throughout the District, Maryland and Virginia.

School Board Gets Religion Teaching Plan

The Board of Education yesterday took under advisement a proposal to establish a religious education program for public school pupils.

Recommended by a local interdenominational committee, headed by the Rev. J. Herbert Garner, pastor of Sixth Presbyterian Church, the plan calls for a one-year demonstration to be launched next fall in the fourth, seventh and tenth grades.

Holding its semimonthly meeting, the board also:

Heard School Superintendent Frank W. Ballou urge pressure for appropriations to improve and expand physical education in all grades.

Voted to close the night schools on May 4, 6 and 7 when they will be used for sugar rationing registration.

Supported a committee report that construction of the proposed Spingarn High School "is urgently necessary" and a priority rating by the War Production Board is justified.

The Rev. Mr. Garner appeared before the board to request its consideration of the religious education program. It provides for children to be released from public school classes each weekday to attend special sessions in the nearest available churches of the pupils' affiliations.

Both white and Negro children would be included. Participation would be optional. Public funds are not to be used for the program; rather, "each class shall be taught by an instructor selected and paid by the cooperation religious groups, whose training and experience are equivalent to those of public school teachers and who have an unusually strong personality and spiritual fitness."

Other Cities Use System

The committee chairman pointed out in response to questioning by Charles Drayton, board member, that similar classes are being held in 488 American communities. In some places, he said, the movement is 28 years old.

John J. Wilson, board member, moved that the Board of Education take time to ponder the request for a one-year tryout of religious education in one grade each of the elementary, junior and senior high schools. The motion was adopted unanimously.

Members of the sponsoring committee accompanied Chairman Garner to the board meeting. They are Msgr. Lawrence J. Shehan, rector of St. Patrick's Church; Rabbi Morton Fierman, of Washington Hebrew Congregation, and the Rev. Dr. S. Paul Schilling, pastor of Brookland Methodist Church.

Advising the board to press for more money to spend on health care and physical education, Supt. Ballou cited a press conference statement by Secretary of War Stimson last week advocating emphasis on elevation of physical standards.

Ballou Explains Program

Ballou explained that the expansion program, covering all grades, has long since been prepared and can be put into effect "as rapidly as appropriations are made for that purpose."

"This seems to be an appropriate time to renew our efforts to secure such appropriations," he asserted.

Meantime, Milo F. Christiansen, acting coordinator of recreation, reported that practically all night operations of school and recreation buildings by the Community Center and Playgrounds Department will end on Saturday unless additional funds are made available.

This action is imperative, he said, despite increased demand for use of such school facilities as auditoriums, gymnasiums, music rooms and rifle ranges. A deficiency request to permit operation of these evening centers at least three nights a week is pending in the House.

Victim Clears Suspect in Kidnaping

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

MRS. MARY JACOBSON,

By the Associated Press

Cincinnati, April 1.—Mrs. Mary Jacobson, 33, of Calumet City, Ill., viewed a suspected kidnaper from her hospital bed today, but said "he is not one of the two men who did it."

Abducted at Hammond, Ind., Monday night she was found bound and gagged here yesterday.

Mrs. Jacobson was treated for shock and exposure. Physicians said she was raped. The suspect was arrested a few hours after she was found wandering barefoot and her hands bound behind her with a necktie. Police, reporting the suspect was released recently from an Indiana prison, detained him for questioning in connection with several robberies.

In Chicago, police questioned three paroled convicts about the kidnaping. They were picked up with a car stolen Monday night in Cincinnati.

$300,000 Will Be Used to Improve Seven D. C. Playgrounds

Nearly $300,000 left over from the District's share of the first Lanham Act appropriation will be used to improve seven District playgrounds, the Commissioners announced last night.

The money is to be spent, however, only for grading, applying top soil, and seeding and sodding for grass.

Sites to be improved are:

The stadium site in Anacostia Park which will get the lion's share of the money, according to present apportionment. Now a dump, this area will serve to replace a number of the play-field facilities absorbed in the erection of temporary Government buildings. Extensive filling will be necessary, however, to fit it even for turf.

The Oxon Run Recreation Center at Fourth and Mississippi Avenue Southeast, a completely undeveloped tract in Anacostia, is accesible to a defense housing project of 2500 units, which to date has had no recreational facilities.

30 Per Cent to Negro Centers

The Langston, Banneker and Randall recreational centers for Negroes will get about 30 per cent of the money, Commissioner Guy Mason said, pointing out that this is fairly proportional to the population percentage.

The Banneker Center, at Georgia Avenue and Euclid Street Northwest, is nearly completed, but lack of CCC labor halted the work. Protection of the large investment is given as a justification for the further improvements. The Langston Center, at Benning Road and Anacostia Parkway, is the largest Negro Center planned. The Randall Center, South Capitol and H Streets Southwest, is held to be necessary because the Navy Yard recently occupied the Lincoln Playground which had served this section.

Southwest Center

The Southwest Recreation Center, Eighth and H Streets Southwest, had stood as a brick-heap for 20 months since two blocks of dwellings were demolished to make way for it. A surprise inspection by the Commissioners last fall brought a promise that this area would be included in the first list of improvements.

Last playground on the list is the Hillcrest Recreation Center, at Alabama Avenue and Thirtieth Streets Southeast, a completely undeveloped area adjacent to defense housing projects recently completed or under construction.

The work on these playgrounds will be under the supervision of the National Capital Parks Board.

President Asks For $528,519 More for D. C.

President Roosevelt yesterday sent to the Senate supplemental and deficiency estimates for the District totaling $528,519.18, of which the largest amount—$230,700—is marked for Health Department use.

Dr. George C. Ruhland, District health officer, whose department has consistently sought additional funds to meet increased demands brought about by Washington's growing population, pointed out that the amount is urgently needed and if passed by Congress would represent the largest single supplemental appropriation ever granted the department.

All of the total appropriation request, except for $1409.18 in deficiency items for 1941, is in the form of a supplemental estimate for the 1942 fiscal year.

$84,765 for Gallinger

Of the amount requested for the Health Department, $84,765 is marked for maintenance and personal services at Gallinger Hospital, while $61,820 is slated for Glenn Dale sanitaria.

Other amounts asked for the Health Department include $55,590 for additional medical services in the fields of tuberculosis and venereal disease control; $20,600 for sanitary inspections; $3125 for laboratory operation and maintenance, and $4800 for general administrative expenses.

If a request for $80,000 to be used by the city refuse division is accepted by Congress, the District will be able to enforce more rigidly laws regulating refuse disposal. Recently there has been criticism on Capitol Hill of alleged laxities on the part of the local government in collecting garbage. The request also carries $29,600 additional for street cleaning.

$45,000 to Complete School

In order to complete six classrooms at the Lafayette School $45,000 is asked, and $18,975 for additional expenses of the Community Center Department of the Public Schools.

Other items forwarded by the President to Congress include: $27,000, workhouse and reformatory; $15,000, District Training School; $4650, jail; $5000, Industrial Home School for Colored Children; $38,300, National Capital parks; $1409.18, militia; $5400, salaries and expenses of the office of administrator of rent control; $840, Municipal Court.

Contingent and miscellaneous expenses asked total $24,200. A total of $2445 is asked for salaries in the District Department of Insurance.

Zoo, Hospital Both Rejoice April Fool's Come and Gone

At least two District institutions are glad All Fool's Day is over.

Morning, noon and night, National Zoological Park and St. Elizabeths Hospital were plagued with telephone calls by gullibles whom pranksters had asked to call Columbia 0743 or Lincoln 1426.

In the one instance, the party on the other end wanted to speak to Mr. Fox, Mr. Hare, Ella Phant, etc. At St. Elizabeths, an institution for care of mental disorders, the switchboard intercepted 240 calls up to 3 p. m. by people who, in all seriousness, asked for any number of persons.

Although the telephone company was intercepting most of these phony messages, more than 100 of them had slipped through and reached the Zoo office switchboard by noon. An innovation this year, a sign of the military times, were the calls for "Gen. Quack" and Lieut. Comdr. Robin, who has just arrived in Washington."

A third target was the aquarium in the Commerce Building but, as is his annual custom, Director Fred Orsinger asked for no switchboard sifting and cheerfully answered calls for Miss Bass, Dr. Pike and all the others.

"Got a new one this year," he said. "Somebody wanted Min O. But the funniest was the fellow who refused to believe he had been fooled. When I told him 'this is the aquarium,' he said, 'Sure, and I'm King Edward VI. Now let me speak to Mr. Perch.'"

Funeral Services Conducted for Jacob A. Aull

Funeral services for Jacob A. Aull, 74, who died Monday at his home, 5430 Carolina Place Northwest, were held yesterday at 4 p. m. in the Lee Funeral Home, Fourth and Massachusetts Avenue Northeast. Remains will be sent to Belleville, Ill.

Mr. Aull had been employed in the Finance Division of the War Department for 40 years. He was retired in 1937.

He leaves his wife, Eleanor R. Aull; two daughters, Mrs. Florence Rapp and Mrs. Ruth Aull Cerick; and six grandchildren, all of this city.

Dr. J. A. Meledy Of Mount Alto Staff Dies

Dr. Joseph A. Meledy, chief of the reception and out-patient services at the Mount Alto Veterans Administration Hospital, died early yesterday at Walter Reed Hospital.

Dr. Meledy, who had been with the Veterans Administration from the time of its inception, was taken to Walter Reed about ten days ago. He had been ill for a few days about two weeks before that. He was 50.

After serving four years with the Veterans Administration here when it was begun, Dr. Meledy went to Boston to become chief of the medical and surgical unit in the office there. He returned here, to Mount Alto, two years ago. He was to have gone back to Boston to become chief medical officer of the Veterans Hospital there when it was completed.

During World War I Dr. Meledy was a Navy physician, being stationed at Chelsea Naval Hospital, near Boston. At the time of his death he was a lieutenant commander in the Naval Reserve.

He was a member of the Massachusetts Medical Society, the American Legion and an honorary member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mary Hayes Meledy, 1727 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest, and his father, John E. Meledy, Providence, R. I.

Services will be at 9 a. m. tomorrow in Fort Myer Chapel. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

Eccles Backs Move to Kill Silver Purchase Measure

Senator Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan, put into the Congressional Record yesterday a letter in which Chairman M. S. Eccles of the Federal Reserve System indorsed a proposal to repeal the Government's silver purchase program.

"My own views are generally in accord with those expressed by the Secretary of the Treasury at a press conference last month when he was quoted as favoring repeal of the silver purchase legislation and as advocating the sale to industry of the silver accumulated by the Treasury during the past seven years," wrote Eccles.

"In view of the war situation, it is all the more urgent that the inflationary effects of the silver program be removed and that so far as possible the materials, machinery and labor now devoted to silver production be utilized in the war effort."

Under the silver purchase program the Treasury is required to buy domestic and foreign silver until it reaches a value of $1.29 cents per ounce or until the Treasury's holdings of silver equal one-third the value of its gold stocks. The market price of silver currently is 35 cents per ounce and the Treasury's silver stocks equal only about one-eighth of its gold holdings.

Thirty-five cents is the price currently paid by the Treasury for foreign silver, but under another Congressional act of a few years ago the Treasury buys silver in this country at 71.11 cents per ounce.

Congress Asked To Lift Curbs on Menhaden Fishing

By the Associated Press

Legislation for "temporary suspension of the operation of State laws" imposing restrictions on menhaden fishing has been introduced in Congress.

Aides to Representative Traynor (Democrat), of Delaware, author of the measure, said he expected to press for early consideration of the bill (H. R. 6885) when Congress returns to work after the Easter holidays.

Traynor, in a lengthy preamble to the measure, cited the "increasingly acute" need for products of the menhaden industry, as a result of increasing demands for war production and loss of imports of other products for which they are a valuable substitute.

Menhaden, a nonedible fish, is a valuable source of high-grade industrial oil and fish meal.

Existing restrictions imposed by "certain States," the bill said, "prevent the maximum catch, full utilization of available facilities for fishing and full utilization of facilities for manufacture of products and by-products of the menhaden industry."

Dr. J. D. Bradfield Leaves Estate Valued at $10,000

Dr. J. Davis Bradfield, prominent retired physician who died on March 7, left an estate valued at approximately $10,000, it was learned at District Court yesterday in a petition for probate of his will.

Attached to the District of Columbia Health Department for many years, Dr. Bradfield left the bulk of his estate to his widow, Mrs. Flora Bradfield, of 1010 Rhode Island Avenue Northeast, according to the will filed for probate by attorneys Daniel B. Maher and Dennis Collins.

He also left bequests of $100 to each of his three daughters, Mrs. Helen Truscott, wife of former Police Capt. Floyd A. Truscott, now on duty with the Navy; Mrs. Flora Mae Lewis, of Washington, and Mrs. Anna V. Archer, of Falls Church, Va.

Decentralization Planned for SS

Three proposals have been agreed upon looking to the decentralization of the Social Security Board. The Government already has offered to buy the huge Maryland Casualty Company building in Baltimore. If this offer is accepted, the Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance will be moved into the building. The bureau has 4700 employes in Baltimore now in the Chandler Building and about 2000 here. Jesse Jones' RFC has a stake in the ultra-modern building and one of Jones' assistants, Stewart McDonald, former FHA boss, is connected with Maryland Casualty. So if the Government wants the building very badly it will get it. And if it does, it will end the controversy over the bureau.

But if the Government's offer for the building is rejected, the alternative is to split up the entire Social Security Board into regional offices. This plan has been mulled over and talked about since there has been a Social Security Board, but the vastness of the job and the crimp it would put temporarily into the board's operations has always scared the planners. The third alternative, if numbers 1 and 2 have to be scrapped, is the transfer of the bureau only to a large city like New York or Chicago where the 6700 employes could be easily absorbed. The transfer of the bureau is a real problem. It would cost a minimum of $1,300,000 and the multitude of files and heavy equipment would require the services of several hundred railroad cars which are hard to get now.

Civil Service Commission has liberalized annual leave. Its employes may now take up to 11 work days, or two weeks, at any one time. The former limit, set after Pearl Harbor, was one day, which resulted in an upturn in sick leave. Twenty days leave is the maximum an employe will be permitted to take this year . . . Martha W. Williams has been retired from the Tariff Commission. She spent 42 years in the service . . . Why not a plan to recognize civilian Federal employes who do more than their bit in winning the war? Soldiers on the front lines are decorated and WPB is working on a plan to recognize production heros in war industries. If Federal employes were singled out for awards it would bolster morale throughout the service. Employes then would feel that they were contributing something toward winning the war which, of course, they are.

Transfer Problems

Information and press divisions of all but out-and-out war agencies are going to be drastically curtailed. It may come in an executive order . . . War Transfer Unit isn't meeting the demands of war agencies for personnel. The unit has done a good enough job but not good enough to satisfy the war agencies. Transfers are delayed and many employes are afraid to be transferred when their agencies object . . . they are fearful of post-war retaliation. And the Civil Service Commission should crack down on the agencies that are sabotaging the President's transfer plan.

As vacation time nears, the question of a uniform leave policy is being discussed. Some agencies won't allow their employes to take more than a day or two of leave. Others will allow the entire 26 days. Some sort of a uniform policy probably will be directed from the White House. The best guess is that employes will be permitted two weeks vacation at a minimum. The Administration, in that event, will get behind the Bulow bill which would permit employes to accrue annual leave indefinitely. Now employes can carry over only 60 days from one year to another. Thousands of days of leave each year are forfeited to the Government simply because employes aren't allowed to take it. Incidentally, many agencies are far busier now than they were when they curtailed leave months ago. As a result many employes haven't had vacations since the emergency.

A Concrete Reminder

A. W. Bacon, of Burlington, Vt., decided that he wanted to come to Washington for a little vacation. He felt that he must get away and forget his work and Burlington for a couple of weeks. So he came to town and after a diligent search finally found a hotel room and discovered that he was in . . . The Burlington Hotel, on Vermont Avenue.

D. C. Doctors And Nurses Sign for Duty

Approximately 1500 Have Registered As Volunteers For Emergencies

How Washington is marshalling its physicians, nurses and hospital resources for instant use in event of bombing was described last night to 300 members of the District Medical Society.

Condensing into a single paragraph what the six speakers said:

Prompt and eager cooperation by the local medical and nursing professions with preparedness plans made by the Emergency Medical Service and Office of Civilian Defense has made possible a program in which nothing has been overlooked—first aid and casualty stations, emergency expansions of hospitals, blood banks, etc.

Dr. John A. Reed, chief of the Emergency Medical Service, reported that all but two units have been organized, locations selected for 83 casualty stations, plans are under way for establishment of a central blood-plasma bank and every Washington hospital is prepared to care for raid victims.

949 Doctors Register

Dr. O. B. Hunter, assistant chief medical officer in charge of personnel, told the assembly that to date 949 physicians and 518 nurses have registered as vounteers for emergency service. A central file contains cards on all of them, giving their specialties, telephone numbers, office and home addresses—even telling whether they are married or single.

Dr. George Baehr, chief medical officer of the Office of Civilian Defense, said a campaign will be launched in the next few weeks to enroll physicians in the United States Public Health Service Reserve for emergency duty in base hospitals and reception centers.

"Danger is imminent," he declared, "but plans to meet it are well under way."

The important role that blood and plasma transfusions would play in treatment of shock, hemorrhage and burns was stressed by Dr. Charles Stanley White, chairman of the professional advisory committee to the Emergency Medical Service.

His talk was illustrated with a motion picture, made at Gallinger Hospital, showing steps in the manufacture of plasma from whole blood.

Col. Boles Heard

Robert G. Whitton, business manager of Alexandria Hospital, yesterday disclosed that the institution has been chosen as one of the "bleeding centers" which will supply the central "plasma bank" to be set up in Washington with funds donated by the American Federation of Labor.

Whitton said he has been informed by Dr. Roger M. Choisser, assistant to the chief medical officer of OCD, that the plasma processing center will be at George Washington University Hospital. However, in his talk last night Dr. Reed indicated that no choice has yet been made.

Other speakers on the medical society's civilian defense program were Col. Lemuel Bolles, executive director of Washington's defense organization, and Capt. Charles S. Stephenson, U. S. N., professor of preventive medicine at the Naval Medical Center.

The OCD was praised by Col. Bolles for the simplicity and clarity of its directions. Capt. Stephenson warned that should bombings come, Washington physicians will have to condition themselves to get along without some of the drugs which they are accustomed to using.

NYA Provides D. C. Defense Radio Trailer

A red, white and blue trailer housing a portable radio receiving and transmitting set was the National Youth Administration's contribution yesterday to the District's civilian defense.

The trailer, made of salvaged junk by NYA boys at South Charleston, W. Va., was handed over to the District for the duration of the war by Deputy NYA Director Dillard B. Lassiter and Robert R. Burton, chief of radio projects, in a short ceremony at the Municipal Center.

Assistant Engineer Commissioner Beverly C. Snow, Civilian Defense Executive Lemuel Bolles, and Defense Commcations Chief Herbert A. Friede received the trailer for the District.

The transmitter, which broadcasts on all short waves granted amateurs by the Federal Communications Commission, would serve primarily to establish communications with the outside world if all other means were destroyed. Beside hook-ups with the local power lines, the set can generate its own power by means of an engine salvaged from a wrecked Willys-Knight automobile found in a West Virginia junk yard.

In addition to the radio equipment, the trailer had fire-extinguishing apparatus, first-aid materials, and sleeping accommodations for four persons.

Negotiations for the District's use of the trailer were begun in January, but were delayed because the Civilian Defense legal division held the District could not accept an indefinite loan, and the NYA lawyers contended that the NYA could not make a gift. A compromise was worked out last week whereby the District has the machine definitely for the duration, but the title remains in West Virginia.

23 Arrested For Using '41 Auto Plates

In their first day checkup on Washington motorists driving with 1941 automobile tags, police yesterday arrested 23 car owners for driving with improper tags.

Of these, six drivers were charged with driving with improper tags although they had the 1942 licenses in their possession, police said. They were required to post $2 collateral.

The other 17 drivers were charged with driving with "dead" tags and were forced to post $25 collateral. Each case elected to appear in traffic court today rather than forfeit the collateral, it was reported by police.

Meanwhile motorists were reminded again that their 1941 license plates are of vital importance to the country's war effort.

Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer said many thousand pounds of urgently needed steel can be reclaimed if car owners will turn in their old tags to the gasoline station nearest their homes or places of business.

Several hundred barrels of last year's plates already have been donated for reclamation purposes and Van Duzer urged that none of the tags be thrown away nor retained as "keepsakes."

He explained that the District Salvage Committee has agreed to collect discarded tags from the various service stations and turn them over to the Federal Government.

Ickes' New Taxes Serve to Increase D. C. Traffic Jam

Traffic congestion on Route 1 between Alexandria and Washington became worse yesterday as the A. B. & W. Transit Co., of Alexandria began operating a number of its buses over this route because of a new license fee for commercial passenger vehicles using the Mount Vernon Memorial Highway.

A license fee of $3 annually for each seat became effective yesterday by order of Secretary of interior Ickes. An A. B. & W. official said the company had obtained licenses to operate ten vehicles over the Memorial Highway. Other vehicles operated by the company were shifted to Route 1 to avoid the extra expense of license fees.

"If the company certified all of its buses so as to continue service previously rendered it would cost us about $11,000," a company official said.

British Use of Films to Spread War Facts And Educate Civilians Is Explained Here

Ways in which England has used moving pictures to spread war information and educate for civilian mobilization were explained at the British Press Service, 1317 F Street Northwest, yesterday by Thomas Baird, director of nontheatrical films and distribution for the British ministry of information.

Baird will be in the United States for several weeks to obtain American films for distribution in Britain and to study the reception in this country of the British pictures—which are being widely used by civilian defense groups and run as shorts in movie houses.

Not many American films based on the war effort have yet reached England, he said, the first being the Office for Emergency Management's "Bomber"—which he described as "quite a hit."

The British ministry of information has been making documentary films for many years, he pointed out, has more than 150 shows to its credit. Its range of subjects is wide enough to include wartime cooking lessons and "Target for Tonight," which he described as their best longer show to date.

By means of mobile units, the films are taken to groups throughout the country and shown in factories.

Air Scouts to Resume Basic Ground Training

Air Raid Warden Edmund O'Sullivan, of Zone 6, Dupont Circle Area, announced yesterday that all 250 volunteers in the air raid warden service should report at a meeting tonight at 8 o'clock in the Ross School to receive new orders from Chief Clement Murphy.

He also announced that Sector 606 in Zone 6 is now permanently located in the Roxboro Apartments, 1717 R Street Northwest.

300 Wardens Complete Gas-Fighting Course

Three hundred wardens completed Course C—methods of combatting gas—at the Garnett-Patterson Junior High School last night. The wardens are in Zones 1 to 11 in the midcity area.

Deputy Warden William J. Mileham lectured. Sylvan King, deputy warden in charge of messengers, also spoke. Woolsey Hall presided. Zone wardens present were Daniel Spriggs, Leon E. Murray, P. W. Infallible Sign of Spring Parks Briefly Here Today

'Greatest Show on Earth' Pauses for Breath; Alfred Hitchcock Also Drops by for Lunch; Items of News and Gossip of the Theater

TODAY IS THE DAY. For a minute, anyhow.

For those to whom a whiff of tanbark, the aromatic pungency of steaming animals and the hurly-burly of a caravan in motion is the first true harbinger, spring will arrive in Washington at 7 o'clock this morning when the Ringling Brothers-Barnum & Bailey Circus will put in at Potomac Yards long enough for the feeding and watering of stock, replenishment of the dining cars, a brief stretching of legs and a sniff of fresh air. No, the big top will not be pitched along the railroad tracks and there won't be any "grand street pageant."

ELLIOTT NUGENT

It is merely that this gigantic, arenic spectacle is en route from its winter quarters in Sarasota, Fla., to New York for the opening of a season that probably will prove unique in the annals of the show, what with the war, transportation problems, priorities, rationings and the like. But the circus this year ought to be a honey.

Our incarnate encyclopedia of such things, Mr. Melvin D. Hildreth, tells us that the preparation of the show this year has been in the nature of a continuous dress rehearsal, conducted under canvas, with the bands playing and all of the elements of a real performance being present, except the audience. It will be "old stuff" to all the performers when they publicly break out the acres of tents.

All of which, of course, is getting the bandwagon ahead of the 40-horse team. The "greatest show on earth" will not be coming along to Washington even as early as was at first announced, owing to a later revision of plans, all in the Capital's favor. Originally scheduled for three days in the middle of May, the circus now will arrive here on May 25 and will stay a week, the longest engagement any major tent show ever has played on a local lot. It hasn't taken the circus people long to catch on that Washington, with its enormous influx of population, now is an extended-run town.

Famous Director Here Today

And some other plans have been subject to alteration, too. The world premiere of "Saboteur" having been deferred, through force of circumstances, from Wednesday, April 15, to a week later, April 22, at RKO-Keith's, and that being a date on which Director Alfred Hitchcock cannot be present, he is flying into town this morning to lunch with the press at the Carlton Hotel at 1. Supreme in his field, Mr. Hitchcock will be an interesting person to meet. And that reminds me. Maybe all this juggling is just another manifestation of the uncanny Hitchcock faculty for creating compound suspense. Could be.

Becomingly wearing various shades of tan—Floridian and sunlamp—the Earle Theater Roxyettes have been flittering back to town this week and removing the kinks in rehearsal of Harry Anger's new stage revue, opening tomorrow on Thirteenth Street in conjunction with first Washington showings of the Warner Brothers' film version of "The Male Animal," by James Thurber and Elliott Nugent—the same Elliott Nugent recently at the National with Katharine Hepburn in "Without Love." The gals will be welcome back after their four weeks of vacation wandering, the longest respite they've ever had in their three years at the Earle.

What Everyone Should Know

Another of those timely and informative short-reelers will be on view at both the Earle and Metropolitan, come tomorrow, too. It is an item made wholly clear by its title—"Fighting the Fire Bomb." It was produced in the interest of national defense for the Office of Civilian Defense and will disclose a lot that everybody ought to know.

Speaking of the Earle, Blackstone, perhaps the foremost of the stage's surviving masters of hocus-pocus, will bring his famous bag of tricks and a company of 30 assistant magic-workers to the Warner stage on April 17, for the first dash of black art the Capital has had in months. And, some time in May, according to Manager Gene Ford, Alvino Ray, his guitar and his orchestra, will be headlining the stage goings-on at Loew's Capitol. Ray and His Orchestra are modestly heralded as "sensational." As for Blackstone, this is only his thirtieth year on tour!

There-Already-Have-Been-Complaints Note

Easter Seems to Be the Idea!

PHYLLIS RUTH,

pint-sized starlet, with her pictore hat and overstuffed bunny, probably is listening for an invitation to an egg-rolling, or something. A casual thought would be that the rabbit reasonably might look not quite so glum. The afterthought that Miss Ruth will be coming along to the screen in "The Fleet's In" is purely incidental

RKO-Keith's

As is their wont—a phrase with which Messrs. Abbott and Costello would have no truck except for laughing purposes—the boys' latest charade, "Ride 'Em Cowboy" is remaining for a second week at RKO-Keith's.

Unlike its more immediate vehicles, the duo now has nothing whatever to do with today's troubles. There are neither tanks nor ships nor planes in this successor to "Buck Privates," "In the Navy" or "Keep 'Em Flying." This trip Bud and Lou are a pair of hotdog and soft-drink salesmen in New York's Madison Square Garden.

But they don't stay long. For reasons of self-preservation they slip into a railroad car lugging steers, horses and people of a rodeo back to the rough and tumble West of a dude ranch. Of their specific adventures you'll learn very little from this piece.

The solemn-faced, beetle-browed reviewer who confesses to laughing at Abbott-Costello adventures always is a trifle sheepish about his undignified behavior. Consequently, the observer never fails to make clear just what the uninitiated should expect: nonsense, whacky high-spirits and shreds of theatrical corn. If you're looking for delicate humor, gentle whimsy or sophisticated wit, ignore "Ride 'Em Cowboy."

Dick Foran, Ella Fitzgerald (singing her popular version of "A Tisket, A Tasket"), Anne Gwynne and Johnny Mack Brown are the featured players.

Little

Alfred Hitchcock's "Foreign Correspondent" returns as one of the Little Theater's revivals, an opening that forms proper welcome to the noted director who will arrive himself this morning for a Washington visit.

This yarn of a reporter in Europe of 1939 is the most suspense filled of all the cliff-hangers to come from the masterly Hitchcock, whose other triumphs include "The 39 Steps," "The Lady Vanishes" and "Rebecca." There's one scene atop London's Westminster Cathedral that anyone who's seen "Foreign Correspondent" won't forget and another in a Holland windmill that is its twin in effectiveness.

Interestingly enough "Foreign Correspondent" was another of those "propaganda" films that so incensed a vocal group before war came to America. It was produced by Walter Wanger, whose Spanish war film, "Blockade" virtually was suppressed by those who felt it was unfair to Fascism.

Joel McCrea plays the reporter in a company that includes Herbert Marshall, Laraine Day, George Sanders, Albert Basserman, Robert Benchley, Edmund Gwenn, Harry Davenport and Eduaro Cianelli. And, of course, there's a minute role for Director Hitchcock.

HEDDA HOPPER

The Films Can Go to Blazes!

Hollywood, Calif., April 1. Now I ask you, George Marshall, was it nice of you to wait until C. B. De Mille was out of town before putting on the biggest blaze Paramount ever had in the studio? Boy, has he got a fire in "Forest Rangers!" Georges uses for the first time a double screen, 48 feet wide, so you'll have not one fire but two, and it's in Technicolor. It is but terrific. Twice the roof of the sound stage had to be repaired, and everybody watching forgot that only God can make a tree, because when you see those technicians whip one up for burning (I don't dare tell you how it was done 'cause it might spoil the illusion), you'll throw your hat in the air as I did mine.

BINNIE BARNES

I met Forest Supervisor Ellis from the Tahoe National Park on the set. He admits the amazing people of Hollywood are the technicians. When they were on location the boys were asked to build a logging chute in a day and a half. He said, "It can't be done under a week." It was finished in a day and a half. When he asked where they'd learned to build a thing like that they handed him a still picture. They'd done it from that.

No wonder Kathryn Grayson was ill. They ganged up on her the other day when she did a pre-recording of a classical aria for "Tulip Time," and when they played it back to her, what she heard was an old cracked record of Grace Moore singing the same song. 'Twas then the little lady all but swooned.

Frank Morgan is the utilitarian type husband. For their twenty-eighth wedding anniversity, he brought his wife, Alma, a tandem bicycle. Now they've got an instructor teaching 'em to ride it.

Donna Reed was pretty upset when that tornado made a dent in the Middle West, 'cause her parents still live on a farm in Dennison, Iowa.

Since Kay Kyser left town, Edgar Bergen has been looking after Ginny Simms. But Jerry Colonna taught her how to ride a horse so she could play Gene Autry's leading lady. Now Twentieth wants her, and she may not get to go hoss-back riding with Gene after all.

John Ford took Rhys Williams out of "The Corn Is Green," put him into "How Green Was My Valley." Now Ford's defending Pearl Harbor, while Williams is playing a fifth columnist who helped bring about the disaster in "Remember Pearl Harbor."

Marjorie Rambeau says of all the people she met in the Klondike days, Katherine Rockwell was tops. Marjorie continues: "She was a dance hall gal that remained such a perfect lady the roughest, toughest hombre in the place worshipped her." Studios have been trying to buy the story of her life, but she wouldn't sell, till Marjorie moved in and started persuading. Now it's up for production at Universal.

Type casting: Hermes Pan, who taught Betty Grable her dances for "Strictly Dynamite," also plays her dance director in the picture. Betty has taken shears to that long bob of hers—now sports a bang both front and back.

Since "Treasure Chest" proved anything but that, Bob Hope plays a Washington correspondent in "The Washington Story," with Dottie Lamour up for his leading lady. But, before that, Dottie will do another tour selling defense bonds for the Treasury Department.

After Brenda and Cobina spent a day being tossed in a lake on location for "Sweetheart of the Fleet," they said, "Gee, it was nice—spending a quiet day in the country!"

Broadway Glossary

New York, April 1.

TRAGEDY: Last month the Chicago Sun sent Harry Lang to Alaska, to cover the activities there. Lang spent three weeks touring the territory, and spent last week in Fairbanks. Yesterday he sent a radio message to Rex Smith, his editor: "Have terrific story. First met all the generals, then met the technical experts and then met the civic officials. They told all, Harry" . . . The editor immediately radioed: "Then where is that terrific story?" . . . The correspondent reported: "Met generals, experts, officials—but then met censor."

MAE WEST

PRIZE: The American Psychiatric Association is seeking an appropriate emblem for its organization. The members therefore will conduct a contest among the Nation's artists . . . To avoid any possibility of jealousy, there will be three first prizes—of $100 each. The psychiatrists believe that the designation of three first prizes among artists is good psychology.

CHATTER: As soon as the Government's Information agencies are coordinated, Col. William J. Donovan will resign as Coordinator of Information and enter the armed service . . . Mae West will make a tour of the Army camps . . . Margie Hart, the strip-teaser, will sign a movie contract with Monogram, to appear in "Lure of the Islands" . . . William Gropper is painting all his anti-Japanese cartoons on rare Japanese rice paper . . . Clare Boothe's friends insist that she'll return from Italia with the discovery of a new color, "Taj Mahal White" . . . Gen. Wainwright is wearing the watch carried by his father and by his grandfather. The latter carried it when he was killed in action.

TOUR: Abbott and Costello were about to start a cross country "Buy a Bomber" tour, in which their expected gross earnings of $350,000 would be ear-marked for the purchase of a bomber to be presented to the Army. Now, at the suggestion of Undersecretary of War Patterson, they have altered that plan . . . On May 6, in San Francisco, they will start a tour of longer duration. It will not end until they have grossed $500,000—and that sum will be contributed to the Army Relief Fund.

TREAT: A lonely Negro soldier went to the American Theater Wing's Canteen on West Forty-fourth Street. There he was fed, saw an unusual show—and finally, Jane Cowl, the star, served him some sandwiches and milk. "Is there anything else you'd like?" Miss Cowl asked him . . . The soldier tried to answer, but no word passed his lips . . . "What's the matter?" Asked the solicitous star. "Anything wrong with your throat?" . . . "No," said the soldier. "It's just that there's a lump in it."

CULTURE: On April 11 and 12, the Committee for the Preservation of Austrian Art will present a concert at the Pythian Theater. Robert Stoltz, the composer of "Two Hearts in Three-quarter Time," will conduct at this concert . . . When Austria was invaded, Stoltz left Vienna, a voluntary exile—although he and Franz Lehar were the only Aryan operetta composers in the country . . . In Paris, Leo Ritter, head of Germany's ASCAP, brought him Goebbels' invitation to return. "In Vienna now," said Stoltz, "the spirit's gone. The people drink watered raspberry syrup. The girls dress and make up like mothball bags. Nobody smokes. With girls like that—how can anyone write Viennese operettas?"

LAMENT: Bobby Pincus got a job as a comic with the "Fun For Your Money" revue, which played at the yacht club in Pittsburgh—a night club on a boat moored in the river. Bobby returned to New York last week. "Didn't you have a long-term contract?" he was asked . . . "Yes, but you know those night club owners," he sighed. "A storm came up, there was some lightning, then the tide came in and the boat was swept away. So my contract was terminated. "Yes," he complained, "by them everything is called an act of God."

THEATER: Dr. Frederic Wertham, senior psychiatrist of the New York Department of Hospitals, went to see "Angel Street," the mystery-thriller, last week. After the show he met Shepherd Traube, the producer-director, who asked what he thought of it . . . "As a matter of fact, the sole portrayed by Vincent Price is not, as you say, that of a schizophreniac," Dr. Wertham criticized. "And it's not quite possible to induce a person to believe that he or she has lost the faculty of remembering. In my business, that's impossible" . . . "But in my business," said Traube, exhibiting the week's grosses, "it is possible."

LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Famous Title Turns to Gold

Hollywood, April 1 (INS).—There is gold in the title "The Last Time I Saw Paris." First, it was a song hit and won an Academy Oscar. Now Elliott Paul's book by the same name is to make a bow and last, but not least, it crops up as a movie with Myrna Loy and Robert Taylor. In just a few months Random House is bringing out Paul's book—"The Last Time I Saw Paris"—which they tell me fits perfectly the poignant, sad, nostalgic title. It describes life in the Rue de Huchette, where writers and artists eked out a carefree, happy living in the gay days of 1923, and carries through until the moment when the Nazi heel crushed the heart out of the gayest city in the world.

MYRNA LOY

Elliott Paul also is the author of "Life and Death of a Spanish City"—and he knows his continental backgrounds perfectly. The story and the M-G-M production have been turned over to Victor Saville, who also knows his Paris. Since M-G-M owns the song, "The Last Time I Saw Paris," it will be used as the musical theme.

When Barbara Stanwyck gets out of the Orthopedic Hospital, she will keep a date with Buddy De Sylva to discuss "Texas Guinan." Buddy has a script all ready and he is so pleased with it he is hurrying it into production. "If Barbara likes it, it's hers," he said.

I had thought of Ann Sheridan for the role, but Annie is going to be busy on her home lot. So if Barbara wants to play the night club queen, and Buddy believes she will, she'll be saying, "Hello, Sucker," in Texas' best style.

"The Invaders" continues to be top talk with people who have seen it. In the first place, it could never happen in a Hollywood-produced movie that such stars as Laurence Olivier, Leslie Howard and Raymond Massey—three fine actors—would be seen in roles little more than good bits. The chief roles are handled by Eric Portman and Glynis Johns, both due to report to Columbia on contracts three months after the war ends. Oddly enough, no one remembers that Portman was in this country a few years ago and, failing to get a break, returned to England.

Private Oliver B. Meredith—Burgess to you and "Buz" to his pals—hasn't lost his sense of humor. He writes that for years he has kept it a dark secret that his first name is Oliver. But in the Army you are called by your first name with only the initial of the second name. So Ollie it is. "Who do you think my sergeant at Camp Crowder is?" writes Private Meredith: "Lester Roy, who was my stand-in for 'second chorus,' the movie I made with Paulette Goddard."

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Alan Ladd and Sue Carol will wed the moment she is free; Carole Landis and Hutington Hartford III are really on fire; Cobina Wright, jr., whose husband, Palmer Beaudette, is editing the Alert, the Fort MacArthur newspaper, has taken a small house; Irvin Cummings, jr., has received a commission as ensign in the Navy.

—With Shirley Povich

Orlando, Fla., April 1.—Clark Griffith, who sets a dime limit on his pinochle parties and frowns on a horse bet of any kind, is in a mood to gamble heavy dough on his Washington ball club this season. He thinks the Nats are a good thing to finish in the first division if they get a little help from himself.

POVICH

The old gentleman isn't out for merely the satisfaction of a first-division club, however.. He is visualizing a splendid return on his money in Boom Town Washington if the Nats poke their noses into the fight for one of the top places in the race. Griffith aims to spread some dough around before the season opens with the prospect of getting it all back, and then some more, in the 21 night games at Griffith Stadium.

He sort of likes the way his 1942 ball club is shaping up, and is trying to drive it into the first division by buying an outfielder who can hit and a third baseman who can, at least, field. The more he sees of the other American League clubs his Nats have been playing in Florida, the more he is smitten with the notion that his team is on the verge of being a first-division outfit. And, in War Time Washington, that means a handsome attendance.

Griffith is prepared to go high for a hitting outfielder and a third baseman. Despite a reputation for smugness in the region of the wallet, the Nats' owner is free-handed when he thinks he has a good gamble for high stakes. He demonstrated that first in 1924, when, with his team up in the pennant race and needing one more outfielder to keep it there, he bought Earl McNeely from the Sacramento club for $50,000 in cash.

McNeely Caused Griff a Terrific Shock

That McNeely deal, incidentally, had repercussions that were near-tragic for a few days. Griffith was traveling with his team in the West and McNeely was ordered to join the Washington club in Chicago. The Nats' owner was in his hotel room when the outfielder walked in to introduce himself. Griffith extended his hand and McNeely clasped it with his left hand. "I thought you were right-handed," said Griffith "I am," said McNeely. "But my right shoulder is so sore I can't lift my arm." Griffith went into a near swoon at the thought of paying $50,000 for an outfielder who couldn't shake hands with his throwing arm.

Frantically, Griffith telephoned Judge Landis in an effort to call off the McNeely deal, and get his $50,000 back, but pending a decision by Landis, Manager Bucky Harris used McNeely as a pinch hitter. After the fellow delivered a couple of timely pinch hits, Griffith decided to keep him, and the wisdom of that decision was demonstrated when McNeely proved a tremendous factor in winning the pennant for Washington.

Griffith would not have bought Buck Newsom if he did not believe that his 1942 ball club had an excellent chance to finish high in the race. It cost him $15,000 to purchase Newsom's release from the Tigers and that much more in salary for the big pitcher. The outlay hasn't curbed Griffith's desire to spend in the right places, however. In fact, the Newsom deal has made the Nats' owner even more eager to acquire an outfielder and a third baseman.

Griff Believes Nats Have Best Pitching

He doesn't think he's sending good money after bad. Griffith is honestly impressed with the idea that his team is ripe for better fortune in the league race. He has been saying that there isn't a club in the league that will have better pitching than the Nats this season, and he said that before acquiring Newsom. Since buying big Buck he visions the Washington pitching as actually terrifying to the opposition.

Dutch Leonard, Sid Hudson and Newsom do, indeed, represent a powerful rotating trio but the picture is beautified for Griffith by the amazing surge of his rookie pitching talent. Eary Wynn appears ready to step squarely into anybody's big league pitching staff, and on other clubs Jack Wilson and Alex Carrasquel might be fixtures. Add the clever exhibitions of Phil McCullough, Hardin Cathey and Bill Kennedy in the spring games, and you can build up a powerful case for Griffith's pitching staff.

As Griffith sees it, the club needs only a heftier punch and a guy who can play third base to put it over. Not as a pennant winner, because the Yankees are in the league, but as a solid first-division team that could finish as high as second and not surprise him. The Nats are not one of the rich clubs in the league but they are very, very solvent and have money in the bank. Griffith thinks this is the time to gamble a chunk of it and cash in a stack of chips after the turnstiles stop clicking.

On the Line

—With CONSIDINE

An April Fool Column—About Bobo

New York, April 1.—The date on this piece, and the fact that it is about Buck Newsom, should not be construed as a wallop at our favorite pitcher. Buck may be eccentric, but he's no fool, as his position in the business and social life of good old Hartsville, S. C., indicates.

CONSIDINE

By the time you read this he may have been traded somewhere else, but, as of press time, he is a member of the Washington Senators once again. He had hopes that Clark Griffith would waive on him and enable the Brooklyn Dodgers to buy him from Detroit. Brooklyn inevitably will wind up with Newsom . . . next year, the year after, or the year after that. It would have saved a lot of bookkeeping for him to be sent up immediately to the Dodgers—his natural mental and spiritual level.

Buch was a member of the Brooklyn Daffiness Boys team back in 1929 and 1930 and became thoroughly inoculated with the curious lack of balance which marked that most inspiring of all of Wilbert Robinson's clubs. The old gag about "once a Dodger, always a Dodger," packs more truth than poetry. A player, particularly as impressionable as Newsom, could not have been a member of the Dodger team without picking up traits that were to last through a lifetime.

Name One Daffiness They Lacked

The Daffiness Boys did everything but run the bases clockwise. Babe Herman caught fly balls on his skull and actually tripled into a double play. Jacques Fournier, the first baseman, stopped a game one day to advise a kid pitcher to feed Rogers Hornsby a high-and-inside pitch. The kid did and Hornsby hit a home run into the leftfield stands. The kid was furious at the first baseman, and asked him why he didn't tell him to throw Hornsby a low outside ball. "And have him kill me?" Fournier demanded.

Buck was a part of all that. They should never have let him go, for ever since then he has been a little piece of Brooklyn, afloat and homeless in a hostile world that did not always appreciate him. He has touched more ports than a tramp steamer.

In the years since 1929 Buck has pitched at Jersey City, Macon, Little Rock, Chicago, Albany, Los Angeles, St. Louis, Washington, Boston, St. Louis again, Detroit and Washington again. Before Brooklyn he pitched at Raleigh, Wilmington, Macon and lesser minors. The talk now is that Washington will send him back to the Browns, in exchange for Harland Clift. He has touched the heights and scraped the depths. His proudest moments were being hit in the head, with President Roosevelt witnessing the beaning from the stands, and the day Walter Briggs hailed him as the highest paid pitcher in the game.

That same Briggs wanted to cut his salary from $33,000 to $13,000 this year, which prompted Buck to hold out and send reproachful messages from his chophouse.

The Great Man Keeps Up Appearances

There were times in his career when even half of $13,000 would have seemed like kingdom come for Buck, but not now. His super-drooper 12-cylinder custom made car chews up $13,000 worth of gas and oil on trips around the corner to the Hartsville pool hall. In short, it was the unkindedest cut of all, the one Briggs proposed. What if Buck last season practically reversed his 1940 record of 20 victories and 5 defeats? We have it directly from the great man himself that if the Tigers had given Buck just a leetle more support, by hell . . .

Buck was one to complain a lot when he was with Washington the last time. He had some kind of bonus clause in 1936 whereby he was to make a good chunk of change if he won 18 games. He claimed that when he had won 15 or 16 that he was benched for a fortnight. But the club claimed he had a bad arm, so the question was never settled. But after he moved on to the Red Sox—he had discovered that Tom Yawkey was a wonderful owner and Joe Cronin a wonderful manager—Buck always spoke fondly of the Senators. He likes Clark Griffith and Bucky Harris, and we predict that if they keep him that Buck will have a fine season. For he'll be pitching his heart out to "show Briggs."

We still say, however, that Brooklyn is his true niche. The fates which keep him away from the Flatbush Fusiliers are as cruel as the fate would be that would separate ham and eggs, Abbott and Costello, Olsen and Johnson, Hart-Schaffner-and-Marx, the Japs and treachery. We wont rest until the quaint queerness of the Dodgers is made hilariously whole by the return of this prodigious prodigal.

State Board Urges Sport Continuance

Gov. Talmadge Names Special Committee to Look Into Situation

By the Associated Press

Atlanta, April 1.—There'll be no wartime suspension of football at the University of Georgia or Georgia Tech unless "further emergency should develop"—or unless diminishing gate receipts indicate public disapproval.

The State board of regents adopted today an administration-sponsored resolution continuing athletics, thus ending controversy created last week when L. W. Robert, jr., member of the board, urged suspension of football to avoid interference with the war effort.

At insistence of Gov. Eugene Talmadge, however, the board named a special committee headed by Robert "to look into the matter" and guard against lag in the academic speed-up, in which colleges are seeking to graduate students in 2½ to 3 years.

Follows Other Action

Georgia's action followed closely the withdrawal of a similar proposal in Mississippi, where intercollegiate football would have been suspended at the University of Mississippi and Mississippi State College. Sponsors of the move in Mississippi said the matter would not be considered further unless public disapproval of athletics developed.

Georgia and Mississippi State last season were two of the standout football teams of the South. State won the unofficial championship of the Southeastern Conference while Georgia went to the Orange Bowl at Miami.

"No one is more in favor of athletics than I am," said Robert, a one-time player at Georgia Tech. "I think this resolution covers the situation. We will have intercollegiate athletics if it does not interfere too much with scholastic standings of our boys. As far as I'm concerned this has settled the question.

Pacific Coast League Opens; Outlook Good

By the Associated Press

San Francisco, April 1.—Baseball overlords of the Pacific Coast League, coupling optimism to a war-shaded uncertain future, ring the bell tomorrow for the opening of the 1942 season.

As the springboard for the national pastime's plunge into a year in which war guns are booming around the world, the eight-club Coast loop's outlook is concededly brighter than it was 25 seasons back. In 1918 it was forced to disband July 15 under the work-or-fight edict.

President Roosevelt already has given baseball the go-ahead signal this season. Its role as a factor in morale uplift as well as physical training is defined. The Army has approved night games, subject to cancellation without warning. The entire coast is a military one.

Barring any unforseen complications, league officials believe the 25-week season, ending September 20, will be played out.

The league, as a whole, appears better balanced than last with seven clubs rated as contenders. Los Angeles, with fresh reinforcements from the parent Chicago Cubs, shapes up as the team to beat for the pennant. The Angels finished seventh last season. Seattle, champion the last three years, and Sacramento, managed by dynamic "Pepper" Martin of St. Louis Cardinal fame, figure to make a rousing battle of it. Oakland, Hollywood, San Diego and San Francisco are clustered not far behind.

A. A. U. Head Requests Apology From Army

Di Benedetto Continues Feud With 3d Corps Area Commander on Soldier-Athlete Case

By the Associated Press

New Orleans, April 1.—The National Amateur Athletic Union means to have an apology from the Army for recent remarks of a major who said that the A. A. U. suspension of a soldier-athlete "smacks of Axis effort by a Fifth Column."

Lawrence DiBenedetto, A. A. U. president, said today he had appointed a committee to call on the commanding general of the Third Corps Area to insist on an apology for remarks attributed to Maj. Richard O'Connell, area morale chief, after the A. A. U. barred Marty Passaglia, San Francisco selectee, from playing with an A. A. U. basketball team. The A. A. U. ruling was made after Passaglia had competed against professionals.

"After carefully studying the report of the registration committee of the South Atlantic Association of the A. A. U. submitted to me by President Carl F. Gail, of the Baltimore district, I am firmly convinced that the suspension of Marty Passaglia by the South Atlantic A. A. U. was perfectly in order," DiBenedetto said in a statement today.

"I have this day appointed a special committee consisting of Daniel J. Ferris, national secretary; Carl F. Gail, president of the South Atlantic Association, and Charles L. Ornstein, member of our national board of governors to go to Baltimore and talk the matter over with the commanding general of the Third Corps Area, thus putting a stop to unwarranted remarks such as attributed to Maj. O'Connell.

"I personally believe that an apology is in order from Maj. O'Connell and I have instructed this committee to insist upon it."

Noting that Maj. A. K. Tunnell, special services officer at Aberdeen, Md., subsequently suggested a conference to discuss the matter, DiBenedetto today said "Maj. Tunnell said he wanted to talk the matter over with us, and that the A. A. U. was a fine bunch of men. I am glad to know that he feels this way about us."

A. A. U. Is Advised To Alter Laws

Aberdeen, Md., April 1.—Maj. Albury K. Tunnell, Aberdeen Proving Ground morale officer, said tonight that the Amateur Athletic Union should take the initiative to work out some feasible plan for an athletic program in which Army teams could compete.

Cubs, A's Tie As Ball Supply Is Exhausted

By the Associated Press

Tucson, Ariz., April 1.—April Fool or not, the Chicago Cubs and Philadelhia Athletics battled through 17 innings to a 7-7 tie today and then had to call the game because, said Umpire Ernie Stewart, "we are out of baseballs."

Conversion of the usual nine-inning game into a four-hour chore began in the seventh inning when with the Cubs leading, 6 to 3, two A's out and none on base, Pitcher Henry Wyse walked Bob Johnson. He also walked Hal Wagner and then Felix Mackiewicz homered to tie the score.

The tie prevailed until the thirteenth inning. The Cubs forged ahead momentarily when Len Merullo, running for Lou Novikoff, who had singled, stole second and scored when Crash Davis took Bill Nicholson's grounder and threw wild to Pitcher Roger Wolff covering first.

The A's came right back against Bob Bowman, who replaced Johnny Schmitz. The first three Athletics—Elmer Valo, Pete Suder and Lou Blair—singled and the score again was tied. A walk loaded the bases, but Wagner hit into a double play, Babe Dahlgren to Catcher McCullough to Dahlgren. Another walk again loaded the bases. However, Al Rubeling forced Mackiwicz at second to retire the side.

After four more scoreless innings, Umpire Stewart found the shortage of baseballs so acute, he called the game.

Yale Heavy Choice Today In Swim Meet

By the Associated Press

New Haven, Conn., April 1.—The National A. A. U. swimming championships open tomorrow with an event added this year to foster Pan-American solidarity, and the Yale team, recent national collegiate title winner, is a heavy favorite to cut-splash 32 other leading colleges and clubs in its own tank.

Tomorrow's sole event, the 1500-meter race, was put on the program this year for the first time because it is one of the favorite South American distances, and many of this year's A. A. U. winners hope to make the trip in November to the Pan-American games in Buenos Aires.

The 1500-meter offered prospects of a historic tussle between Rene Chouteau, of Yale, the N. C. A. A. champ, and Otto Jaretz, of Chicago's Medinah A. C., A. A. U. 100 and 220-yard free style king. Others entered include Paul Herron, one-time Stanford swimmer, who comes to New Haven chiefly to defend his 440-yard free style crown, and Johnny Macionis, of Philadelphia, a former Yale captain.

Five of the ten other events will be run off Friday—220-yard free style and breast stroke, 300-yard individual medley, 400-yard relay and 1-meter dive.

Louis and Jacobs Give Army Fund $64,980 From Bout

New York, April 1.—Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis and Promoter Mike Jacobs today presented a check for $64,980.02 to the Army Emergency Relief Fund as the proceeds of Louis' successful title defense against Abe Simon at Madison Square Garden Friday.

Louis' individual contribution, his entire share of the receipts, was $36,146. The bout drew a crowd of 18,200 and a gross gate of $132,430.41.

Jacobs and Madison Square Garden, which shares equally with the promoter, contributed $25,131.65 to the total. Simon returned $3,012.17 of the challenger's end of the purse. Ring officials gave $425 and the preliminary fighters $140. Other contributions of $125 made up the total.

Orlando, Fla., April 1.—The Nats dealt out a beating today that would fit nicely into a Japanese war office communique. They gave the United States Air Force base at Orlando a pounding.

It happened at Tinker Field where the Nats beat the Air Base team, 9-2, strafing two of the Army team's pitchers for 15 hits and winning the game despite the heroic efforts of Sergt. Hank Greenberg, U. S. A.

The game boiled down into a contest between the Nats and Greenberg, whose home runs in civilian life caused the Washington club constant misery for ten years. The former slugger of the Tigers batted clean-up for the Air Base team, swatted three hits and drove home their only two runs.

Otherwise it wasn't much contest. Early Wynn and Bill Zuber, who shared the Washington pitching, had little trouble with the collection of former sandlotters and D leaguers who represented the Air Base. Greenberg, though, was in their hair all afternoon.

Hank Gets Single

Big Hank, on loan to the Orlando team from MacDill Field, near Tampa, slugged a hot single into leftfield in the first inning with two on base to put the soldiers in a temporary 1-0 lead. He opened the eighth with another single to left and in the ninth he banged a single to center that scored the team's second run.

Between hits, Greenberg grounded out twice on sharp swats to the third baseman, and would have collected a fourth hit save for a dubious decision at first base on one of his ground balls. He played first base for the soldiers without an error and made two fancy stops of low throws in a manner reminiscent of his long-reaching habits with the Tigers.

The Nats slugged Pitcher Ed Plummer loose from four runs in the first inning after he walked two men, and five of their 15 hits were for extra bases. Bruce Campbell, Roberto Ortiz and Stan Gaile swatted two-baggers and Jake Early pounded out a double and a triple.

Still Lead Loop

Not counting their triumph today, the Nats still lead the Grapefruit League with 15 wins and six defeats . . . Tomorrow they move on to St. Petersburg to play the Cardinals . . . Ossie Bluege has been in the lineup at third base for the past two days and his fielding has shamed anything the Nats have seen thus far . . . Day by day Bluege is nearing the status of a player rather than a coach . . . Manager Bucky Harris may soon be disposed to turn over the third base job to Bluege and depend on his pitching to offset Bluege's lack of power . . . Bruce Campbell has replaced Mickey Vernon in the clean-up spot in the Nats' batting order because Farris theorizes that Campbell is a more experienced hitter with men on bases . . . Vernon has moved into Campbell's third-place spot . . . Pitcher Jack Wilson is a camp casualty with a badly infected toe . . . Buck Newsom will take his first turn on the mound for the Nats when he pitches against the Phils on Saturday.

Saturday Deadline For Nat-Yank Tickets

Reservations for the Nats' American League opener with the New York Yankees April 14 at Griffith Stadium will not be held after 5 p. m. Saturday, it was announced yesterday by Club Secretary Edward B. Enyon.

Greenberg, Though Stronger, Claims He's Lost His Punch

By a Staff Correspondent

Orlando, Fla., April 1.—Hank Greenberg discovered today that a year of Army life has played a cruel trick on his batting swing.

Big Hank made three hits today against Washington pitching while performing for the Orlando Air Base team, but they lacked the old-fashioned Greenberg power and the big fellow admitted it.

"I thought I was swinging as hard as I could at those pitches, and I was hitting only ordinary singles even when I was meeting the ball good," said Hank. "The bounce has gone out of my swing."

The former Detroit slugger told baseball writers after the game that his lack of power with the bat is a paradox. "Physically, I'm in better condition than I ever was in my life. The Army has done that for me," he said, "but it's a different kind of physical condition."

"I'm stronger and tougher but I can't hit a ball as hard. My muscles around the shoulders and back are all tied up and I don't have that loose swing that makes a ball go. I found that out today."

In any rough-and-tumble match Greenberg declares he would be a far better man than he was when he was at the peak of his baseball-playing condition. "I think I could outlast most ball players in any kind of a physical contest now, just as a labor-hardened fellow could have outlasted me when I was playing ball," he said.

"The physical condition ball players get into is a different sort of condition from a soldier's. The ball player is trained to a fine edge for a sudden burst of power or speed, but he doesn't have the endurance of a really fit man. Ball players get hurt because they're like race horses who are trained keen. The same thing that used to pull my muscles in baseball and keep me out of the lineup wouldn't bother me today after the rigors of Army training."

Greenberg declares he could recapture his batting stroke and return to baseball if the war does not last too long. "It would be just a question of getting a good masseur to work on these tough shoulder and back muscles I've developed. When he got through kneeding those heavy muscles, I'd have my swing back, I'm sure. And physically, I'd be a better man than when I left baseball."

Local Colleges Expected to Form Summer Baseball League

First Plans Advanced by Farrington

G. W. Athletic Head Suggests Twilight Games; Virginia May Be Invited

By Jack Munhall

Formation of an all-summer baseball league among George Washington, Georgetown, Catholic, American and Maryland Universities was predicted yesterday by Max Farrington, G. W. director of athletics.

Farrington said he had sent out letters inviting representatives of the local colleges to meet with him Saturday for luncheon at Occidental and that all were expected to send agents. At that time, he said last night, he thought the first such league in city history would be organized.

This is an idea that Farrington first mentioned shortly after Pearl Harbor when the rubber shortage was forecast and it seemed that all schools would be forced to curtail their out-of-town athletic activities.

"In this way," said Farrington one day soon after Christmas, "we'd be able to sustain interest in our athletics and at the same time to foster closer relations with our neighboring schools."

Hopes Others Play

All along, Farrington declared last night, he had hoped to have not only the local colleges in the league but also such nearby institutions as Virginia, Washington and Lee, V. P. I., V. M. I., etc.

Should the league be formed its games would not begin until after the colleges shall have completed their regular spring schedules, Farrington said. He said he would suggest that the games be held at twilight, since under Eastern wartime there would be plenty of sunlight until after 7 p. m.

The local collegiate baseball season will not get under way before Tuesday when American University is scheduled to meet Delaware here. This was caused by notice yesterday that both G. W. and G. U. had to cancel inaugurals carded for today.

Georgetown, rained out of Monday's scheduled opener with Harvard at the Hilltop, has had to call off today's contest with Cornell on account of the muddy condition of the diamond. Likewise George Washington was "muddied" out of its date with Harvard, which was returning here from the South and heading toward Philadelphia, where it will meet Penn in an Ivy League affair.

COLLEGE NOTES. Georgetown yesterday announced through Coach Joe Judge that it will not play freshmen baseball players in its games with George Washington, Maryland and Washington and Lee this spring, since these Southern Conference members are forbidden to compete against yearlings. Judge, never one to complain, at first said that this ruling would not hurt, but in reviewing prospects the former Nats' first baseman star suddenly discovered that he would be placed in an uncomfortable position. . . . It developed, among other things, that Georgetown would have to utilize at least three of its four top pitchers in every game, either on the mound or first base or in the outfield. . . . Two prospective regulars will be sidelined by this rule from the games with Maryland, G. W. and W. and L. They are Tom Costello, the promising all-metropolitan catcher from New York, and Art Hines, the rangy fly-catcher whose all-around ability is delighting Judge no end.

Maryland's baseball team left College Park at 8:30 this morning for a six-day trip into the South, opening this afternoon with a game at Richmond. . . . The Terp squad, directed by Coach Burton Shipley, in his seventeenth year of coaching service for the Old Liners, expects at least a fair season.

Hutchinson, Surkont Sent to Rochester

St. Petersburg, Fla., April 1 (AP).—Rookie Matt Surkont and Veteran Ira Hutchinson, pitchers of the St. Louis Cardinals, were sent today to Rochester of the International League.

Surkont, only 19, has a tremendous fast ball but the Cards judged he needed more seasoning to gain control. He won ten and lost six with Rochester last year. Hutchinson, used mainly in relief, had a 1-5 record with the Cards. Both are right-handers.

Brown Bomber Turns Over Fight Show Receipts to Army

Abrams Offers To Fight Free In Navy Show

Georgie Abrams, Washington's second ranking middleweight of the world and a boatswain's mate in the Navy, has volunteered his services gratis for a title fight against Tony Zale in the Navy Relief show scheduled here May 21, it was announced yesterday by George A. Garrett, campaign chairman of the local committee for Navy Relief.

With Freddie Cochrane, welterweight titleholder, unwilling to defend his crown against Ray (Sugar) Robinson, Mike Jacobs, designated by the Navy to stage all of its Relief shows, has been scouting for a suitable main event. Jacobs and his matchmaker, Nat Rogers, have been toying with the idea of pitting Buddy Baer against Abe Simon, but as yet the match hasn't been definitely set.

Garrett also announced that the Bowie Race Track will not contribute to the local fund, electing instead to await action taken by a committee appointed by the National Racing Association in Chicago recently which will decide in late spring what contributions race tracks all over the United States shall make toward the Navy and Army Relief and Red Cross funds.

Mamakos Night Show

Jacobs expects to be in Washington this weekend or early next to make final arrangements for the fight card. A Zale-Abrams scrap should be more than a good substitution for the original Robinson-Cochrane match.

In the event Zale is not available for a title fight with Abrams, it is believed that Steve Mamakos, another local middleweight, would receive favorable consideration for such a bout. Matt Twomey, manager of Mamakos, has already endorsed it.

Abrams' letter to Garrett follows:

Dear Mr. Garrett:

"I will be glad to volunteer to participate in your worthy cause. I deem it an honor and a pleasure to be considered for such an excellent undertaking. However, I would like to request an opponent. This opponent is Tony Zale. I prefer him because he's the world's middleweight champion. I would gladly fight him and donate all to your worthy charity. Being a local boy in Washington, I am sure it would draw very well. If you can't possibly contact Mr. Zale for such a match, I will be available for anyone you choose." Sincerely,

GEORGE ABRAMS.

Great Lakes Nine Draws 75 Candidates

By the Associated Press

Great Lakes, Ill., April 1.—Seventy-five candidates for the Great Lakes Naval Training Station baseball team reported today to Lieut. Gordon (Mickey) Cochrane, former manager of the Detroit Tigers, who will direct the squad. The first workout will be held next week.

The candidates reporting included Benny McCoy, formerly of the Philadelphia Athletics, and two former St. Louis Browns—Joe Grace and Johnny Lucadello. A fourth major leaguer, Don Padgett, formerly of the St. Louis Cardinals and Brooklyn Dodgers, will join the squad when he reports for active duty, April 14. Padgett was sworn in today as a coxswain and then was permitted to return to his Caroleen, N. C., home to settle business affairs.

Replates Clinch Post Pin Pennant; Humphreys High

With only one more week to roll, the Replates of The Washington Post Daylight League, trounced the third-place Mailers two, thereby cinching the pennant yesterday at Lucky Strike. Jesse Humphreys (Replates) was top man for his team with a high single game of 129 and 364 set. Mason (Mailers) rolled 347 in his effort to stave off defeat.

Ollie Smith (Lino), led his team with 134 and 369, which was high for the day, but the team lost the odd game despite his good work.

Brave's Rookie Finds Batting Eye

Sanford, Fla., April 1 (AP).—Froilan Fernandez, the high-priced Coast infielder, whose failure to hit had been bringing worry wrinkles around Manager Casey Stengel's eyes, demonstrated anew today that he had regained his batting eye.

Fernandez, who started to tag the ball this week, led the Braves' attack on a Yannigan squad with three hits, which produced as many runs. His triple in the third drove in John Cooney and Tommy Holmes. Warren Spahn went the distance for the Varsity, giving up nine hits.

Mrs. Harb's 77 Good for Third At Augusta

By the Associated Press

Augusta, Ga., April 1.—Grinding out a five over men's par 77 to go with her opening round 79, Defending Champion Dorothy Kirby, of Atlanta, pulled away from the title-holders' golf field today with a 36-hole score of 156, five shots under her nearest rival.

With only one 18-hole round remaining before the new Augusta golf queen will be crowned, Miss Kirby held a five-stroke lead over second place Louise Suggs, of Lithia Springs, Ga., who used up 81 strokes today as compared with her first round 80 of Tuesday.

Miss Suggs barely managed to hold her runner-up position as Mrs. Helen Hicks Harb, of Washington, D. C., a former national champion, equaled Miss Kirby's 77 on the second day for a 36-hole total of 162.

Three putts at the home green robbed Eileen Stulb, the only Augusta participant, of a chance to turn in the low score for the second day's play. As it was, Miss Stulb finished with 78-86—164, two shots to the rear of Mrs. Harb.

A dozen strokes back of the leader and hopelessly out of the running for the championship came Georgia Tainter, Fargo, N. Dak., star, who had identical rounds of 84-84—168.

Jeane Cline, Bloomington, Ill., the present Junior Western titlist, also found the club course anything but to her liking as she required a second round 86 for a 36-hole score of 174.

Other scores at the end of 36 holes included:

Mrs. T. E. Nolan, New Castle, Pa., 92-87—179.

Mrs. Charles Harbaugh, Cleveland, 93-89—182.

Mary Jane Garman, Sarasota, Fla.

Merrick Five Wins Feature In A.A.U. Play

Merrick Boys Club defeated Boys Club of Washington, Georgetown Branch, 34-20, last night in the featured 135-pound game in the District of Columbia A. A. U. basketball championships held at the Central and Eastern branch gyms.

In another 135-pound division contest, the Eastern Branch Rens defeated the Fleetwings, 30-16.

Games in the 120-pound class saw the Central Branch Americans beat Merrick, 38-28; Eastern Branch defeat Georgetown Branch, 32-26, and Central Branch Senators turn back Golden Eagles, 46-13.

Eastern Branch Cardinals decisioned Merrick, 22-18, in one 105-pound game, and in another, Georgetown Branch romped over the Celtics, 46-19.

Banks-Hernandez Battle Tops Card

Billy Banks, young colored lightweight of Washington, will fight Pedro Hernandez, ranked third nationally among the featherweights, Monday night in the main event, scheduled for ten rounds, at the Coliseum in Baltimore.

This will mark Banks' second appearance in three weeks as a headliner, Harry Jeffra having won a close decision in Banks' first start.

Hernandez will be making his first appearance in four months after having suffered a fractured hand while outpointing Tommy Forte in Philadelphia. Hernandez, who is managed by Al Weill, is noted for his punching ability.

Patterson, 913 Twenty-sixth Street South, Arlington, Va., was among the ten cadets of Fishburne Military School, Waynesboro, Va., to earn the Fishburn athletic monogram as a member of the 1942 swimming team, it was announced yesterday by Maj. Terp Lacrosse Team Opens Season Today

University of Maryland's lacross team, winner of the national collegiate championship outright three times since 1936, will open its current season today at 4 p. m. at College Park against Harvard.

The Terps, under the capable handling of Jack Faber, expect again to be in the thick of the fight for the national crown, won last year by Johns Hopkins, usually Maryland's closest competitor.

Faber, whose last year's team was beaten out for the championship by Hopkins in the final game of the season, said last night that this team should be better balanced than the 1941 ten.

"Although we have only five really experienced lettermen and we'll have to start five untested kids in our line-up against Harvard, I think we'll do all right," he said.

Forbes at Goal

The probable Maryland line-up will have Jim Forbes, at goal; Bob Fetters, point; Jack Dittmarm, cover point; Ralph Burlin, first defense; John Hoyert, second defense; Bill Tarbet, center; Bill McGregor, second attack; Milton Vanden Berg, first attack; Ray Grelecki, out home, and Bob Stockbridge, in home.

Leading reserves include Barnett Broughton, goal; Howard Keller and Bernie Ulman, defense; Bill Taylor, Landis Hill and Tom Mont, infielders, and Jim Pasevich and Joe Mariner, close attack.

Maryland's lacrosse record since 1936 is most impressive. The Terps won the title in 1936, tied for it with Princeton in 1937, was runner-up in 1938, came back to win it in 1939 and 1940, and was runner-up last year.

Red Wings Place in Hockey Finals Comes Easy to Coach

By the Associated Press

Detroit, April 1.—For the fifth time in nine years the Detroit Red Wings have landed in hockey's big classic, the Stanley Cup finals, and even if it's a surprise to some it isn't to rotund Jack Adams.

Early in the National Hockey League season the Detroit pilot predicted his club would go places. Few took him seriously.

Adams, a rotund little man with an infectious grin, had a tough time getting the Red Wings to click. He shifted players around so much; seeking a winning combination, that few knew what he would do next.

It brought results and the Red Wings literally rode into the payoff series against the Toronto Maple Leafs with a "hot" streak that has netted ten consecutive victories at home.

Three of the Red Wings' playoff triumphs were on their own rink. Two were against the Montreal Canadiens in the Class C quarter-finals and the other over the Boston Bruins, last year's champion.

That the Motor City aggregation may be tough to beat seems indicated by what happened to the Bruins. The Red Wings dropped Boston in the first game of their semifinals series at Boston by shoving six goals past Frankie Brimsek, Vezina Trophy winner as the league's leading goalie, and then gave the Bruin net tender an uncomfortable hour in the clincher contest here last night.

Brimsek had twoscore saves and the time Detroit spent in front of the Boston net led one wag to tell Dit Clapper, Bruin coach, after the game, "You should have charged them rent."

In season play with the Red Wings, the Leafs have the edge, winning five and tying one of the eight games and scoring a total of 26 points to 21. But most of this record was compiled during Detroit's midseason slump.

There's no question that the Red Wings are on the short end of the odds.

"You can say the Leafs are 4-to-1 favorites," said Adams. "The odds can't be too big."

But the Red Wings were confident as they got down to work for the first game Saturday night at Toronto.

Masters Finish Will Be Nelson, Hogan And Snead, According to Asheville Poll

Leading Pros Spend A Practice Day Picking Winners

By the Associated Press

Asheville, N. C., April 1.—Byron Nelson, Ben Hogan and Sammy Snead will finish 1-2-3, just like that, in the Masters tournament at Augusta, Ga.

It's no April fool's gag. You have the word of the leading pros, including the past champions, for it and they not only should know; last year they proved they did know by picking Craig Wood and then seeing him come through for them handsomely.

Gathered here for the $5000 Land of the Sky Open which gets under way tomorrow, eight of the shotmakers in a poll today gave Nelson slightly the better chance to finish on top. Four picked Hogan, and three Nelson, but Nelson got four second place choices to Hogan's one. Ralph Guldahl, the 1939 winner of the masters, picked Snead.

Nelson himself nominated Hogan to win. Hogan, declining to pick himself directly, said: "If I'm ever going to win it, this ought to be the year. I'm certainly playing the finest golf of my life; and I think I have a better chance of winning than some of the others boys."

Jimmy Demaret, still the laughing boy that won in his first effort in 1940, chose Nelson, Ed Dudley and Henry Picard to finish in that order, but added with a laugh: "I'll probably knock it off myself."

BYRON NELSON

Gene Sarazen, winner of the event in 1935 when he scored his famous double eagle to catch Wood and bring on a playoff, said:

"This is Hogan's year. Not only will he win, but he will set a new scoring record." (Guldahl holds the present mark at 279.)

Land of the Sky $5000 Open Play Underway Today

Wood this year received only four votes, one for second place and two for show money.

Ed Dudley, the Augusta pro, who has the lowest scoring average in the 8-year-old meet, and Lloyd Mangrum each received one vote to finish in the first three. Notably absent was the name of Bob Jones, the sponsor of the tournament, no one voting the grand slam champion a chance of landing among the first ten.

Today the professionals worked on the practice tees. One foursome, however, played a friendly match. Jimmy Thompson, wearing long underwear and bundled in a half dozen sweaters and jackets, teamed with Nelson to beat Wood and Jimmy Hines, one up.

Hogan, winner of the North and South and sharer of second money at Greensboro last week, will go after his third straight Asheville crown in the 72-hole event that will unfurl one 18-hole round each day from tomorrow through Sunday.

One notable absentee was Snead, who went home to West Virginia from Greensboro and was not expected to start tomorrow.

Bowie Opens Maryland Season Today With $5000 Sprint

Omission Likely Choice In Rowe 'Cap

Delayed Opening Due on Muddy Track; Posttime Is Set at 2:30 P. M.

By Walter Haight

Horse racing, referred to by some as "improving the breed of the thoroughbred," but known to most of us as "furnishing action for the bankroll," will move right up to Washington's side door today when Bowie opens. The Prince Georges track was scheduled to start the Maryland spring season yesterday, but Sunday's snowstorm forced officials to delay action 24 hours.

But for the fact that preparations for the meeting were knocked out by the storm, Bowie could have staged its inaugural program yesterday. There was little or no evidence of the snow at the plant, except a muddy track and that will be the condition of the oval today unless some dragon with a firey tongue spent the night licking the racing strip and I have heard no reports of such.

However, horses worked over the course yesterday, being kept off the inside rail, and they will be ready to go all out this afternoon. Being a naturally slow track, Bowie has lured, for the most part, horses partial to dull going, so there should be no absence of competition on the eight-race card.

Plenty of Talent

The overnight entries showed an abundance of running talent. Five of the events drew more than limit fields while the Rowe Memorial Handicap, $5000 feature and located fifth on the card, lured 12 horses. The 6-furlong sprint promises to give fans a run for their money. Weights have been distributed in a manner that should bring the dozen dash artists close together.

Only one of the top-flight nominees was not named. E. R. Watkins' Clyde Tolson was spared the task of carrying top weight of 123 pounds and will stay in his stall. There will be good ones fighting it out for the main money, however. Victor Emanuel's Omission will carry the heaviest impost, one of 122 pounds, and also is the likely favorite. Omission won the same race last year and is reported to be as fit as he was on that occasion. He will have to be in a running mood, however. Liberty Franc arrived from Florida in time to accept the issue while Maechance, a notorious mudder and a Bowie track favorite, has worked well and gets into the sprint with only 110 pounds. The others in the field are not exactly allergic to off-going and victory may go to one of the lightweights.

2:30 Post Time

Post time for the first race is 2:30 p. m. as it will be for the remainder of the meeting, clipped to nine days by the postponement. The new 2-year-olds, a majority making the first start of their careers, will open the program with a half-mile scamper. Owners of 17 youngsters are seeking the 12 post positions.

The next four races are sprints with the starting gate being due in the stretch for the three final events of the day given over to platers at a mile and 70 yards and a mile and a sixteenth.

There will be plenty of good jockeys on hand. Johnny Gilbert, Ree Howell, Paul Keifer and others of the first flight of saddle work were seen at the track yesterday as was C. Wahler, the promising apprentice.

There has been no change in the official family at Bowie.

Already featuring all the modern racing devices—the totalizator, electric starting gate, photo finishes, etc.—Bowie will not have any ovations. The daily double as usual will be conducted on the first and second races with the "double" windows closing at 2:15 p. m., 15 minutes before posttime of the first event.

Three Other Big Races

In addition to today's Rowe Memorial Handicap, three other $5000 races will be contested before the racing scene shifts to Havre de Grace on April 13. The Bowie Handicap is booked for this Saturday, the Bowie Kindergarten on the following Wednesday and the Southern Maryland Handicap on Saturday, April 11, closing day.

Although chances are mighty slim that marks will be menaced today, Bowie's track records follow: 5½ furlongs, Sandy and Sunsard, 1:05 1-5; 6 furlongs, Greenock, 1:10 3-5; mile, Sortie, 1:39; 1 mile and 70 yards, 1:43; 1 1-16 miles, Misstep, 1:44 1-5; 1⅛ miles, Jock, 1:52 3-5; 1 3-16 miles, Backbone, 1:57 2-5; 1½ miles, Clear Sky, 2:31 2-5; 1⅝ miles, Rubidum, 2:54 1-5; 1¾ miles, Fogarty, 3:07; 2 miles, Courteous, 3:58.

Selections at Bowie

Dear Al:

Good time Tropical, better time Bowie. Well, it can't be long now until the bangtails start banging. It's only a matter of a few hours and we will be out there rooting them home, I hope. Nothing like a brand new Maryland racing season and a lot of fresh bankrolls. They'll be there . . . the one-legged fellow on the crutch who helps park cars, the cripple who sings for his supper through his cardboard megaphone, the big red-faced fellow who guards the paddock gate, Jockey Noboy Jake Jacobs, with his Florida tan and his pictures to sell; Mookie and the other boys who sell Jack's Green card; the man with the basket who chants "delicious pears for a nickel," Augie Gibson, the colored trainer, with the grin that is as broad as he is long; the Stevens crew under the stands in brand new white coats; the tout with the gold teeth who operates close to the clubhouse fence, Jockey Danny Scocca, ready to show the fans he can ride on the big time; likeable Donald Hay, marching up and down behind the windows, making sure the mutuel department clicks; General Manager Joseph A. Farrell, scanning the skies and saying Bowie will have good weather; the regulars at their regular by-the-window table in the clubhouse dining room; Happy Gordon on the lead pony ushering the horses to the starting point; the stable help in the infield during races with their rubdown rags sticking out of their back pockets; Detective Lerz and others of the trade; the Glendale ambulance crew parked in the paddock—yes, they will all be out there today to pay homage and perhaps some cash to King Horse. I'm sorry to report that one old Bowie landmark will be missing. Yes, Longshot Reilly passed on during the winter and with him went his "Little Pink Card," as much a part of Bowie as the three-quarter pole. We'll miss him. See you on the rail.

BILL.

First race—FOUR STARS is far down the list and is a doubtful starter. This one has worked well, however, and will deserve attention if sent postward. Has a fair stablemate in JACQUITA. LITTLE FOLLY is well thought of and belongs close. COLLEGE BELLE has worked well for Trainer Norton.

Second race—MISTIQUE is a fair sort and appears capable of turning back these Maryland-breds. Needs only a share of the racing luck. WALTER HAIGHT may be a factor. When he won it was at a longer route. However, he has been rounding into form and might surprise. BRIGHT FINISH likes the track.

Third race—LITTLE BOLO raced well at Hot Springs after going good at New Orleans. This one is fit and ready for the best. SHADOWS PASS was a honey around Bowie last fall and is a threat. JUNGLE MOON will like the off going.

Fourth race—BOLA MOWLEE has been training encouragingly and probably will be ready to run her beat in this company. LIT UP was a winner in Florida and belongs in the first flight. BLUE FLIGHT to take care of the minor award.

Fifth race—MAECHANCE gets in the day's feature with 110 pounds to the 122 assigned OMISSION. I believe the race is between this pair. MAECHANCE is a mudder from way back and looks like the goods. LIBERTY FRANC was shipped here with an eye to collecting the major portion of the five grand.

Sixth race—ISLE DE FINE will like this route and gets in light. Showed enough in Florida to warrant a top pick with this. GRENADIER is reported fit and will be a factor. VALDINA VALET to take care of the minor money.

Seventh race—JUSTA TOURIST, off Florida racing, belongs in front of this group of platers. All we need is a ride. NILON likes off-going and will be a threat at this route. FLYING DUKE and BIG JACK are possibilities.

Eighth race—LEONARDTOWN won two races over this track last year and flashed speed on occasions around Miami. PREDICATE is a fair sort and will be close. BOSTON PAL for the show end.

A.A.U. Head Asks Army Apology

they'll have to come to us because the national interest demands it.

"Small-time technicalities should not be allowed to stand in the way. If the A. A. U. won't let us play or compete on their terms, they'll have to come to us and play on our terms," he said in referring to the A. A. U.'s disbarring of Marty Passaglia, a selectee for competing against professionals.

Maj. Tunnell said he had written to John Lehman, of the St. Mary's Catholic Club, York, Pa., terming the action of the A. A. U. in barring soldiers from amateur bouts "reprehensible," and adding that the Army may "ignore A. A. U. dictates." Both the York club and St. Joseph's of Lancaster were suspended by the Middle Atlantic A. A. U. last week.

"The A. A. U. has pulled a lot of fast ones," the officer said, "but this time they are up against something a lot bigger than they are."

Special Dispatch to The Post

Upperville, Va., April 1.—Twenty-four entries have been received for the Piedmont Hunt point-to-point races, to be held Saturday at Rokeby, the property of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Mellon, near Upperville. There will be three races and all will be run over the flagged course of about 5½ miles. The first race, which is for ladies, will be called at 2:30 p. m.

The feature race, the Rokeby Challenge Bowl, which is a race for gentlemen, weight 175 pounds, has listed 14 horses. Included in this number are some of the best cross-country horses in the East. Mrs. Crompton Smith's good horse, Mowgli, who has won three straight point-to-point races, tops the list. Others include Mrs. E. Douglass Prime's Kitty Kidd, which hasn't made a good showing since her spectacular race in winning the Redland point-to-point; Gerald B. Webb, jr.'s Big Charley, Mrs. Chichester duPont's Beaufast, R. V. Clark's Fanny Adams, George P. Walker's Metope, Cornelius N. Bliss, jr.'s Border Warren, Harry Worcester Smith's Scarlet, A. McKay Smith's Response, T. Beatty Brown's Dunlad, Dr. Ed. Horgan's High Pinnacle, Mrs. A. S. Carhart's Dilate, Francis Hoge's Indian Duke and Miss Lillian Chambers' Cautious Tom.

The ladies race has attracted six entries—Copper Queen and Truckman, owned by Mrs. Robert Chambers; Metom, Dr. Robert E. Moran; Keeline, Mrs. Robert Winmill; Sun Alv, Miss Ruth D. O'Keefe and Gone Away, Miss Nancy Hanna.

The heavyweight race for gentlemen has four entries—Nemo, Capt. Richard Kirkpatrick; Ralph Boy, Herman H. Piggott; Big Charley and Beaufast.

In addition to the Rokeby Bowl, which will be held by the owner of the winner of this race for one year, a piece of plate will be presented outright to the owner of the winner, and a piece of plate will also be presented to the owners of the winners in the other two races.

The starter will be R. B. Young, and the paddock judge will be W. B. Watkins.

Bud Thomas Still Balks at Contract

Charlottesville, Va., April 1 (AP).—Luther (Bud) Thomas, Detroit pitcher, said today he would remain on his North Garden, Va., farm all summer before he would sign a Tiger contract calling for "about a 50 per cent pay cut" from his 1941 salary.

"Farming's not a bad job," he said. "I always work here in the winter; and if I don't get a contract to my liking, I'll work it in the summer, too."

Thomas has been with Detroit since 1939. Prior to that time he was with the Philadelphia Athletics for a couple of seasons.

Eagles Break Camp, Head For Canada

The Washington Eagles, elated over their 7-6 sudden death defeat of the Atlantic City Sea Gulls in the final game of their United States Amateur Hockey Association playoff series in the resort town last Tuesday night, started breaking camp here yesterday.

The Eagles terminated the playoffs with a record of six victories and two defeats. The New York Rovers, who have four victories and two reversals, must sweep their two remaining games with Atlantic City on the latter's ice tonight and Friday night in order to tie the locals for the play-off crown. In the event of a deadlock the team scoring the most goals will be crowned champion.

Art Lessard, Ernie Munday, Rolland Bleau, Lee Hickey and Trainer Ian Munro entrained for Montreal yesterday afternoon at 4:50. Keith Allen, Kenny Ullyot and Freddy Weaver were to depart for Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, last night at 8:30.

On Friday afternoon Coach Redvers Mackenzie, Marty Madore, Odie Hallowell, Art Thompson and Rolly McLenahan all will motor to Montreal. Lem Burrage, veteran defenseman, continues to make his home here the year around while Paul Courteau also will remain in Washington along with a few of the others for a while.

Two Finish Bouts On Ahearn Show

Through special arrangement, Ivan Komaroff, who won Karol Krauser's world's junior heavyweight championship belt in an upset last Monday night, agreed to defend his belt against Bobby Bruns, former claimant of the world's heavyweight crown.

In another finish match the Octopus, an apparent winner when disqualified in his bout with the Swedish Angel, is to return to face Prince Emir Jo-Jo, surprise conqueror of George Becker.

Kenwood Likely Sectional P. G. A. Qualifying Site

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

A Washington course, with Kenwood a likely prospect, will get the Middle Atlantic Sectional qualifying rounds for the National P. G. A. Championship early in May.

Wiffy Cox, the Congressional pro and president of the Maryland, Virginia and District mentors will put the question to the tournament committee in the first scheduled meeting of the season Monday, April 13, at Kenwood.

Atlantic City finally came up with the $15,000 guarantee for the only major golf championship to be played this year and as late-season publicity would be lost to the New Jersey resort the tournament will be played May 25-30, one of the earliest dates in its 25-year history. The date may necessitate a change in the Hale-America qualifying rounds.

Sectional qualifying rounds will be held throughout the Nation two or three weeks in advance of the match play affair, which this year will be played for a purse in excess of $14,000, a new high for the professional championship.

Washington's Year

This year is Washington's turn for the 36-hole sectional qualifying tests, as Baltimore was host at Five Farms in 1940 and last year Richmond received the trials at Lakeside Country Club.

Kenwood is the logical site among the local layouts as a majority of the other 18-hole layouts already have their share of sectional championship affairs. Congressional has the District Amateur, Manor the Middle Atlantic, Prince Georges th Maryland Open, Columbia and Chevy Chase several women's tournaments each. Army and Navy and Washington have not been active in P. G. A affairs the past few years. Burning Tree is seldom interested in such tournaments, leaving Bannockburn as another possibility.

With the P. G. A. crown the most coveted of the year, this section should have a record representation in the qualifying rounds, as another incentive is the site being fairly close. Places are awarded on a ratio of about one place to every eight or ten paid-up members of the sectional association. Three or four places is usually this section's quota.

Only 32 players will qualify for the match play rounds this year after two 18-hole medal rounds on the scene of the tournament, the Seaview Club at Absecon, N. J., just outside Atlantic City. The cash prizes for each match won will be more than in past years.

Chandler Harper, the Portsmouth, Va., pro who made his debut as a Mid-Atlantic member last year at Lakeside, was the medalist, qualifying along with Rut Coffey, Hagerstown, and Mel Shorey, of Indian Spring.

Hoya Golfers Off to Carolinas

They will practice today at Duke and Saturday and Sunday at Pinehurst.

Women Golfers In A. M. Meeting

Mrs. W. L. Weible, president of the District Women's Golf Association, and Mrs. Carter Magruder, tournament chairman, will present the 1942 schedule to the executive committee for a vote in a meeting this morning at Kenwood at 10:30 o'clock.

The usual card has the District championship set for Chevy Chase and the other affairs at courses easily accessible to bus and street car lines. The meeting was postponed from Monday.

State Golf Body Wants to Aid Pros

The Maryland State Golf Association's executive committee met yesterday in Baltimore and in addition to routine matters attempted to straighten out difficulties involving combined pro-amateur tournaments with the Midatlantic P. G. A.

Dr. R. A. Keilty, vice president and tournament chairman, will meet with the pro officials on or before the April 13 get-together and present a proposition which he hopes will be beneficial to both organizations. One pro-am date was left off the card released early in the week, June 22 at Bannockburn.

Browns No Bombers:

Good Season by Clift Seen As Key to First Division

Sixth Last Year, St. Louis Promises No More Than Trouble for Rivals; Rookies in Vital Spot

By Judson Bailey

Associated Press Sports Writer

Deland, Fla., April 1.—The St. Louis Browns were being picked for the first division of the American League by many observers at this time last year and they are as good now as they were then.

But instead of the first division the Browns landed in a tie for sixth place last season and they are likely to bunk in the same general vicinity this year.

The Browns are a good middle-class ball club. They will play good ball and bad. They are capable of making trouble for some of the upper strata rivals just as they have in the last couple of years.

Clift Key Man

A good year for Third Baseman Harlond Clift would build the Browns into something more fearsome and Manager Luke Sewell is hopeful. The veteran showed up at camp on time for the first time in half a dozen years and as a result has been hitting better than in past springs.

His average last year was a puny .255, although he batted in 84 runs, and he has not hit over .290 since 1937, when he was a .303 dreadnaught. Chet Laabs and McQuinn are a couple of others capable of coming up with big scores.

But the Browns as a whole sum up to the same club they were last year—no better nor no worse.

Pitching Nucleus

The same pitchers who carried last year's burden are holding forth again—Elden Auker, who won 14 games; Bob Muncrief, a 13-game winner, and Bob Harris, who accounted for a dozen triumphs. This trio is looking better than a year ago and Manager Sewell is counting on Denny Galehouse, John Niggeling and some of the other veterans to help.

Two young southpaws, Frank Biscan and Stan Ferens, have showed promise in the spring sessions and may stick around awhile. Ferens, who was obtained in the baseball draft last fall, won 21 games and lost 9 for the Class "B" Columbus (Ga.) Club in 1941 while Biscan had a record of 9 and 7 for Toledo.

Ferrell Counted On

Most of the catching will have to be done by the aging Rick Ferrell, who was a .256 hitter last season.

However, they have too much uncertainty in their infield and too little reserve strength all around to figure high in the long grind of a pennant race.

The war cost the Browns the services of John Berardino, John Lucadello, George Archie, Joe Grace and John Kramer. Among other things, this means that a rookie, Vernon (Junior) Stephens, who batted .281 at Toledo, will hold forth at shortstop with Don Gutteridge, the veteran of the Cardinal system, probably doing most of the second base chores.

The combination does not look too good either on paper or in the field and is bound to give away a lot of runs that the known hitting strength of Walt Judnon, Ray Cullenbine, George McQuinn and others will find hard to equalize.

Webb's 441, Wright's 419 Lead Pinmen

Bill Webb, Rustic Cabin, bowled 158-441 to lead the Hyattsville Commercial League pinmen last night at Oscar Hiser's Alleys and his team posted high game of 601. The Hyattsville Flower boys rolled 1660 to win three from Hyattsville Buick when Al May had 144-379, while Lustine-Nicholson won a pair from Slinkman's to go into a tie for the lead. Abe Povich sparking the wins with his 142-396.

ARLINGTON

Fast-ball-bowler Al Wright was best man in the Arlington Commercial League with a 160 single and record 419 set that made it possible for his Old Dominion Bank boys to come through with team highs of 622 and 1652 and win three from the Vienna Cardinals.

MARYLAND-DISTRICT

Amalia Knebel's 133 for Gifford's Ice Cream and Louise Battaglia's 131-372 for Corr's Sport Shop were the best individual efforts of the night in the Maryland-District Ladies League, at Silver Spring, with Miss Battaglia's totals enabling her quintet to post team highs of 562 and 1619.

ICE PALACE

The Office Appliance boys at the Ice Palace were topped by Al Higgs, Royal, with a 148 single which helped his team post best totals of 609-1659, and by Ed Glaze, L. C. Smith, whose 393 set effort was high for the play.

TEMPLE

Dave Balogh's 137 and Al Litoff's 343 were best scores for the Naval Observatory boys at Northeast Temple which combined to help their Cruisers quintet win three games and post high team counts of 558-1578.

Szabo Meets Fraley Tonight On Arena Mat

In his last wrestling show at Turner's Arena before moving into Riverside Stadium, Promoter Joe Turner tonight presents Sandor Szabo, the National Wrestling Association titleholder, against Pat Fraley, of California. A walkathon will take over Turner's for several months.

Turner announced that the winner of the Szabo-Fraley match would be pitted against one of the participants on tonight's show in his next big attraction.

Szabo has defended his title twice since winning it in battles with Ray Steele and Bronko Nagurski. He won from the Green Hornet (Big Jim Henry), and last week was held to a one-hour draw by Ernie Dusek.

Szabo, of Hungarian descent, has been drawing large crowds to the Arena by reason of his catch-as-catch-can mat skill, his color and daring. He had Dusek in a bad way numerous times last week only to see the Nebraskan exert superman strength in wriggling out of his holds.

Tonight Szabo meets in Fraley a lad who once held Sandor to a draw on the Pacific Coast before the Hungarian was champion.

Fraley, a fast worker, upset Ray Steele, former N. W. A. champion, as his stock soared sky high. If he can beat Steele, Pat will have added that title to the ones he now claims—Australian and New Zealand.

Joe Cox and Gus Sonnenberg, the former champion, meet in the semi-windup, while Cowboy Luttrall, the Texas "riot man," gunning for the Szabo-Fraley winner, will meet Art LaGrand. Tommy O'Toole, also after a Szabo-Fraley shot, will return to meet Fred Grobmier.

Sheriff Tom Hanley, 320-pounder, and Milo Steinborn will open the show at 9 o'clock, the new starting time.

Heft, Central Star, Plays for Scranton

Arnold Heft, former Central High School pitching star, is at baseball camp at Bennettsville, S. C., with Scranton.

Heavier than ever before at 175 pounds, the left-handed Heft expects to have another good season. Last year, with Owensboro, of the Kitty League, he was named to the league all-star team after leading the circuit in innings pitched, 280, and strikeouts, 258.

Drainage Ditches Help Ready Grounds for Show Sunday

By Anne Hagner

Thanks to a warm sun and a couple of cleverly constructed drainage ditches, the Chevy Chase Horse Show definitely will be held Sunday at the East-West Highway show grounds—but don't think it wasn't a struggle.

Last Sunday's snowstorm, nearly forgotten in the District, left many all too lingering mementos in the suburbs, and until yesterday the Chevy Chase committee feared that the low-lying grounds would not dry out in time for the show, which was supposed to be held last Sunday and was postponed.

However, several ditches were dug from the most flooded areas into Rock Creek nearby and as a result the water made a rapid exit. Several cars drove all around the show ring yesterday without difficulty as proof of improved conditions.

Several Virginia exhibitors, notably Mrs. E. Douglas Prime, Alex Calvert and Ruth O'Keefe, assured committee heads that they will be on hand, as will five members of U. S. Randle's string, currently stabled at The Plains, Va.

Horsey Set Busy

With the Chevy Chase date settled, local followers are turning their attention to next week's horsey attractions, which make up the busiest weekend on the spring calendar.

Beginning at 1 p. m., Friday, April 10, "Liz" Whitney and Dr. Lewis M. Allen will hold a joint auction sale of 64 horses at the Whitney farm, Llangollen, near Upperville, Va. The following day, Saturday, is the Middleburg Hunt meeting date, with a full afternoon of brush, timber, hurdle and flat events set for the lovely Glenwood Park course. Steeplechasing experts say that Glenwood is the only place in the East where spectators are able to see every fence and every part of the running, which may account for the large crowds that jam the hillside for Middleburg's semiannual meetings.

The spotlight shifts from Virginia to Maryland on Sunday, April 12, for the Jolea Farms Horse Show at Travilah, Md., for the benefit of the Montgomery County branch of the American Red Cross Motor Corps.

Whitney-Allen Sale

Both Middleburg and Jolea Farms will be fairly routine stops on the horseman's favorite circuit, but the Whitney-Allen sale holds a somewhat different attraction. For several months, since the auctioning of Mrs. Whitney's string was announced here in January, railbirds have been hazarding wild guesses as to the prices the horses will bring, and everyone with a spare tire in reserve will be there to see if his estimates hold true.

An interesting story surrounds one of the 49 Whitneyites to be sold—he is The Priest, a chestnut cob once purchased by an ambassador at one of the important embassies here. The envoy soon found himself without a country or a government to represent so he departed and left The Priest at Llangollen without an inkling as to his fate. Mrs. Whitney, having staked the cob to his board and keep for several years, finally put him in the sale.

Voyles, Corbin Chosen as Top AAU Fighters

Carl Voyles, National Training School 126-pounder who won the novice championship, and Johnny Corbin, Boys Club 118-pounder who unseated Defending Champion Danny Petro, have been selected as the outstanding ringmen in the District A. A. U. boxing tournament which ended last week.

They will receive their rewards tomorrow night between games on the championship card of the A. A. U. basketball tournament at the Eastern Branch, Boys Club of Washington.

Corbin's choice was unanimous, but the committee of sports writers and tournament officials had to pick Voyles from among a list of evenly matched fighters which included Edsel Martz and Jimmy Caraway.

The District's representatives to the National A. A. U. Tournament, at Boston—a full squad of seniors—will leave here Sunday, April 12, under the wing of Billy Blake. The tourney opens the following day and continues throughout the week. Lou Gevinson, Al Farrell and Lew Hanbury will accompany the team as trainers and handlers.

The team will include the following: 118—Dick Mullen, Corbin; 126, Lew Hanbury, jr.; 135, Tommy Larner; 147, Nick Latsios; 160, Charley Maimone; 175, Warren (Red) Doherty; heavyweight, Lou Hayman.

U. S. Will Offer 1½ Billions of Special Notes

The Treasury will sell $1,500,000,000 worth of certificates of indebtedness April 6, it announced last night.

In selling these securities, of a type not used since 1934, the Treasury will use for the first time the new borrowing powers granted by Congress last week when the Federal debt limit was raised from 65 to 125 billion dollars.

Athough the securities primarily are to finance war costs, they were designed to meet a special investment need of hundreds of large banks, business corporations and other wealthy investors. The securities will mature in about six months and bear interest at one-half of 1 per cent a year. At present the Treasury has issued no securities with maturities between three months and a year suitable for large investors.

Secretary Morgenthau announced recently that the Treasury was considering two such issues during April but explained today that the two issues were being consolidated into one.

Business Briefs Of D. C. Interest

24 Per Cent Gain in Sales Here

Washington retail sales in 1941 totaled 554 million dolars, a gain of 24 per cent over the 447 million dollars in 1940, according to a survey by Dun & Bradstreet, Inc.

The Virginia retail volume last year was estimated at 850 million dollars, up 22 per cent. Maryland's was put at 815 million dollars, up 24 per cent.

Nationally, retail sales were estimated at $53,228,000,000, or a gain of 18 per cent over the previous year's total of $45,235,000,000.

Longer Hours Defeated

Members of the District of Columbia Building and Loan League voted against the proposal offered by a committee on hours to extend the closing time on Government paydays from 5 to 6 p. m.. The matter was presented to the monthly meeting of the league Tuesday at the Raleigh Hotel by E. L. McAleer, secretary of the special committee.

Delegates to the forthcoming conference of the Southeastern group, United States Savings and Loan League, in Atlanta on April 17-18, were elected. They are Chapin B. Bauman, president of Oriental Building Association, and Clarence E. Kefauver, executive vice president of the Columbia Federal Savings and Loan Association.

Birgfeld in Coast Guard

Kenneth Birgfeld, assistant treasurer of the American Security & Trust Co., is the latest Washington banker to enter the military service. He has enlisted in the Coast Guard.

Well known as the first vice president of the Washington Chapter of the American Institute of Banking, Mr. Birgfeld had been slated to become president of the group at the annual meeting next month.

Two New Bond Issues Offered

New York, April 1 (AP).—The Bankers Trust Co. headed a Nation-wide syndicate of 62 firms which today offered publicly a new issue of $16,758,000 City of Detroit refunding bonds, awarded to the group on Monday in competitive bidding.

The Bankers Trust group won the award on an over-all bid of 100.055, representing an interest cost to the city of 2.7239 per cent.

A syndicate headed by Lehman Bros. offered at 109⅞ and accrued interest the Union Electric Co. of Missouri's new issue of ten million dollars first mortgage 3⅜ bonds due in 1971.

The syndicate was awarded the issue on a bid of 109.28011.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, April 1 (AP).—The winter wheat outlook indicating that despite an unusually small acreage the United States wheat surplus may be fattened even more by the time harvesters finish work this year, had a depressing influence on prices today.

Wheat sagged about half a cent at times but the decline was checked by purchasing inspired by the recent curtailed flow of grain to market. Receipts at the 12 principal interior terminals totalled only 310,000 bushels, compared with 467,000 a week ago and 468,000 a year ago. Traders blamed the letup in marketing largely on the fact that prices are not high enough to encourage producers to redeem grain under Government loans.

After fluctuating nervously, wheat finished unchanged to ¼ lower, compared with yesterday, May 1.25½@1.25⅝, July 1.27½@1.27¾. Corn was ⅛ to ½ lower, May 88⅝@88¼, July 90⅛@90⅝; oats unchanged to ⅛ higher; soybeans ½ lower to ½ higher; rye ¼ to ⅝ lower and lard unchanged at ceilings.

Steel Output At 100% Rate In Pittsburgh

By the Associated Press

New York, April 1.—The Iron Age reported today that steel production in the Pittsburgh district, largest producing area, at midweek climbed to 100 per cent for the first time since the United States entered the present war.

The trade publication commented: "However sourly progress of the war program is surveyed, industry is making notable progress toward arming the United States and its Allies.

"Steel ingot production in the Nation as a whole," the review continued, "this week established another new record at 98.5 per cent, up a half point from last week, an event which in some ways is comparable to the winning of a battle by the armed forces."

The publication said there was evidence of increasing pressure against priorities violators in the war board's penalties against 22 steel warehouses for allegedly accepting shipments in excess of their authorized quotas.

"Industrial observers at Washington emphasize that the Government is likely to become more severe with priority violators and that every industry must learn how to operate under the priority rules regardless of the inadequacy of some priority orders," it said.

Republic Steel Corp. Is 'Well Above 100%'

Cleveland (April 1 (AP).—Operating "well above 100 per cent of capacity," Republic Steel Corporation established new company records in March for production of steel ingots, pig iron and critical electric furnace steel for war needs.

The Nation's third largest steel maker announced today that "Departmental records were broken in every one of Republic's steel producing districts" and that "an accepted world's record for pig iron production from a single blast furnace also was toppled . . ."

New 'Rubber' Thread Is Boon to Milady

New York, April 1 (AP).—War or no war, the American woman must continue to stand erect, trim, with no drooping here and there to mar the picture.

To that end, the B. F. Goodrich Co. has produced the first synthetic rubber thread ever developed in this country to replace natural rubber thread, essential in the manufacture of girdles, brassieres and foundation garments.

The real McCoy for these articles has been banned because of the rubber scarcity.

Power Output Drops Moderately in Week

New York, April 1 (AP).—The Edison Electric Institute reported today electric power production in the week ended March 28 totaled 3,345,502,000 kilowatt hours compared with 3,357,032,000 the previous week and 2,975,407,000 a year earlier.

The decline dropped the Associated Press index of electric power output to 157.9 per cent of the 1929-30 average from 158.5 per cent the previous week. On the comparable date a year ago the index stood at 142.4.

The drop from last week in actual output was 0.3 of 1 per cent.

New York Cotton

New York, April 1 (AP).—Cotton futures, recovering from an early dip today, held steady around previous closing levels for the rest of the session. Final quotations were 5 cents a bale lower to 5 cents higher after dropping off around 50 cents a bale earlier in the trading. Light profit-taking and hedging were absorbed throughout by a steady trade demand but buyers showed caution in following the market into higher ground. The range:

Liquor Stocks Are Dwindling, Trade Warned

Special Dispatch to The Post

Chicago, April 1.—Growing shortages of distilled spirits from both domestic and foreign sources, increasing packaging difficulties and rising internal revenue taxes may all contribute to reducing American liquor consumption, the National Alcoholic Beverage Control Association was informed at the closing session of its annual conference.

A warning that the industry might be overconfident of the supply situation as a result of reports that the Nation's whiskey stocks are sufficient for five years was sounded by L. J. Gunson, president of Continental Distilling Co. He predicted that shortages of many distilled spirits, including whiskey, would be felt before that period had elapsed.

"High-proof alcohol can no longer be turned into beverages, and with alcohol not available for blending, the whole whisky picture is changed," he said.

Ample for Six Months

Warning that supplies of imported spirits and wines also are dwindling was given by Munson G. Shaw, chairman of the National Association of Alcoholic Beverage Importers. Mr. Shaw was unable to attend the session because of illness, but his report was read to the delegates.

He asserted that stocks of Scotch whisky in both Scotland and this country have shrunk and that the supply on hand in American warehouses now represents "approximately six months' demand." He noted, that while less than 2 per cent of shipments have been lost, distillation of Scotch has been sharply restricted by the British government.

"We believe that we can continue to supply the American market, but we have no assurance that the present prices for Scotch whisky will remain unchanged," he added.

Replacement Difficult

Mr. Shaw said that importers were in "a very good position" with respect to stocks of Spanish and Portuguese wines and brandies, but that replacement would be difficult if not impossible. He reported that some acceptable wines and spirits were being imported from South America, chiefly Argentina and Chile, and that this trade was expanding.

The N. A. B. C. A. as the first step of the conservation program, proposed by the War Production Board, adopted a standardized case label to be used in the 13 so-called monopoly States which are members of the association. The new label, measuring 2¼ by 6 inches, gives only the code number, brand, type of liquor and size in bottles packaged in the case.

James H. Lawson, chief of the distilled spirits section of the W. P. B., said that a similar standardization program for packaging, labeling and shipping procedures would be presented soon to distillers and distributors in non-monopoly States.

Late Earnings Statements

Greyhound Corporation, operator of motor bus lines, reported 1941 net profit of $6,529,597 or $2.28 a common share against $4,748,309 or $1.70 a common share in 1940.

Sharon Steel Corporation reported net 1941 earnings of $1,633,000, equal to $4.16 per common share. This compares with $1,336,000 net in 1940, equivalent to $3.41 per share.

Midland Steel Products Co., reported 1941 net profit of $1,901,213, or $4.38 a common share, against 1940 net of $2,269,590, or $5.95 a share.

30,000 Shoe Workers Get Paid Vacations

Details of the wage adjustments were not disclosed. Previous increases were granted in April, July and December of last year, adding about five million dollars to the company's annual cost of operation.

Stocks Remain Motionless Most of Day With Minor Upturn in Final Hour's Trade

New York, April 1.—The stock market capped another uneventful session today with a modest final hour upturn which put a number of industrials and communications ahead fractions to around a point.

Until the late comeback prices generally appeared to be frozen around the irregular levels recorded at the opening. Drying up of selling, which carried no particular weight at any time, provided the bidding cue for the mild recovery.

The news had no special relation to price movements but market analysts thought technical considerations stimulated support for a fair number of shares which had recently been forced down to lowest figures for the last three to four years.

Aircrafts and motors contributed nothing to the rally momentum. Steels were a help, though, with Bethlehem getting up about a point at the best and United States Steel coming back for a small net gain after dipping to a new low in the early proceedings. Rails overcame droopiness to finish with small advances.

Transfers were in line with slimmest days of the last ten months at 281,220 shares compared with 279,690 yesterday.

Minority Group Again Loses Fight on Am. Tobacco Bonuses

By the Associated Press

Jersey City, N. J., April 1.—A group of stockholders failed today in an attempt to limit the bonuses of George Washington Hill, sr., president, and three vice presidents, at a stormy annual meeting of American Tobacco Co. shareholders.

By a vote of 2,044,119 shares against 113,500, the stockholders rejected a resolution introduced by John Gilbert, New York, which would have limited the bonuses of Hill to $100,000 annually and of the vice presidents to $50,000 annually. The vice presidents were not identified.

Paul M. Hahn, a vice president who presided at the meeting, said Hill received a $168,000 bonus last year plus his regular salary of $120,000 and vice presidents got $100,888 plus their regular salaries of $50,000.

In each case, Hahn told the meeting, large parts of the salaries and bonuses were returned to the company to satisfy judgments against the officers obtained in recent litigation brought by stockholders who charged the bonuses were improper. The executives were directed by a New York court order to return $2,000,000 to the corporation after the court found errors in computation, Hahn said.

In Hill's case, the chairman added, he actually received $142,886 in 1941.

The minority group, led by Gilbert, Lee B. Coshland, of New York, and James Fuller, of Hartford, Conn., also lost resolutions which would have called for the election of auditors by the stockholders instead of the present system of appointment by the officers and would have required the presence of the president at annual meetings.

A management-sponsored resolution, passed 2,078,984 to 98,886, authorized a by-law to indemnify officers or directors for litigation expenses in suits where they were exonerated by the court, or by the directors if litigation was settled out of court.

Fuller protested that Hill's salary and bonus as president "attracts labor trouble and leads to demands for increased wages."

Gilbert added that "the reason for the company's present debt is the huge salary and bonuses paid to officers in the past. If this money had gone into the company's treasury there would be no need for a new bond issue."

Gilbert said he did not question the ability of the officers but merely their compensation. Publication of their salaries had made an unfavorable impression with the public, he added.

In response to minority complaints that the bonuses resulted in a dividend reduction, Hahn said that actually last year the company increased its earnings by seven million dollars but that was offset by a tax increase of 11 million dollars.

Meat Production Sets March High

Chicago, April 1 (AP).—Meat production in March was the greatest on record for the month, the American Meat Institute reported today in a review of the livestock and meat trade.

Pork production was the third largest for March since Government records were started in 1921, was somewhat greater than production a year ago, and considerably more than the average of the ten-year period from 1932 to 1941.

In all other classes of livestock, production exceeded that of a year ago, with the greatest advance in beef, which also was considerably above the average of the ten-year period.

Rail Reorganization Opposed by Creditors

By the Associated Press

Several groups of creditors, including holders of Missouri Pacific general mortgage 4 per cent bonds voted against a plan of reorganization for the Missouri Pacific Railroad which was approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission and the U. S. District Court for the eastern district of Missouri, the ICC announced yesterday.

Despite rejection of the plan by some groups, officials said this did not necessarily mean that it would not be put into operation. The court can, if it finds the disapproving groups received equitable treatment, put the plan into operation.

Railroads Ask Easing of Rule On Bond Deals

By the Associated Press

The Association of American Railroads asked Congress yesterday to renew and liberalize a provision under which corporations can buy back their own securities at less than par without having the gain considered an income tax liability.

R. V. Fletcher, vice president of the association, told the House Ways and Means Committee that the future of the Nation's railroads depended in part on continuing the provision beyond its December 31, 1942, expiration date.

He also recommended elimination of the present requirement that the privilege be granted only to corporations who could make a showing of "unsound financial condition."

"The standard set up," Fletcher said, "has proven an absolute barrier to any accomplishment under it.

Would Hurt Credit

"Not only have corporations been advised that a certificate of unsound financial condition would impair their credit generally, but railroads, in particular, have confronted the difficulty growing out of the fact that their borrowing power, particularly from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, would be seriously impaired if such a certificate is granted."

"It is obvious," he said, "that if the railroads are put in a position to reduce their outstanding indebtedness by the purchase of securities at a discount, many railroads which otherwise may be driven into bankruptcy will be permitted to rearrange their financial structure so as to accomplish substantially the same result that would follow bankruptcy."

Unusual Dilemma

Roy Barton Whitte, president of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Co., indorsed Fletcher's request, saying:

"The reluctance of the railroads to avail themselves of this provision is understandable. It places them in an unusual dilemma. A finding or certification that a railroad is in unsound financial condition, such as the provision requires, would destroy its credit generally. A railroad would be handicapped in obtaining a loan from a private bank, or from selling its securities in ordinary channels."

White told the committee that most of the road's system bonds are selling at substantial discounts from par and that the effect of making the B. & O. "pay a tax if it purchases its bonds at a discount from par" would be to penalize it because it "still has financal problems ahead."

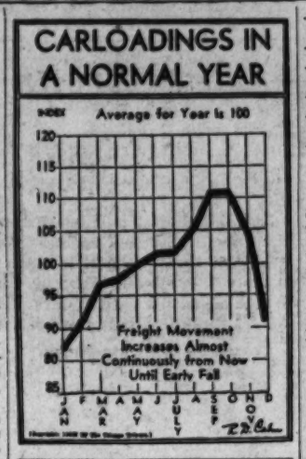
Holiday Closes Marts Tomorrow

By the Associated Press

Major domestic securities and commodity exchanges will take a holiday Good Friday, April 3. The New York coffee and sugar, cocoa and cottonseed oil markets will also remain closed on Saturday, April 4. Exceptions, however, are the various livestock markets and the New York Mercantile Exchange which will function both days.

English markets will operate as usual Good Friday and the following Saturday, but will follow last year's procedure and close Easter Monday, April 5.

All Canadian security and commodity exchanges will close Good Friday, but will transact business as usual on Saturday.



899 Companies Show 17% Gain In Net Income

By the Associated Press

New York, April 1.—Net profits of 899 commercial and industrial corporations in 1941 showed an increase of 17 per cent over the preceding year despite higher taxes, labor and material costs, the Federal Reserve Bank of New York disclosed today after a survey.

Profits for the year also were 18 per cent above the "average" year of 1937, the report showed.

All types of corporate enterprise were represented in the survey and all shared in the higher results of 1941 over 1940 except some devoted to tobacco, gold and silver mining and bakery products.

A breakdown of the survey showed 410 durable-goods producers had an increase in profits in 1941 over the previous year of 18 per cent, on the average, and 435 concerns engaged in nondurable goods production and service fields showed an increase of 16 per cent. The remaining 54 companies, engaged in mining enterprise, reported profits increased 11 per cent.

Examination of balance-sheet data of 172 commercial and industrial corporations showed gross sales rose an average of 36 per cent in 1941 over 1940; cost of goods sold, including taxes, increased 33 per cent, and net profits before Federal taxes, were 61 per cent higher.

Deductions for Federal income and excess profits taxes, which had averaged approximately 18 per cent of net profits before taxes in each of the years 1937, 1938 and 1939 and had increased to 32 per cent in 1940, advanced still further to an average of 53 per cent of net profits before taxes in 1941. As a result, the increase in net profits in 1941 after all charges for this group of companies was reduced to 12 per cent.

In reporting on the experience of special groups of corporations the survey found that because of an increase of 22 per cent in carloadings and the relative immunity of railroads to excess profits taxes due to large amounts of invested capital, the Class I carriers in 1941 showed aggregate net income of approximately 502 million dollars, an amount approximating the results of 1930, and compared with 185 million dollars in 1940.

Net income of 33 telephone companies, each with a gross of better than one million dollars annually, declined 3 per cent, compared with 1940, but remained 4 per cent above the "average" year of 1937.

Idle Coal Pits Reopening in Pennsylvania

By the Associated Press

Uniontown, Pa., April 1.—Progress on a multimillion-dollar expansion program to provide additional millions of tons of soft coal for war-busy steel mills was disclosed by the H. C. Frick Coke Co., the world's largest producer of bituminous coal.

During an inspection tour of the rich Connnellsville coke region by Harry Moses, president of the United States Steel subsidiary, a spokesman announced last night one idle field of more than 50 million tons near Connellsville, and another of equal size in Greene County, across the Monongahela River, are being tapped.

In the Leisenring field, near Connellsville, a 60-year-old tipple, idle for 15 years, will be knocked down Saturday to make way for a new one and workmen are remodeling 1890 dwellings for miners. Nearby a second pit is being prepared.

Plans for the Greene County field, where a mine pit is being built about one-half way between Waynesburg and Washington, call for a 20,000-ton-a-day output, to be taken to barges from a new dock across from Ronco.

The two projects will add several thousand employes to the Frick payrolls, which have jumped an estimated 4000 to more than 26,000 during the past year. About one-half of these workers are employed in the Fayette County field.

Sugar Prices Boosted

New York, April 1 (AP).—Cane sugar refiners today advanced prices 15 cents to $5.80 per 100 pounds to the new ceiling fixed by the Office of Price Administration.

"Thus We Live" is the title of the new series, devoted to detailing the activities of the American Red Cross in war time, which you'll hear over WJSV and the Columbia network every Thursday and Friday, from 9:45 to 10 a. m., starting today.

Introduced by Betty Crocker, nationally known home economist, "Thus We Live" is to tell the women of America what the Red Cross is doing for men in the armed forces, at home and abroad, and to cover work in such fields as first aid training and home nursing. Dramatizations of actual Red Cross experiences are to be broadcast from CBS's Chicago studios and then are to be followed by brief talks by Red Cross officials in Washington. The Washington speaker today will be Walter Wesselius, former director of Red Cross Relief in China, and now assistant director of insular and foreign operations for the organization.

Tonight in a program which you will hear over WJSV at 6:30, CBS starts a new series in which notable speakers will discuss the whys and wherefores of the war. It was arranged by CBS at the request of the War Department, and its purpose is to make our fighting men the best informed in the world. The plan is to have soldiers in all our Nation's camps listen in and then the program also will be shortwaved so that it can be heard by our troops stationed in other parts of the world.

Ed Murrow opens the series. Other speakers will be Leigh White, Bill Shirer, Quentin Reynolds, Herbert Agar and Sergt. Alvin York.

Answers to Quiz

1. With a hand strong both in high-card tricks and in distribution, South has a good chance of making six-odd if his partner has good trump support in either spades or diamonds. South therefore, should make a two-heart overcall in the opponents' suit as this powerful bid is forcing the game.

2. South must bid six diamonds with this hand. North's five no-triump overcall, as is the more commonly used four no-trump overcall, is a take-out double on a grandiose scale and absolutely forces South to name his best suit. North is showing that he has strong support for all three unmentioned suits and expectancy of winning a slam.
